Narcotics Lab Raid Hits Marin House

Agents Believe Suspects Linked To Haight Traffic

Four young men and two girls were arrested yesterday in a drug and marijuana raid on an expensive San Anselmo house which officers said held a chemistry laboratory capable of producing LSD.

State narcotics agents said the raid, which netted LSD and marijuana worth about $35,000, is believed to be a link with heavy drug traffic in San Francisco's Haight-Ashbury district.

Twenty-one persons were arrested earlier this week in a Haight-Ashbury roundup and since then agents have been seeking the supply source. They said they have been aware of the San Anselmo group since Oct. 14 arrests at an Oak Street house in San Francisco which netted 7,000 LSD tablets and over four pounds of marijuana.

EVIDENCE SEIZED

Confiscated during the San Anselmo arrests at about 4:30 p.m. were an estimated 30 pounds of marijuana and a pound of LSD tablets.

Booked into Marin County jail after being arrested at the plush residence at 156 Crescent Road were Hamilton Bassett Henry, Peter Russell Robbins and David Charles Hoye, all 21, Christine Jane Henry, 18 ,and Mary T. Rosenbaum, 20, all for investigation of marijuana possession and having dangerous drugs for sale; and Andrew Samuel Perri, 19, for investigation of offering dangerous drugs for sale, and possession of marijuana and having dangerous drugs for sale.

All but Perri, of San Francisco, gave the Crescent Road house as their address.

WHOLESALE TRADE

A state narcotics bureau agent, said the six reportedly have been running a good-sized wholesale LSD market from the home and that they all have been on the Bay Area hippie scene for a short time. They rented the five-bedroom home, with swimming pool and dressing cabana, for $325 a month about three months ago, he reported.

He said the action began at noon yesterday in San Francisco when Perri allegedly offered to sell LSD wholesale to a San Francisco police undercover agent. The officer agreed and made arrangements with federal and state narcotics agents to follow him and Perri to San Anselmo, the agent added.

He said two more stops were made in San Francisco to make further arrangements, then the officer and Perri went to the San Anselmo house. The officer was told in the house the LSD would cost $4,000, according to the report. He declared he had only $1,500 in his pocket, but

Nixon Starts Work On Text For Inaugural

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — President-elect Richard M. Nixon, relaxing alone on a porch overlooking placid Biscayne Bay, began work today on his inaugural address and on budget problems.

He also named two of his top speech writers as White House special assistants.

With his family in Pennsylvania for the wedding of Barbara Eisenhower, Nixon spent the day at the waterfront home rented from Sen. George A. Smathers, D-Fla. Aides were stationed in a nearby hotel.

The two assistants, press aide Ron Ziegler said Nixon planned to name, are Raymond K. Price Jr., 38, and Patrick J. Buchanan Jr., 30.

BOTH NEWSPAPERMEN

Price, former chief editorial writer for the New York Herald-Tribune, and Buchanan, a former editorial writer for the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, have been on Nixon's staff since last year.

In outlining their White House roles Ziegler said the two will be "generalists in the truest sense," active in "development of programs and policy statements."

Asked if he was named to give a liberal viewpoint and Buchanan a conservative one, Price said, "Together we provide a pretty good balance." Buchanan said the two have been able "to give Mr. Nixon the benefit of two viewpoints."

NATO Pens Firm Warning To Russ

BRUSSELS (AP) — The North Atlantic Treaty Organization set up a new zone of security interest in southeast Europe and the Mediterranean today and posted a warning to the Russians.

"Clearly any Soviet intervention, directly or indirectly, affecting the situation in Europe or in the Mediterranean would create an international crisis with grave consequences," the 15 members of the alliance proclaimed in a communique.

BUILDUP ORDERED

Western statesmen led by Secretary of State Dean Rusk at the same time ordered a power buildup in case they have to meet a Soviet attack on their newly conceived security zone, which includes both Communist and neutral lands.

In a parallel action, NATO strategic experts pushed ahead with emergency plans for the defense of such countries as Yugoslavia, Austria and Albania in the event a need should arise to rush to their aid.

The proclamation of shared security interests, issued at the end of a meeting of the council of the alliance, was a direct response to the Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia Aug. 20-21.

FRANCE SIGNS

The communique, with lone-wolf France among the signers, recalled how the Russians sought to justify the invasion.

Air Cavalry Hurls Back Red Attack

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. Army troops today hurled back an assault by about 200 Communist troops on an outpost near the Cambodian border and chased survivors into the jungles 70 miles north of Saigon.

U.S. spokesmen said the Communists hit the outpost manned by U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division troops at about 6:30 a.m. with rocket grenades, grenades and automatic weapons fire.

The Americans called in helicopter gunships and jet fighter strikes in a 90-minute fight and then chased the fleeing Reds into nearby jungles where the Communists tried to pick them off from sniper posts in trees.

At least 36 Communists were known killed in the fighting. U.S. casualties were reported as 11 wounded and no known dead, the spokesmen said.

Woman Tells Of Episode With Guns

By ALAN JONES

A redheaded prosecution witness gave testimony damaging to both sides yesterday in the murder trial of John Arceo and Dennis C. Novotny.

Arceo and Novotny are on trial in Marin Superior Court for the murder of San Rafael gun collector Wesley L. Marshall, who died Jan. 6, a month after he was beaten and robbed of his guns at his home.

A third man, Claude (Frenchy) LeBas, has pleaded guilty to the crime and is serving a life sentence.

Yesterday Connie Rosser, former friend of LeBas, said she heard the three and Mrs. Arceo in a clandestine conference at Arceo's house. She was sent to the bedroom, she said, and could not hear what they discussed.

Next night, she said, Novotny and LeBas left for a time and came back late at night with five or six guns which they piled on the kitchen table.

The defense scored a point when Miss Rosser insisted on cross examination that the kitchen conference took place two days before she read of the Marshall robbery in the newspapers.

Marshall lay unfound for four days, and the first story

Larkspur Man, East Bay Trucker Killed

An East Bay truck driver and another motorist, who was not immediately identified, today became the 31st and 32nd traffic fatalities in Marin this year.

The trucker died when his vehicle crashed into a tree north of Novato at 5:40 a.m. as he tried to avoid hitting a horse which ran across the highway.

A few hours later a Larkspur man — not otherwise identified — was killed when his car ran off the highway late this morning at Waldo Grade above Martin Luther King School in Sausalito.

The victim in the first accident was Andre Charles Siedentopf, 29, of Union City, a driver for Systems 99 Trucking Co. of Emeryville.

The Larkspur man's name has not been released by the California Highway Patrol pending notification of next-of-kin.

The truck accident happened near Rancho Olompali, from which officers said the horse possibly came.

According to officers, Siedentopf, who was driving a large trailer truck, was unable to avoid hitting the horse, which was killed, in a southbound lane. He swerved off the road, crashed into a tree and was thrown from the cab.

Siedentopf was pronounced dead at Marin General Hospital.

He is survived by his wife, Sharon.

Funeral arrangements are pending at Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael.

There had been 30 traffic deaths at this time in Marin last year.

Pumpkin Center Bank Robber Gets $49,120

BAKERSFIELD (AP) — The FBI began a search today for a bank robber who escaped with $49,120 in cash and travelers checks taken from the Community National Bank in Pumpkin Center, 10 miles west of here.

The bank reported $44,000 in cash was taken along with $5,120 in travelers checks yesterday.

Russ Orbit 17 Tons

MOSCOW (AP) — A powerful Soviet rocket hurled into orbit today a 17-ton sputnik, the world's biggest unmanned scientific spaceship, an official announcement said.

The spacecraft, Proton-4, began circling the earth on a scientific mission to study high-energy cosmic rays and electrons.

The announcement did not specify what equipment was aboard or indicate whether Proton-4 had any other mission than the space studies mentioned.

It came amid a series of recent Soviet space shots which Western scientists say could be building up to a Soviet attempt to send men around the moon before America's Apollo 8 attempt at Christmas time.

U.S. officials expressed belief the rocket which threw Proton-4 into orbit had about the same weight-lifting capacity as the U.S. Saturn 1B, which lofted the 33,389-pound Apollo 7 manned spacecraft into orbit in October.

The most powerful American rocket, Saturn 5, can put 280,000 pounds into earth orbit or throw the complete 101,000-pound Apollo spaceship to the moon.

The announcement on Proton-4 said 12.5 tons of the approximately 17-ton payload was made up of scientific equipment. Radio reports from the craft indicated the equipment was working normally, it added.

I-J Special Report

UKIAH — Russell Campbell Mills, 61, of Mill Valley, vice president and treasurer of the E. D. Bullard Co. in Sausalito, died today in a fire in a motel here.

Firemen said Mills died from smoke inhalation casued by a smouldering mattress in his room in a Travelodge motel.

Firemen said the mattress apparently had been smouldering for some time when they were called at 2:25 a.m. today. The only damage in the room was to the mattress, the bedding and the rug.

Mills was found dead on the floor and had apparently tried to escape from the room, firemen said. He had been carried out before firemen arrived and was taken to a Ukiah hospital where attempts to revive him failed.

Firemen said the blaze may have been started by a cigarette.

Mills, of 160 Eldridge Avenue, was in Ukiah to visit his wife, Katharine Erskine Mills, a patient at Mendocino State Hospital.

He had been with E. D. Bullard since 1934 and had lived in Mill Valley all his life.

Mills had served on the Mill Valley School District board and was a member of the Mill Valley Tennis Club.

Survivors, besides his wife, are two sons, Melville E. (Scotty) and Russell C. Jr., both of Mill Valley.

Strikes Intensify Crisis In Prague

PRAGUE (AP) — Protest strikes were reported in suburban Prague and in Olomouc, central Moravia, as Czechoslovakia's Communist leaders waged a power struggle with pro-Soviet hardliners behind closed doors.

It was not immediately learned what action, if any authorities planned to take. The government has banned demonstrations to try and maintain calm during a crucial party Central Committee meeting, now in its second day.

Czechoslovak military policemen with submarchine guns patrolled Prague streets and informants said the Czechoslovak army's 6,000-man Prague garrison was alerted and all leaves canceled.

Armored personnel carriers were noticed at one of the small Soviet military command posts in the city, but there was no confirmation of rumors that some Soviet units had returned to Prague from permanent camps in outlying areas.

Student leaders said the reports of army and police alerts made them realize that demonstrations would be suicide. They announced plans for peaceful sit-ins, starting tomorrow —one for a day to protest the ban on demonstrations, and other for up to three days if the Central Committee decisions are unfavorable.

Snatches of arguments in the 190-member Central Committee, released by radio and television indicated Dubcek's supporters were fighting to defend his reform policies against attacks by Old Guard hard-liners. Some members had angrily demanded to know what leaders had invited the Soviets to invade their country for the purpose of quelling "counterrevolution." Many Czechoslovaks feared they were the dying gasps of free discussion.

Dubcek was reported to have announced new allegiance to "democratic centralism," the orthodox Communist principle that debate stops once the decision is made.

The decision in this case, the final resolution of the Central Committee, is due tomorrow at the earliest.

More than 100 of the 140 members who had asked to speak remained to be heard from in the closed Central Committee meeting at Prague Castle.

Polish Reds Again Pick Gomulka

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Wladyslaw Gomulka was reelected leader of the Polish Communist party today after a secret election which placed four new faces in the top leadership.

The election of a new ruling politburo and central committee, the climaxing event of a week-long quadrennial party congress, denied promotion to former Interior Minister and Secret Police Chief Mieczyslaw Moczar, the symbol of a loosely organized nationalist faction within the party, seeking changes.

MINISTER LOSES

The election confirmed the political demise of Adam Rapacki, the foreign minister, who has withdrawn from the inner circle of leadership after a combination of heart trouble and apparent disagreement over policy. He was not returned as a member of the politburo.

Gomulka announced his own re-election as first secretary of the party, a job he has held since 1956.

He joined in the applause given him by the more than 1,700 party delegates who elected him and who, along with such prominent foreign guests as Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev, filled the congress hall in the skyscraper Palace of Culture.

NEW FACES

Raised to the politburo were Stanislaw Kociolek, party leader of Grdansk Province, purported to be a Gomulka disciple; Jozef Tejchma, 41, the party secretary in charge of agriculture, and Wladyslaw Kruczek, 57, the party leader from Poland's southeastern Rzeszow Province and considered to be a hard-liner.

All three were promoted over the heads of three deputy members of the politburo, Agriculture Minister Mieczyslaw Jagielski, Deputy Premier Piotr Jaroszewicz and Moczar, who retained their deputy status. The number of new members increased to four with the addition of Poznan party chief Jan Szydlak, also considered a hard-liner.

The failure of Moczar to step up to full politburo rank came as a surprise and may be interpreted as Moscow dissatisfaction with his nationalist-leaning posture. Moczar is credited with being one of the leading forces for change in the party, a man reputed to seek the No. 1 position. He is believed also to have been one of the chief engineers of party purges and an "anti-Zionist" campaign during the year.

Less Black Militancy Predicted

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A Negro social researcher at the University of California predicts black militants are on the verge of turning away from violent confrontations and concentrating instead on means for political and economic power.

"Activists are starting to realize that any violent strategy has its limitations and is only effective up to a point," Staten W. Webster, professor of education at U.C.'s Berkeley campus, said yesterday.

The tremendous growth this year in Negro voter registration is an indication of the new strategy, Webster said. More than 7 million black citizens voted in this year's presidential election.

To encourage such constructive efforts, Webster said, the dominant white society should be careful not to "over-react" to talk of violence by black militants.

He said such talk results from frustrations of "years of oppression" and symbolizes the new feeling of "black people not being afraid anymore of whites."

Speaking before the 20th annual Conference on Educational Research, Webster said "much of what seems to be anti-white hostility" is rally an attempt to build the same ethnic pride achieved by other minority groups.

Although militants are starting to realize that violence is not the way to achieve acceptance, Webster said, violence has underlined the "urgency" of the current racial crisis that "results from the fact that Negroes, in particular, have been accorded a status beneath that assigned to any immigrant group."

Auto Agency Wins Paving Approval

Plans for paving 35,000 square feet of parking area for Ted R. Schuman Chevrolet Co. were approved yesterday by the Novato Plan Review Committee, according to secretary Juanita Gibson.

The committee called for addition of some landscaping and fencing around the north end of the lot which is north of the Chevrolet garage west of Highway 101 at Lamont Avenue, she said.

The committee postponed action on a request from Hoytt Enterprise Inc. for a 20,000-square-foot tacos restaurant on the east side of Seventh Street south of Lee Brothers Market, according to Mrs. Gibson, who said the committee will consider them at a special meeting to be called after final plans are submitted.

S.F. State Reopening Date Hinges In Trustee Meeting

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The president of San Francisco State College hopes to open his strife-torn school next Tuesday.

But in making the announcement yesterday, President Robert R. Smith said on final decision would be reached until after a special meeting of state college trustees Monday in Los Angeles.

The president spoke to 600 faculty members yesterday on the otherwise deserted campus. He said the Los Angeles meeting would assess the problem, not order action. It was called Thursday by Trustees President Theodore Meriam and chancellor Glen Dumke of the 19-college system. Both have supported Smith's decision to cancel classes as an effort "to provide for the safety of persons and property."

Smith said he realizes there is "growing public concern" about his order to close the school and is aware of charges of "academic and administrative irresponsibility" in connection with the handling of the dispute.

"There is questioning of who is to blame," Smith said.

"The climate of the state for a year or two has been one in which it is easier to look for simple solutions and placing of blame for the plight we are in than to look for the broad range of problems not resolved."

"It's a question of whether to run a program with dollars and with educational knowledge, or rather to run a program with clubs."

U.S. Thaws Highway Funding

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —California highway officials have been told that the freeze on federal funds for construction of interstate highways will end Dec. 1.

State Business and Transportation Secretary Gordon C. Luce disclosed yesterday he received word from the federal Transportation Agency that it will resume approval of applications by the states for highway funds.

Luce said the action would release more than $316 million in federal money for use in the California construction program during the remaining seven months of the current fiscal year.

The freeze was put into effect in September to reduce federal spending. It was the fourth such ban in a two-year period.

Luce said he was informed of the federal decision in a letter from John Robson, an aide to federal Transportation Secretary Alan Boyd.

State highway officials estimated the freeze caused postponement of bid advertisements for about $150 million worth of highway construction in California. This represented 28 projects.

Luce, a bitter critic of the freeze, said completion of the interstate system has been delayed two years "because of these unwarranted interferences on the part of the Department of Transportation."

Rec Commission Puts Off Its Meeting

The regular meeting of the Novato Parks and Recreation Advisory Commission, scheduled for 8 p.m. Monday at the Novato Community House, has been canceled for lack of business, according to Edward W. Adams, parks and recreation director.

The commission members will meet at 9 a.m. tomorrow at the community house to tour possible park sites in the southern sections of the city, Adams said.

Final Docking

SOUTHAMPTON, England (UPI) — The liner Queen Elizabeth which will soon be moored permanently at Port Everglades, Fla., docked at Southampton yesterday for the last time in her 28-year career, arriving from a cruise to Gibraltar and Majorca.

Supervisors Pursue New Tax Sources

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The County Supervisors Association of California has concluded its three-day convention with an appeal to the legislature to give counties an expanded tax base to end their dependence on the "narrow, regressive" property tax.

In a resolution approved at yesterday's final session, the supervisors asked the lawmakers to authorize counties to use "such progressive tax sources" as the sales and income taxes.

Copies of the resolution were ordered sent to Gov. Ronald Reagan, the tax reform commission and to both houses of the legislature.

The supervisors noted that property tax relief would not mitigate the problem of attempting to respond to "the legitimate demands of citizens for increased and improved government services."

Such relief cannot be achieved, the supervisors said, as long as the only source of revenue for counties "continues to be the restrictive and regressive property tax base."

Another resolution approved by the association asked the legislature to "enact legislation which will permit the denial of welfare aid to persons who come to California" only for the purpose of getting such assistance.

Murder Charge Hearing Stopped For Grand Jury

A preliminary hearing for a Tiburon man and his mother indicted for murder has been canceled in San Francisco.

Instead, Daniel Nyhan, 43, and his mother, Mrs.Elsie F. Nyhan, 72, of San Francisco, will be arraigned within two or three weeks under a grond jury indictment for murder.

The Associated Press reported the San Francisco district attorney's office held that the grand jury proceedings took precedence over criminal proceedings already started, and canceled the preliminary hearing set for yesterday.

The Nyhans are charged with the murder of Mrs. Genevieve Dolan, 61, whom Mrs. Nyhan described as "my best friend." Mrs. Dolan was found dead of head injuries Oct. 25 in Mrs. Nyhan's Nob Hill apartment.

The mother and son are being held in San Francisco County Jail without bail.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Wolden Hearing Set

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Superior Court Judge Lewis Drucker has ordered a Nov. 25 hearing to consider the release of ailing San Francisco assessor Russell L. Wolden, serving a prison sentence for bribery.

The chief medical examiner at the California Medical Facility at Vacaville said the heart condition of Wolden, 59, had deteriorated rapidly.

Wolden was one of nine men sent to jail in a series of trials arising from tax assessment scandals in San Francisco in 1965. He is serving a one-to-14-year term.

Bay Bomb Suspects

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The FBI is seeking a couple who moved out of a rented Richmond home Oct. 5, leaving behind a cache of explosives and revolutionary materials.

A federal warrant was issued against Anthony Richard Tankersley, 28, and Susan O'Dell Barber Tankersley, 26, yesterday for unlawful flight to avoid prosecution. They were last reported in Denver.

Contra Costa County Dist. Atty. John Nejedly said the Tankersleys, charged with unlawful possession of explosives, are also wanted for questioning about a series of explosions involving Pacific Gas and Electric Co. installations in the San Francisco East Bay area and police and sheriff's stations in the Bay Area.

Tax Curb Vetoed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Mayor Joseph L. Alioto has vetoed a business tax exemption for newspapers, radio and television which was approved by the board of supervisors by a 6-5 vote.

The business taxes on news media are levied "for the sole purpose of maintaining the municipal government," Alioto said.

He cited court decisions and noted similar taxes are paid by publications and other media outside California.

Onassis Gem Theft

TURVILLE HEATH, England (AP) — Burglars broke into the country mansion home where Mrs. Aristotle Onassis is staying and made off with several thousand dollars worth of jewels, a British newspaper reported today.

Police Inspector John Chamberlain told newsmen: "I've been asked not to say anything."

The Evening Standard said the gems were stolen from the home of Princess Lee Radziwill, sister of Mrs. Onassis, who is spending the weekend there with her multimillionaire Greek husband.

Some of the jewelry stolen is believed to belong to Mrs. Onassis, the former Mrs. John F. Kennedy.

Christmas Chaos?

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — A slowdown ordered today by the German Postal Workers union was expected to result in chaos during the Christmas mail rush.

The union ordered its members to work by the rules — check each item for correct weight and postage and readability of rubber stamps.

It acted after the government decided only a few postal employees will receive Christmas bonuses of 6 per cent. The government said there were not enough funds to increase the bonus to 40 per cent of a month's salary for all employees.

Agnew Skips Golf

Heavy rains in the Puerto Rico-Virgin Islands area were again the cause for putting aside Agnew's planned round of golf with Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and Sen. Edmund Muskie.

Koreans Kill Red

SEOUL, Korea (AP) — South Korean troops pursuing two North Korean guerrilla bands of 60 men killed one more today bringing to 31 the number of Communists killed in two weeks. The army also reported two guerrillas were captured.

Ecumenical Cardinal Bea Dies

ROME (AP) — Augustin Cardinal Bea, the gentle ascetic German Jesuit who led the quest for agreement among the world's major creeds in the Roman Catholic Church, died yesterday in a Rome hospital. He was 87.

Cardinal Bea

Bea was a key figure at the Ecumenical Council Vatican II, where he led the liberal bishops against the entrenched position of the conservative Roman Curia, the church's central administrative body.

Outside the church Bea, who could converse easily in five languages, won support of many Protestant and Orthodox leaders for enunciation of man's right to choose his own religion — or no religion.

His early years at the Vatican were spent as a scholar and Biblical historian. Later he became Pope Pius XII's confessor.

But it was Pope Pius XXIII who made him a cardinal in 1959 and appointed him to head the new Secretariat for the Union of Christians, where he worked to bridge the gaps within the Christian church.

Haircut Cost Cut?

SANTA ANA (AP) — The price of a haircut in California may drop, at least temporarily, union officials said after a judge struck down a 1941 law which sets minimum prices for haircuts.

The law was declared unconstitutional yesterday by Superior Court Judge Ronald M. Crookshank in a suit filed by the state Board of Barber Examiners against Ricky Star, who operates 28 barbershops in Orange County.

The suit was filed because Star charges only $1.75 for haircuts for adults; the state minimum in the county is $1.91. Under the 27-year-old state law, barbers in each county or city can establish a minimum price by majority vote.

Sentence Delayed

SAN JOSE (AP) — Sentence is scheduled next Friday for Leonard E. Maine, convicted of second-degree murder in the 1967 shooting of Timothy Luce of Ukiah.

A report on Maine, 19, of Ritzville, Wash., has not been completed, probation officer Dick Garish told the court yesterday, and a one-week delay was ordered.

New Harbor Chief

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Robert C. Walker, operator of a San Diego public relations firm, was named yesterday by Gov. Ronald Reagan as director of the state Department of Harbors and Watercraft.

Walker, a 42-year-old Republican, will succeed Adm. Ned Sprow who retires Dec. 1 from the $22,575-a-year post.

Multiple Birth?

LAURENCO MARQUES, Mozambique (UPI) — Mrs. Clara Mutangua, 36, who gave birth to quintuplets four years ago, is expecting another multiple birth soon, the Portuguese News Agency ANI said yesterday.

Vote Turnout Low

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's estimated that a lower percentage of eligible voters went to the polls this month than in any presidential election since 1956.

Unofficial tabulations of persons of voting age and total vote by the Associated Press show an estimated 60.8 per cent took part in the election.

Sixty-two per cent voted in 1964, a record 63.8 per cent showed up in 1960, and in 1956—the year of President Eisenhower's landslide triumph over Adlai E. Stevenson — 60.5 per cent voted.

Plot Figure Freed

NEW YORK (AP) — A Yemeni Arab accused of plotting to assassinate President-elect Richard M. Nixon has been released on $25,000 bond.

"I love America — I'm innocent," said Ahmed Rageh Namer, 43, in his lawyer's office yesterday after his release.

Namer's lawyer, Joseph Iovino, said Namer's bond was raised by Namer's friends and neighbors who put up $780 collateral. He said there was insufficient money to cover the $25,000 bail on each of Namer's sons, Hussein, 20, and Abdo, 18, who were indicted with their father Wednesday on charges of criminal conspiracy and illegal possession of weapons.

Strikes Intensify Crisis In Prague

PRAGUE (AP) — Protest strikes were reported in suburban Prague and in Olomouc, central Moravia, as Czechoslovakia's Communist leaders waged a power struggle with pro-Soviet hardliners behind closed doors.

It was not immediately learned what action, if any authorities planned to take. The government has banned demonstrations to try and maintain calm during a crucial party Central Committee meeting, now in its second day.

Czechoslovak military policemen with submarchine guns patrolled Prague streets and informants said the Czechoslovak army's 6,000-man Prague garrison was alerted and all leaves canceled.

Armored personnel carriers were noticed at one of the small Soviet military command posts in the city, but there was no confirmation of rumors that some Soviet units had returned to Prague from permanent camps in outlying areas.

Student leaders said the reports of army and police alerts made them realize that demonstrations would be suicide. They announced plans for peaceful sit-ins, starting tomorrow —one for a day to protest the ban on demonstrations, and other for up to three days if the Central Committee decisions are unfavorable.

Snatches of arguments in the 190-member Central Committee, released by radio and television indicated Dubcek's supporters were fighting to defend his reform policies against attacks by Old Guard hard-liners. Some members had angrily demanded to know what leaders had invited the Soviets to invade their country for the purpose of quelling "counterrevolution." Many Czechoslovaks feared they were the dying gasps of free discussion.

Dubcek was reported to have announced new allegiance to "democratic centralism," the orthodox Communist principle that debate stops once the decision is made.

The decision in this case, the final resolution of the Central Committee, is due tomorrow at the earliest.

More than 100 of the 140 members who had asked to speak remained to be heard from in the closed Central Committee meeting at Prague Castle.

Polish Reds Again Pick Gomulka

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Wladyslaw Gomulka was reelected leader of the Polish Communist party today after a secret election which placed four new faces in the top leadership.

The election of a new ruling politburo and central committee, the climaxing event of a week-long quadrennial party congress, denied promotion to former Interior Minister and Secret Police Chief Mieczyslaw Moczar, the symbol of a loosely organized nationalist faction within the party, seeking changes.

MINISTER LOSES

The election confirmed the political demise of Adam Rapacki, the foreign minister, who has withdrawn from the inner circle of leadership after a combination of heart trouble and apparent disagreement over policy. He was not returned as a member of the politburo.

Gomulka announced his own re-election as first secretary of the party, a job he has held since 1956.

He joined in the applause given him by the more than 1,700 party delegates who elected him and who, along with such prominent foreign guests as Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev, filled the congress hall in the skyscraper Palace of Culture.

NEW FACES

Raised to the politburo were Stanislaw Kociolek, party leader of Grdansk Province, purported to be a Gomulka disciple; Jozef Tejchma, 41, the party secretary in charge of agriculture, and Wladyslaw Kruczek, 57, the party leader from Poland's southeastern Rzeszow Province and considered to be a hard-liner.

All three were promoted over the heads of three deputy members of the politburo, Agriculture Minister Mieczyslaw Jagielski, Deputy Premier Piotr Jaroszewicz and Moczar, who retained their deputy status. The number of new members increased to four with the addition of Poznan party chief Jan Szydlak, also considered a hard-liner.

The failure of Moczar to step up to full politburo rank came as a surprise and may be interpreted as Moscow dissatisfaction with his nationalist-leaning posture. Moczar is credited with being one of the leading forces for change in the party, a man reputed to seek the No. 1 position. He is believed also to have been one of the chief engineers of party purges and an "anti-Zionist" campaign during the year.

Less Black Militancy Predicted

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A Negro social researcher at the University of California predicts black militants are on the verge of turning away from violent confrontations and concentrating instead on means for political and economic power.

"Activists are starting to realize that any violent strategy has its limitations and is only effective up to a point," Staten W. Webster, professor of education at U.C.'s Berkeley campus, said yesterday.

The tremendous growth this year in Negro voter registration is an indication of the new strategy, Webster said. More than 7 million black citizens voted in this year's presidential election.

To encourage such constructive efforts, Webster said, the dominant white society should be careful not to "over-react" to talk of violence by black militants.

He said such talk results from frustrations of "years of oppression" and symbolizes the new feeling of "black people not being afraid anymore of whites."

Speaking before the 20th annual Conference on Educational Research, Webster said "much of what seems to be anti-white hostility" is rally an attempt to build the same ethnic pride achieved by other minority groups.

Although militants are starting to realize that violence is not the way to achieve acceptance, Webster said, violence has underlined the "urgency" of the current racial crisis that "results from the fact that Negroes, in particular, have been accorded a status beneath that assigned to any immigrant group."

Auto Agency Wins Paving Approval

Plans for paving 35,000 square feet of parking area for Ted R. Schuman Chevrolet Co. were approved yesterday by the Novato Plan Review Committee, according to secretary Juanita Gibson.

The committee called for addition of some landscaping and fencing around the north end of the lot which is north of the Chevrolet garage west of Highway 101 at Lamont Avenue, she said.

The committee postponed action on a request from Hoytt Enterprise Inc. for a 20,000-square-foot tacos restaurant on the east side of Seventh Street south of Lee Brothers Market, according to Mrs. Gibson, who said the committee will consider them at a special meeting to be called after final plans are submitted

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Wolden Hearing Set

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Superior Court Judge Lewis Drucker has ordered a Nov. 25 hearing to consider the release of ailing San Francisco assessor Russell L. Wolden, serving a prison sentence for bribery.

The chief medical examiner at the California Medical Facility at Vacaville said the heart condition of Wolden, 59, had deteriorated rapidly.

Wolden was one of nine men sent to jail in a series of trials arising from tax assessment scandals in San Francisco in 1965. He is serving a one-to-14-year term.

Bay Bomb Suspects

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The FBI is seeking a couple who moved out of a rented Richmond home Oct. 5, leaving behind a cache of explosives and revolutionary materials.

A federal warrant was issued against Anthony Richard Tankersley, 28, and Susan O'Dell Barber Tankersley, 26, yesterday for unlawful flight to avoid prosecution. They were last reported in Denver.

Contra Costa County Dist. Atty. John Nejedly said the Tankersleys, charged with unlawful possession of explosives, are also wanted for questioning about a series of explosions involving Pacific Gas and Electric Co. installations in the San Francisco East Bay area and police and sheriff's stations in the Bay Area.

Tax Curb Vetoed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Mayor Joseph L. Alioto has vetoed a business tax exemption for newspapers, radio and television which was approved by the board of supervisors by a 6-5 vote.

The business taxes on news media are levied "for the sole purpose of maintaining the municipal government," Alioto said.

He cited court decisions and noted similar taxes are paid by publications and other media outside California.

Onassis Gem Theft

TURVILLE HEATH, England (AP) — Burglars broke into the country mansion home where Mrs. Aristotle Onassis is staying and made off with several thousand dollars worth of jewels, a British newspaper reported today.

The Evening Standard said the gems were stolen from the home of Princess Lee Radziwill, sister of Mrs. Onassis, who is spending the weekend there with her multimillionaire Greek husband.

Some of the jewelry stolen is believed to belong to Mrs. Onassis, the former Mrs. John F. Kennedy.

Christmas Chaos?

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — A slowdown ordered today by the German Postal Workers union was expected to result in chaos during the Christmas mail rush.

The union ordered its members to work by the rules — check each item for correct weight and postage and readability of rubber stamps.

It acted after the government decided only a few postal employees will receive Christmas bonuses of 6 per cent. The government said there were not enough funds to increase the bonus to 40 per cent of a month's salary for all employees.

Agnew Skips Golf

Heavy rains in the Puerto Rico-Virgin Islands area were again the cause for putting aside Agnew's planned round of golf with Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and Sen. Edmund Muskie.

Koreans Kill Red

SEOUL, Korea (AP) — South Korean troops pursuing two North Korean guerrilla bands of 60 men killed one more today bringing to 31 the number of Communists killed in two weeks. The army also reported two guerrillas were captured.

Ecumenical Cardinal Bea Dies

ROME (AP) — Augustin Cardinal Bea, the gentle ascetic German Jesuit who led the quest for agreement among the world's major creeds in the Roman Catholic Church, died yesterday in a Rome hospital. He was 87.

Cardinal Bea

Bea was a key figure at the Ecumenical Council Vatican II, where he led the liberal bishops against the entrenched position of the conservative Roman Curia, the church's central administrative body.

Outside the church Bea, who could converse easily in five languages, won support of many Protestant and Orthodox leaders for enunciation of man's right to choose his own religion — or no religion.

His early years at the Vatican were spent as a scholar and Biblical historian. Later he became Pope Pius XII's confessor.

But it was Pope Pius XXIII who made him a cardinal in 1959 and appointed him to head the new Secretariat for the Union of Christians, where he worked to bridge the gaps within the Christian church.

Haircut Cost Cut?

SANTA ANA (AP) — The price of a haircut in California may drop, at least temporarily, union officials said after a judge struck down a 1941 law which sets minimum prices for haircuts.

The law was declared unconstitutional yesterday by Superior Court Judge Ronald M. Crookshank in a suit filed by the state Board of Barber Examiners against Ricky Star, who operates 28 barbershops in Orange County.

The suit was filed because Star charges only $1.75 for haircuts for adults; the state minimum in the county is $1.91. Under the 27-year-old state law, barbers in each county or city can establish a minimum price by majority vote.

Sentence Delayed

SAN JOSE (AP) — Sentence is scheduled next Friday for Leonard E. Maine, convicted of second-degree murder in the 1967 shooting of Timothy Luce of Ukiah.

A report on Maine, 19, of Ritzville, Wash., has not been completed, probation officer Dick Garish told the court yesterday, and a one-week delay was ordered.

New Harbor Chief

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Robert C. Walker, operator of a San Diego public relations firm, was named yesterday by Gov. Ronald Reagan as director of the state Department of Harbors and Watercraft.

Walker, a 42-year-old Republican, will succeed Adm. Ned Sprow who retires Dec. 1 from the $22,575-a-year post.

Multiple Birth?

LAURENCO MARQUES, Mozambique (UPI) — Mrs. Clara Mutangua, 36, who gave birth to quintuplets four years ago, is expecting another multiple birth soon, the Portuguese News Agency ANI said yesterday.

Vote Turnout Low

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's estimated that a lower percentage of eligible voters went to the polls this month than in any presidential election since 1956.

Unofficial tabulations of persons of voting age and total vote by the Associated Press show an estimated 60.8 per cent took part in the election.

Sixty-two per cent voted in 1964, a record 63.8 per cent showed up in 1960, and in 1956—the year of President Eisenhower's landslide triumph over Adlai E. Stevenson — 60.5 per cent voted.

Plot Figure Freed

NEW YORK (AP) — A Yemeni Arab accused of plotting to assassinate President-elect Richard M. Nixon has been released on $25,000 bond.

"I love America — I'm innocent," said Ahmed Rageh Namer, 43, in his lawyer's office yesterday after his release.

Namer's lawyer, Joseph Iovino, said Namer's bond was raised by Namer's friends and neighbors who put up $780 collateral. He said there was insufficient money to cover the $25,000 bail on each of Namer's sons, Hussein, 20, and Abdo, 18, who were indicted with their father Wednesday on charges of criminal conspiracy and illegal possession of weapons.

STUDENT THROWN FROM CAR

A passerby stands over Lawrence H. Gould, 19, of 25 Corona Court, Novato, who was seriously injured when he was thrown from his car on Highway 101 near Terra Linda about 2:45 p.m. yesterday. Gould, a College of Marin student, was reported in poor condition in Marin General Hospital's intensive care unit today after undergoing head surgery last night. California Highway Patrol officers said that Gould started to change lanes, realized a car was in the way and swerved back. The car rolled over, ejecting him. (Independent-Journal photo by Jim Kean) of the crime appeared five days afterward, Dec. 11. That would put the kitchen conference three days after the crime.

TRIAL

Miss Rosser said she became worried over the guns Arceo and LeBas had around the Arceo house and went to Undersheriff Sidney Stinson and told him of their activities.

Police arrested Arceo and Novotny and searched their homes. LeBas, who had returned to Long Beach, was arrested there later and returned to Marin.

A few days after the arrests, Miss Rosser said, Novotny was out on bail and dropped by the Arceo home. She said Novotny told her the police search of his home had missed Marshall's suitcase hidden in a closet and guns hidden behind a dishwasher. Novotny said he had sold the guns after he made bail, she testified.

Stinson and two Fairfax policemen related Arceo's arrest Jan. 12, after Marshall's death. Stinson said he found two pistols earlier in the Arceo house.

Fairfax Patrolman Paul Simpson said Arceo was carrying an overnight bag when arrested as he came home Jan. 12. Inside the bag, he said, were two pistols, ammunition and an airline ticket and receipt indicating a flight to Los Angeles.

San Rafael police told of Novotny's arrest and a search of his home in which an empty holster and bullets for 9 millimeter and .44 Magnum weapons were found. No guns were found, however.

The trial will resume at 9:30 a.m. Monday.

Garbage Contract Is With Bolinas

An Independent-Journal story Thursday incorrectly reported that the Bolinas Community Public Utility District agreed to contract with Henry's Service to handle garbage in Stinson Beach, according to June Lacaze of Henry's Service.

The district contracted for garbage pickup in Bolinas, she said. Henry's Service collects in Stinson Beach, but not under a contract with the Bolinas district, she said.

Bride Is 23

Gloria Jean Fischer of San Rafael, who with Michael Raymond Camgros was issued a marriage license recently, is 23, not 27 as incorrectly reported yesterday in the Independent-Journal.

Housewife Gets Credit In Arrest Of Young Suspect

Sheriff's deputies said Mrs. Carrie Hill of 190 Bayview Drive reported she saw a car enter her driveway about 12:30 p.m. yesterday. A man got out, she said, and rang her doorbell.

Suspicious, Mrs. Hill declined to go to the door, officers said. She said she then saw the doorknob turn, although the door was locked. Mrs. Hill said the man then went around the house, located a ladder in the yard, and climbed to a balcony to enter an unlocked upstairs door.

Mrs. Hill said she started upstairs and met the intruder coming down. She said he fled back to the upstairs door, and she ran down the stairs and outside in time to get the burglar's auto license number as he drove off.

Deputies said they made a registration check of the vehicle, and arrested the owner, Eugene Richard Rudnik, 18, of 103 Greenfield Avenue, San Rafael, at his home. He was booked in Marin County Jail for investigation of burglary. Rudnik is free on $625 bail to appear in Marin Municipal Court at 2 p.m. Monday.

Undergrounding Plans Before Cotati Council

Rohnert Park City Council will consider establishing seven districts for undergrounding of utility lines at 7 p.m. Monday in city hall.

City Mgr. Peter M. Callinan said the districts must be established to assure the city of receiving funds from the state Public Utilities Commission and Pacific Gas and Electric Co. when actual undergrounding work begins.

Districts being considered are Arlen Drive from Commerce Boulevard to Adrian Drive; Southwest Boulevard from Adrian Drive to the railroad crossing; Burton Avenue from Southwest Boulevard to Bernice Avenue; Snyder Lane from East Cotati Avenue to Copeland Creek; East Cotati Avenue from the city limits to Snyder Lane; and Beverly Drive.

The council plans a closed session at 6:55 p.m. to consider the appointment of a new recreation commission chairman to replace Dr. Donald Davis, who resigned Nov. 4.

went back to his car to fetch what he told one of the group would be the remaining money. He signalled the awaiting officers, totaling seven and including a San Anselmo police officer, and the group converged on the house and the arrests were made.

CASH FOUND

Officers said the LSD was found in the bedroom of Hamilton Henry, who was talking on the telephone and allegedly smoking a huge marijuana cigarette. Cash totaling $1,291 was also found in the bedroom and was confiscated, officers added.

Agents said the laboratory, with several chemical containers, was discovered in the basement of the stucco and frame home.

ROCK MUSICIAN

They said Perri is a janitor and musician for the Family Dog, a group which runs the rock and roll shows at the Avalon Ballroom in San Francisco.

An agent said the possibility of filing federal dangerous drug and marijuana charges in connection with the raid will be discussed with the U.S. district attorney's office in San Francisco.

Hoye, who also gave Lama, N.M., as his address, was released on $3,750 bail and is scheduled for appearance in Marin Municipal Court at 2 p.m. Monday. Perri remained in jail in lieu of $5,000 bail, and the other four remained in jail in lieu of $3,750 each.

During booking procedures, officers said, five of the group sat in yoga fashion along a jail corridor wall and made chanting sounds.

fairs of other states deemed to be within a so-called 'socialist commonwealth' runs counter to the basic principles of the United Nations Charter, is dangerous to European security and has inevitably aroused grave anxieties," the communique said. "It gives rise to fears of a further use of force in other cases."

Consequently the allies set out to counter the self-assumed right of the Russians to define a new set of rules for themselves.

At the heart of their message to Moscow was this signal: If this doctrine of intervention in the socialist commonwealth turns out to be an action program—watch out!

The three-day conference of NATO defense, finance and foreign ministers had been arranged a month ahead of its regular schedule to examine implications of the Czechoslovak incident.

Dope Suspect Hitchhikers Chased, Held

A 17-year-old San Francisco youth has been turned over to San Francisco authorities by Marin County Juvenile Hall on suspicion of possession of dangerous drugs, according to police.

The youth was stopped by police while hitchhiking during school hours Wednesday on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in San Anselmo with a 15-year-old youth from Fairfax.

The older boy dropped a plastic bag containing what the police believe to be 34 illegally made pills, according to Sgt. Albert G. Howenstein. The youth then ran through the downtown area of San Anselmo with Sgt. Donald Nelson, who was off-duty and not in uniform, pursuing him.

Nelson caught the youth at Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and Tunstead Avenue, where he was aided in holding the boy by two passersby until Howenstein arrived.

The 15-year-old was taken to juvenile hall on suspicion of being truant and for delaying an officer.

NIXON

Meanwhile, Nixon disclaimed any effort to make himself "co-President" with jurisdiction over foreign policy in advance of his inauguration—but he still maintains that to be valid, any long-term commitments abroad need his approval.

That, in essence, is the position the President-elect took, and made public through a top aide, after President Johnson made clear his determination to remain firmly in command until Jan. 20.

Bryce N. Harlow, an assistant to the President-elect, telephoned Johnson Thursday night, got a call back from the President yesterday. And sources said Harlow had assured Johnson that Nixon was "not attempting to presume upon the constitutional authority of the President."

As for Johnson, a Nixon associate said, "The President tried to make it clear that constitutionally, there is one President of the United States, there are no co-Presidents, with which Mr. Nixon is in perfect agreement."

This statement came after hours of apparent discord between Johnson and his Republican successor over Nixon's immediate role in foreign affairs.

Leydecker, facing trial on a charge of possessing marijuana, omitted from the list of Redwood directors the name of W. J. Waksvik, now senior vice president and cashier.

DANA BLASINGAME
In Marin County?

Missing Girl Hunt Turns To Marin

A missing 5-year-old girl, Dana Blasingame, may be in Marin in the custody of her mother, Alison Blasingame, the child's father said yesterday.

William O. Blasingame of San Francisco said missing person bulletins have been issued for both his daughter and his wife.

The family lived at 162 Rollingwood Drive, San Rafael, until two months ago, Blasingame said. He said his daughter has waist-length sandy blonde hair and large blue eyes, and was attending kindergarten before she disappeared.

Three Admit Selling Dope To Sleuths

Three San Rafael men pleaded guilty in Marin Superior Court yesterday to charges of selling methamphetamine (speed) to agents of the Marin County Drug Abuse Bureau.

James Dewey Bell, 34, alleged by agents to be the leader of the three, admitted selling a pound of methamphetamine for $600 on Jan. 18. Officers have claimed Bell is one of the largest speed merchants in the Bay Area.

Pleading guilty to a charge that they sold an ounce for $110 Jan. 5 were Robert Drolla and Robert Nelson. Bell reportedly once told agents they worked for him, peddling his methamphetamine.

Deputy Dis. Atty. Ernest C. Zunino, on hearing the guilty pleas, recommended that additional charges of selgling and conspiracy to sell speed lodged against the men be dismissed. Judge Samuel W. Gardiner complied.

The guilty pleas came after Zunino had completed his opening argument in a trial scheduled to last two weeks. It took three days to choose a jury to hear the case.

Zunino said the district attorney's office is not bound by any agreement to recommend a sentence for the three or stand mute in the face of a probation department report.

Selling methamphetamine, a dangerous drug, is punishable by a sentence of one to five years in prison or up to one year in county jail.

Bell, Nelson and Drolla were arrested in February's narcotics roundup in Marin, which netted over 60 suspected pushers of marijuana and dangerous drugs. It climaxed a three-month undercover investigation by drug abuse agents and police.

Bolinas Driver Hurt In Crash

A Bolinas man suffered a cut knee yesterday on Shoreline Highway near Highway 101 when his car was struck from the rear by another auto, the California Highway Patrol said.

Officers said that Max B. Crosley, 32, had stopped in order to make a U-turn back onto Highway 101 when a car driven by Ward J. Kevin, 17, of 25 Matilda Avenue, Mill Valley, hit him.

Crosley's car then smashed into one driven by Gunther H. Brauner, 27, of 18 Heuters Lane, Mill Valley, officers said.

Crosley, treated at Marin General Hospital, was cited for making an unsafe stop in traffic, officers said.

STUDENT THROWN FROM CAR

A passerby stands over Lawrence H. Gould, 19, of 25 Corona Court, Novato, who was seriously injured when he was thrown from his car on Highway 101 near Terra Linda about 2:45 p.m. yesterday. Gould, a College of Marin student, was reported in poor condition in Marin General Hospital's intensive care unit today after undergoing head surgery last night. California Highway Patrol officers said that Gould started to change lanes, realized a car was in the way and swerved back. The car rolled over, ejecting him. (Independent-Journal photo by Jim Kean) of the crime appeared five days afterward, Dec. 11. That would put the kitchen conference three days after the crime.

TRIAL

Miss Rosser said she became worried over the guns Arceo and LeBas had around the Arceo house and went to Undersheriff Sidney Stinson and told him of their activities.

Police arrested Arceo and Novotny and searched their homes. LeBas, who had returned to Long Beach, was arrested there later and returned to Marin.

A few days after the arrests, Miss Rosser said, Novotny was out on bail and dropped by the Arceo home. She said Novotny told her the police search of his home had missed Marshall's suitcase hidden in a closet and guns hidden behind a dishwasher. Novotny said he had sold the guns after he made bail, she testified.

Stinson and two Fairfax policemen related Arceo's arrest Jan. 12, after Marshall's death. Stinson said he found two pistols earlier in the Arceo house.

Fairfax Patrolman Paul Simpson said Arceo was carrying an overnight bag when arrested as he came home Jan. 12. Inside the bag, he said, were two pistols, ammunition and an airline ticket and receipt indicating a flight to Los Angeles.

San Rafael police told of Novotny's arrest and a search of his home in which an empty holster and bullets for 9 millimeter and .44 Magnum weapons were found. No guns were found, however.

The trial will resume at 9:30 a.m. Monday.

Garbage Contract Is With Bolinas

An Independent-Journal story Thursday incorrectly reported that the Bolinas Community Public Utility District agreed to contract with Henry's Service to handle garbage in Stinson Beach, according to June Lacaze of Henry's Service.

The district contracted for garbage pickup in Bolinas, she said. Henry's Service collects in Stinson Beach, but not under a contract with the Bolinas district, she said.

Bride Is 23

Gloria Jean Fischer of San Rafael, who with Michael Raymond Camgros was issued a marriage license recently, is 23, not 27 as incorrectly reported yesterday in the Independent-Journal.

Housewife Gets Credit In Arrest Of Young Suspect

Sheriff's deputies said Mrs. Carrie Hill of 190 Bayview Drive reported she saw a car enter her driveway about 12:30 p.m. yesterday. A man got out, she said, and rang her doorbell.

Suspicious, Mrs. Hill declined to go to the door, officers said. She said she then saw the doorknob turn, although the door was locked. Mrs. Hill said the man then went around the house, located a ladder in the yard, and climbed to a balcony to enter an unlocked upstairs door.

Mrs. Hill said she started upstairs and met the intruder coming down. She said he fled back to the upstairs door, and she ran down the stairs and outside in time to get the burglar's auto license number as he drove off.

Deputies said they made a registration check of the vehicle, and arrested the owner, Eugene Richard Rudnik, 18, of 103 Greenfield Avenue, San Rafael, at his home. He was booked in Marin County Jail for investigation of burglary. Rudnik is free on $625 bail to appear in Marin Municipal Court at 2 p.m. Monday.

Undergrounding Plans Before Cotati Council

Rohnert Park City Council will consider establishing seven districts for undergrounding of utility lines at 7 p.m. Monday in city hall.

City Mgr. Peter M. Callinan said the districts must be established to assure the city of receiving funds from the state Public Utilities Commission and Pacific Gas and Electric Co. when actual undergrounding work begins.

Districts being considered are Arlen Drive from Commerce Boulevard to Adrian Drive; Southwest Boulevard from Adrian Drive to the railroad crossing; Burton Avenue from Southwest Boulevard to Bernice Avenue; Snyder Lane from East Cotati Avenue to Copeland Creek; East Cotati Avenue from the city limits to Snyder Lane; and Beverly Drive.

The council plans a closed session at 6:55 p.m. to consider the appointment of a new recreation commission chairman to replace Dr. Donald Davis, who resigned Nov. 4.

went back to his car to fetch what he told one of the group would be the remaining money. He signalled the awaiting officers, totaling seven and including a San Anselmo police officer, and the group converged on the house and the arrests were made.

CASH FOUND

Officers said the LSD was found in the bedroom of Hamilton Henry, who was talking on the telephone and allegedly smoking a huge marijuana cigarette. Cash totaling $1,291 was also found in the bedroom and was confiscated, officers added.

Agents said the laboratory, with several chemical containers, was discovered in the basement of the stucco and frame home.

ROCK MUSICIAN

They said Perri is a janitor and musician for the Family Dog, a group which runs the rock and roll shows at the Avalon Ballroom in San Francisco.

An agent said the possibility of filing federal dangerous drug and marijuana charges in connection with the raid will be discussed with the U.S. district attorney's office in San Francisco.

Hoye, who also gave Lama, N.M., as his address, was released on $3,750 bail and is scheduled for appearance in Marin Municipal Court at 2 p.m. Monday. Perri remained in jail in lieu of $5,000 bail, and the other four remained in jail in lieu of $3,750 each.

During booking procedures, officers said, five of the group sat in yoga fashion along a jail corridor wall and made chanting sounds.

Dope Suspect Hitchhikers Chased, Held

A 17-year-old San Francisco youth has been turned over to San Francisco authorities by Marin County Juvenile Hall on suspicion of possession of dangerous drugs, according to police.

The youth was stopped by police while hitchhiking during school hours Wednesday on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in San Anselmo with a 15-year-old youth from Fairfax.

The older boy dropped a plastic bag containing what the police believe to be 34 illegally made pills, according to Sgt. Albert G. Howenstein. The youth then ran through the downtown area of San Anselmo with Sgt. Donald Nelson, who was off-duty and not in uniform, pursuing him.

Nelson caught the youth at Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and Tunstead Avenue, where he was aided in holding the boy by two passersby until Howenstein arrived.

The 15-year-old was taken to juvenile hall on suspicion of being truant and for delaying an officer.

NIXON

Meanwhile, Nixon disclaimed any effort to make himself "co-President" with jurisdiction over foreign policy in advance of his inauguration—but he still maintains that to be valid, any long-term commitments abroad need his approval.

That, in essence, is the position the President-elect took, and made public through a top aide, after President Johnson made clear his determination to remain firmly in command until Jan. 20.

Bryce N. Harlow, an assistant to the President-elect, telephoned Johnson Thursday night, got a call back from the President yesterday. And sources said Harlow had assured Johnson that Nixon was "not attempting to presume upon the constitutional authority of the President."

As for Johnson, a Nixon associate said, "The President tried to make it clear that constitutionally, there is one President of the United States, there are no co-Presidents, with which Mr. Nixon is in perfect agreement."

This statement came after hours of apparent discord between Johnson and his Republican successor over Nixon's immediate role in foreign affairs.

Walter No Longer With Redwood Bank

Dale E. Walter, now president of Lincoln National Bank in San Rafael, is no longer senior vice president of Redwood National Bank as erroneously reported in yesterday's and Thursday's Independent-Journal.

Thursday's article, describing the reorganization of officials at Redwood National during the leave of absence of president Byron W. Leydecker, facing trial on a charge of possessing marijuana, omitted from the list of Redwood directors the name of W. J. Waksvik, now senior vice president and cashier.

DANA BLASINGAME
In Marin County?

Missing Girl Hunt Turns To Marin

A missing 5-year-old girl, Dana Blasingame, may be in Marin in the custody of her mother, Alison Blasingame, the child's father said yesterday.

William O. Blasingame of San Francisco said missing person bulletins have been issued for both his daughter and his wife.

The family lived at 162 Rollingwood Drive, San Rafael, until two months ago, Blasingame said. He said his daughter has waist-length sandy blonde hair and large blue eyes, and was attending kindergarten before she disappeared.

Three Admit Selling Dope To Sleuths

Three San Rafael men pleaded guilty in Marin Superior Court yesterday to charges of selling methamphetamine (speed) to agents of the Marin County Drug Abuse Bureau.

James Dewey Bell, 34, alleged by agents to be the leader of the three, admitted selling a pound of methamphetamine for $600 on Jan. 18. Officers have claimed Bell is one of the largest speed merchants in the Bay Area.

Pleading guilty to a charge that they sold an ounce for $110 Jan. 5 were Robert Drolla and Robert Nelson. Bell reportedly once told agents they worked for him, peddling his methamphetamine.

Deputy Dis. Atty. Ernest C. Zunino, on hearing the guilty pleas, recommended that additional charges of selgling and conspiracy to sell speed lodged against the men be dismissed. Judge Samuel W. Gardiner complied.

The guilty pleas came after Zunino had completed his opening argument in a trial scheduled to last two weeks. It took three days to choose a jury to hear the case.

Zunino said the district attorney's office is not bound by any agreement to recommend a sentence for the three or stand mute in the face of a probation department report.

Selling methamphetamine, a dangerous drug, is punishable by a sentence of one to five years in prison or up to one year in county jail.

Bell, Nelson and Drolla were arrested in February's narcotics roundup in Marin, which netted over 60 suspected pushers of marijuana and dangerous drugs. It climaxed a three-month undercover investigation by drug abuse agents and police.

Bolinas Driver Hurt In Crash

A Bolinas man suffered a cut knee yesterday on Shoreline Highway near Highway 101 when his car was struck from the rear by another auto, the California Highway Patrol said.

Officers said that Max B. Crosley, 32, had stopped in order to make a U-turn back onto Highway 101 when a car driven by Ward J. Kevin, 17, of 25 Matilda Avenue, Mill Valley, hit him.

Crosley's car then smashed into one driven by Gunther H. Brauner, 27, of 18 Heuters Lane, Mill Valley, officers said.

Crosley, treated at Marin General Hospital, was cited for making an unsafe stop in traffic, officers said.

HELEN HELP US!

George Should Move In And Help His Friends With All Expenses

DEAR HELEN:

Help!

I'm a college student rooming in an apartment building with a friend. Now another guy, George, moved in upstairs. He is lonely, so he comes down to our place. He suggested that he eat here and share expenses. Okay. But it hasn't ended there.

He's here 95 per cent of the time when he isn't at classes. He wakes us up by banging on the door. He has very odd hours for sleeping, believe me! He is not a bad kid, but if he's going to live here, why doesn't he move in and share the rent?—HENRY

DEAR HENRY:

That's not a bad idea.

If you can't fight 'em, ask 'em to join you.—H.

DEAR HELEN:

I am a 13-year-old girl and boys like me too much. I'm well developed, and I got started wrong. Now all the boys expect what I have given too freely. I'm getting so I can't stand boys as they are cruel and nasty, but I always think the next one will be different. He never is. I am very frightened that my mother and father will find out about my experiences. They both work long hours and I do about as I please. Girls hate me, and if I give up boys, I won't have anybody.—HATE MYSELF

DEAR H.M.:

If you want to change, you can! All you need is one person on your side. Look for her in your school counselor's office.

And remember:

Help for miserable teens is never as far away as you think. It's there for the asking.—H.

DEAR HELEN:

I'm against marijuana and other illegal drugs. A lot of kids in my town blow pot and take pills, etc. I have been told that if I associate with them I am as bad as they are.

I believe that everyone is entitled to his own values and beliefs, and why should I drop kids I like, just because they try what I don't like?

I'd never "turn on," but I don't want to turn them off.—TROUBLED

DEAR TROUBLED:

"To each his own values" is a worthy thought, but when it involves breaking the law, you must match it with another possibility: "Guilt by association."

If you want more than a very casual friendship with the turned-on crowd, you'd better examine your reason. Perhaps you're not so much loyal as tempted?—H.

Clothing's Trim Varies In Quality

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE,

I am so excited about the beautiful trimmings I see on ready-made dresses and yet I hesitate to buy them at a fabric shop because I am afraid they will not clean well. Does this type of trimming have to be removed before I have my clothes dry cleaned?

MRS. S.H.

DEAR MRS. S. H.:

This is a very difficult question to answer because there are so many inferior types of trimmings available. If you use a trimming of good quality, you would certainly not remove it before dry cleaning. You wouldn't remove the trimming from a ready-made garment before it was cleaned.

A reliable cleaner will check the trimming before he puts it in the cleaning solution to be sure it won't deteriorate. I have learned that if there is any doubt in the minds of the dry cleaners, they will hand clean the dress rather than take a chance.

DEAR EUNICE,

I have just about decided that with your wonderful help and ideas, I simply will never be happy with the kind of clothes I used to buy. They have no originality, and sewing with you is the greatest therapy I have ever found.

You have made me aware of unusual details, and I found one that really intrigued me. There was a very long, unlined stole to wear with a dress or coat in matching fabric. The ends had a type of loop fringe that wasn't cut on the ends and seemed continuous with the stole. How in the world was this accomplished? MRS. V.M.

DEAR MRS. VM.:

Thanks for your great words; it is fun to be a columnist and get happy letters from readers! The fringe you are asking about isn't really too difficult to achieve and is very effective.

Instead of beginning to fringe the fabric at the very edge, begin about one inch above the cut end of the stole. Fringe out twice the width of the desired fringe. Fold at the center of the area you have fringed and fasten the unfringed end to your stole. Usually, the cut end isn't turned over in a double hem, but simply catch stitched or slip-stitched to the single layer of fabric to keep it from becoming bulky.

This double, uncut fringe is also very attractive when applied as a trim inserted in the edge of collars, cuffs, pocket flaps, yokes or whatever.

TAILOR TRIX WINNER

Mrs. Darrell Van Wyk, Grinnell, Iowa, is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her following sewing suggestion.

"Have you ever tried to fringe a long piece of fabric more than an inch deep? If you have, you know how difficult it is to pull the threads without breaking them. Cut the time down to almost nothing by clipping the fabric to be fringed every few inches the depth of the fringe you desire. This makes short yarns to pull and you'll be finished in a jiffy."

DEAR EUNICE,

When I make a dress or jacket with a pattern that fits otherwise the shoulders are too wide and the sleeves sag. Should I put a dart in the back or can I change the pattern before it has been cut? MRS. E.R.

DEAR MRS. E. R.:

If you have this difficulty with all patterns, you are probably already aware of the amount you will need to eliminate from the shoulder width. I wouldn't suggest a dart in your garment but rather, altering your pattern before cutting.

Make a fold in the pattern, beginning at the shoulder and tapering gradually to nothing at the bust line. Don't remove all of the ease that is necessary for a comfortable fit. By removing the excess width in this way, you haven't changed the armhole or the sleeves, and it is a very simple alteration.

HELEN HELP US!

George Should Move In And Help His Friends With All Expenses

DEAR HELEN:

Help!

I'm a college student rooming in an apartment building with a friend. Now another guy, George, moved in upstairs. He is lonely, so he comes down to our place. He suggested that he eat here and share expenses. Okay. But it hasn't ended there.

He's here 95 per cent of the time when he isn't at classes. He wakes us up by banging on the door. He has very odd hours for sleeping, believe me! He is not a bad kid, but if he's going to live here, why doesn't he move in and share the rent?—HENRY

DEAR HENRY:

That's not a bad idea.

If you can't fight 'em, ask 'em to join you.—H.

DEAR HELEN:

I am a 13-year-old girl and boys like me too much. I'm well developed, and I got started wrong. Now all the boys expect what I have given too freely. I'm getting so I can't stand boys as they are cruel and nasty, but I always think the next one will be different. He never is. I am very frightened that my mother and father will find out about my experiences. They both work long hours and I do about as I please. Girls hate me, and if I give up boys, I won't have anybody.—HATE MYSELF

Create Illusion Of Trim Figure

The best way for a man to look thin is to get thin. But men who can't do that or don't want to can get an assist creating an optical illusion of a trim figure. Through the development of lighter-weight fabrics, lighter clothing construction and especially in newly-constructed models, there isn't a man in the land who cannot look trimmer than he actually is, says the American Institute of Men's and Boys' Wear. Some general tips for the hefty male: two-button, single breasted jackets are flattering; be careful about selecting a model with too much cutaway at the bottom of the jacket.

Zodiac Designs

This fall zodiac designs and bright paisley prints create more fashion interest in the already popular apache scarf for males. Other accessories to strike a man's fancy—enamel cuff links in wrap-around and bar designs; square-faced watches with gold chain bands.

During the evening hours Wednesday the couple were honored by 100 friends and relatives at the Pepperwood Lounge in San Anselmo. The reception climaxed the 50-year marriage which began with a ceremony at Star of the Sea Church in San Francisco.

OPERA REVIEW

Three Stellar Performances In 'Turandot'

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

SAN FRANCISCO — Three singers made a tremendous impression last night in the San Francisco Opera revival of Puccini's "Turandot."

In order, they were Romanian tenor Ludovic Spiess in his American debut as Calaf, the unknown prince; Covent Garden star soprano Amy Shuard singing her first Turandot in America, and soprano Jane Marsh, formerly of Mill Valley, singing Liu in her second San Francisco Opera appearance.

Spiess and Miss Shuard were wonderfully well matched in the sheer power of their voices. Neither one showed much freedom of movement — their acting was all in their voices, which were marvelously responsive instruments in expressing emotion.

RINGING TENOR

A young man who has been singing internationally only two years, Spiess has a virile, ringing tenor and imposing presence that should guarantee a brilliant future. At the peak of her career, Miss Shuard had the necessary glittering brilliance called for in the character of the cold, regal Chinese princess who condemns to death by beheading all suitors who fail to guess her three riddles.

Having heard the incomparable Birgit Nilsson in the role several years ago, we did not think anyone could approach her, but Miss Shuard came near it and perhaps showed better the melting of the icy princess by love at the end.

Although it had plenty of power, Jane Marsh's beautifully clear voice also had the warmth necessary for the character of the slave girl Liu, who kills herself rather than reveal the identity of the unknown Prince Calaf, whom she worships. Her major aria, "Tu Che di Gel Sei Cinta," was superb.

SEEMS SMALLER

Since her debut with the San Francisco Opera last year, she has developed a fluid grace and expressiveness of movement that is remarkable for her statuesque stature. This plus the contrast with the very tall Spiess and Ara Berberian in the role of Timur, exiled King of Tartary and father of Calaf, made her seem much smaller.

An interesting achievement of Berberian was his altering of the tonal color of his powerful bass voice to give it the aged sound of the old King Timur.

Of the three philosopher politicians, whose purpose seems to be comic relief, baritone Ingvar Wixell stood out both in acting and singing far above the two tenors, Raymond Manton as Pang and Alan Crofoot as Pong, though both portrayed their roles well.

For some reason, possibly because of sitting on a high throne back stage, Howard Fried sounded rather weak as the Chinese emperor.

SPECTACULAR SETS

Even though we had seen the same sets and most of the costumes in the original San Francisco production, they still seemed spectacular in their stunning use of color.

Giuseppe Patane conducted the orchestra in a way that brought out the strength and excitement in this music that is so much more mature and so much less saccharine than some of Puccini's work. The brasses and percussion were particularly strong, in fact too strong occasionally for the voices.

The chorus was in great form in the massive climaxes, but not so good in the quieter parts, such as in Act I, where unanimity of phrasing was lacking.

DRAMA REVIEW

Novato Again Swept By That Bash Fever

By KARL BARRON

"Bash" time in Novato can roughly be compared to lemming time in the far north. No one knows why the little animals give up everything else and head for the sea, but it happens. And in Novato, normally staid housewives remove their cloths and undulate toward the sea of faces which greets a bash in the Community House.

The Playboy Clubs and their hutch inmates are a natural for a Novato Community Players bash, so last night saw the birth of the "Bunny Bash," written and directed by Scott Wright.

Like its predecessors, this bash is a hodgepodge of popular songs and comedy bits tied together with the barest excuse of a plot and presenting Novato's most shapely ladies as barely as can be managed with a policeman playing a major role in the show.

It's an amusing evening, spotted with some really high moments, and generally well paced, although it dragged a bit at the end last night. Wright keeps his scenery at a minimum, so there are few waits, and he drives his performers at top speed.

Cute local gags help the show, such as the entertainers who have appeared, says emcee Mike Jones, ". . from coast to coast . . . Stinson Beach to China Camp!"

Two entities deserve special mention before we pick the better solo bits in the show: first, the "Bunny Brigade" dancers, eight lovelies who turn out some great precision dancing under Wanda Blackwell's direction; second, the Playboy Chorus.

Out of about 35 songs and production numbers, some stand out more than others, but the overall use of talent is good.

Vivienne Gerry and Don Leaf doing "Baby, It's Cold Outside" is a show-stopper, as is Leaf's "Brush Up Your Shakespeare" with Alex Consagra.

Patti Newman sparks the "Boca Bunnies" showgirl group, and teams up with Marie Consagra and Shirley Lane for a swinging "You've Gotta Have A Gimmick." Lois Wright, a mousey costumer, is transformed by a good fairy, and when she comes out literally roaring "I am GORgeous!" you'll be glad you came.

A smooth and sweet barber shop quartette called The Big Time Operators adds a lot to the show with one number in drag and another straight. Joe and Elaine Jacob do one of those comic ballroom dancing routines that seems so effortless that it's hard to believe the things going wrong are split-second timed.

POLICEMAN STARS

Otto Haiungs (the policeman) plays Hugo Heiferer, owner of the Novato Playboy Club, and does a passable job on "It's A Bore." And there are others — Curley Whisenhunt's "I Would Trust Her," for example. But my big objection to this type of show is that no matter how high the sound system is turned, the audience by act three is juiced enough to think it is a better entertainer than the people knocking themselves out on stage. Result, pandemonium. I don't know what the answer is.

"Bunny Bash" costumes are by Claudia Bliss, who also dances, and they are truly lovely. Musical director Marie Bliss appears singing "Free Again" pleasantly, and Lorayne Crozier does a yoeman's job of accompaniment on piano, with aid from Nick Shaffer at drums, and in one skit a bit of wild trumpet by Art Bliss.

"Bunny Bash" plays tonight and again next Friday and Saturday at 8 :30 p.m. Rumor has it they're almost sold out. Better check first.

CONCERT REVIEW

English Organist Shows Technique, Good Selection

By WILBUR F. RUSSELL

Martin Neary, organist of the parish church of the House of Commons, London, played a recital last night at the First Presbyterian Church, San Anselmo, marked by firm tempo and crisp technique in an admirably chosen program covering four centuries.

It fully revealed the beauty and variety of the organ's tonal resources.

Presented on the organist's first American tour was the premiere of the Kenneth Leighton "Et Resurrexit" (1966). Although in three distinct movements, the form of the piece could be described as continuous variation.

Its purely abstract designs are healthy and fresh, and the composer is not afraid to be tonal. For our taste this composer, born in 1929, has more interesting things to say definitely modern but not forced than many avant-gardists twice his age. The impression one remembers is that of a great rhythmic drive, which even in the slower and quieter sections is not allowed to flag. It was strong and vital all the way.

The opening Toccata and Fugue in CMajor of Bach was an excellent vehicle for Neary's discriminating taste in registration. He brought the toccata off briskly, closing the adagio with subdued registration, which served as a foil for the light organ tone of the fugue. Whether or not one agreed with this presentation, the phrasing was consistent throughout.

MORE BACH

The chorale "When in the Hour of Utmost Need" was followed by Bach Trio Sonata No. 4 in E Minor, treated crisply and with the movements excellently planned and executed as to registration.

Three pieces by John Bull for manuals showed the organist's respect for early music and utilized the contrasting colors of the positive organ well.

Thomas Tomkins' "A Sad Pavane for These Distracted Times" (1649) had a stately subdued theme that might well have been for our own times.

Tomkins encored with the allegro movement of the Bach Concerto in G Major.

Free 'Messiah' Concert Slated

OPERA REVIEW

Three Stellar Performances In 'Turandot'

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

SAN FRANCISCO — Three singers made a tremendous impression last night in the San Francisco Opera revival of Puccini's "Turandot."

In order, they were Romanian tenor Ludovic Spiess in his American debut as Calaf, the unknown prince; Covent Garden star soprano Amy Shuard singing her first Turandot in America, and soprano Jane Marsh, formerly of Mill Valley, singing Liu in her second San Francisco Opera appearance.

Spiess and Miss Shuard were wonderfully well matched in the sheer power of their voices. Neither one showed much freedom of movement — their acting was all in their voices, which were marvelously responsive instruments in expressing emotion.

RINGING TENOR

A young man who has been singing internationally only two years, Spiess has a virile, ringing tenor and imposing presence that should guarantee a brilliant future. At the peak of her career, Miss Shuard had the necessary glittering brilliance called for in the character of the cold, regal Chinese princess who condemns to death by beheading all suitors who fail to guess her three riddles.

Having heard the incomparable Birgit Nilsson in the role several years ago, we did not think anyone could approach her, but Miss Shuard came near it and perhaps showed better the melting of the icy princess by love at the end.

Although it had plenty of power, Jane Marsh's beautifully clear voice also had the warmth necessary for the character of the slave girl Liu, who kills herself rather than reveal the identity of the unknown Prince Calaf, whom she worships. Her major aria, "Tu Che di Gel Sei Cinta," was superb.

SEEMS SMALLER

Since her debut with the San Francisco Opera last year, she has developed a fluid grace and expressiveness of movement that is remarkable for her statuesque stature. This plus the contrast with the very tall Spiess and Ara Berberian in the role of Timur, exiled King of Tartary and father of Calaf, made her seem much smaller.

An interesting achievement of Berberian was his altering of the tonal color of his powerful bass voice to give it the aged sound of the old King Timur.

Of the three philosopher politicians, whose purpose seems to be comic relief, baritone Ingvar Wixell stood out both in acting and singing far above the two tenors, Raymond Manton as Pang and Alan Crofoot as Pong, though both portrayed their roles well.

For some reason, possibly because of sitting on a high throne back stage, Howard Fried sounded rather weak as the Chinese emperor.

SPECTACULAR SETS

Even though we had seen the same sets and most of the costumes in the original San Francisco production, they still seemed spectacular in their stunning use of color.

Giuseppe Patane conducted the orchestra in a way that brought out the strength and excitement in this music that is so much more mature and so much less saccharine than some of Puccini's work. The brasses and percussion were particularly strong, in fact too strong occasionally for the voices.

The chorus was in great form in the massive climaxes, but not so good in the quieter parts, such as in Act I, where unanimity of phrasing was lacking.

DRAMA REVIEW

Novato Again Swept By That Bash Fever

By KARL BARRON

"Bash" time in Novato can roughly be compared to lemming time in the far north. No one knows why the little animals give up everything else and head for the sea, but it happens. And in Novato, normally staid housewives remove their cloths and undulate toward the sea of faces which greets a bash in the Community House.

The Playboy Clubs and their hutch inmates are a natural for a Novato Community Players bash, so last night saw the birth of the "Bunny Bash," written and directed by Scott Wright.

Like its predecessors, this bash is a hodgepodge of popular songs and comedy bits tied together with the barest excuse of a plot and presenting Novato's most shapely ladies as barely as can be managed with a policeman playing a major role in the show.

It's an amusing evening, spotted with some really high moments, and generally well paced, although it dragged a bit at the end last night. Wright keeps his scenery at a minimum, so there are few waits, and he drives his performers at top speed.

Cute local gags help the show, such as the entertainers who have appeared, says emcee Mike Jones, ". . from coast to coast . . . Stinson Beach to China Camp!"

Two entities deserve special mention before we pick the better solo bits in the show: first, the "Bunny Brigade" dancers, eight lovelies who turn out some great precision dancing under Wanda Blackwell's direction; second, the Playboy Chorus.

Out of about 35 songs and production numbers, some stand out more than others, but the overall use of talent is good.

Vivienne Gerry and Don Leaf doing "Baby, It's Cold Outside" is a show-stopper, as is Leaf's "Brush Up Your Shakespeare" with Alex Consagra.

Patti Newman sparks the "Boca Bunnies" showgirl group, and teams up with Marie Consagra and Shirley Lane for a swinging "You've Gotta Have A Gimmick." Lois Wright, a mousey costumer, is transformed by a good fairy, and when she comes out literally roaring "I am GORgeous!" you'll be glad you came.

A smooth and sweet barber shop quartette called The Big Time Operators adds a lot to the show with one number in drag and another straight. Joe and Elaine Jacob do one of those comic ballroom dancing routines that seems so effortless that it's hard to believe the things going wrong are split-second timed.

POLICEMAN STARS

Otto Haiungs (the policeman) plays Hugo Heiferer, owner of the Novato Playboy Club, and does a passable job on "It's A Bore." And there are others — Curley Whisenhunt's "I Would Trust Her," for example. But my big objection to this type of show is that no matter how high the sound system is turned, the audience by act three is juiced enough to think it is a better entertainer than the people knocking themselves out on stage. Result, pandemonium. I don't know what the answer is.

"Bunny Bash" costumes are by Claudia Bliss, who also dances, and they are truly lovely. Musical director Marie Bliss appears singing "Free Again" pleasantly, and Lorayne Crozier does a yoeman's job of accompaniment on piano, with aid from Nick Shaffer at drums, and in one skit a bit of wild trumpet by Art Bliss.

"Bunny Bash" plays tonight and again next Friday and Saturday at 8 :30 p.m. Rumor has it they're almost sold out. Better check first.

CONCERT REVIEW

English Organist Shows Technique, Good Selection

By WILBUR F. RUSSELL

Martin Neary, organist of the parish church of the House of Commons, London, played a recital last night at the First Presbyterian Church, San Anselmo, marked by firm tempo and crisp technique in an admirably chosen program covering four centuries.

It fully revealed the beauty and variety of the organ's tonal resources.

Presented on the organist's first American tour was the premiere of the Kenneth Leighton "Et Resurrexit" (1966). Although in three distinct movements, the form of the piece could be described as continuous variation.

Its purely abstract designs are healthy and fresh, and the composer is not afraid to be tonal. For our taste this composer, born in 1929, has more interesting things to say definitely modern but not forced than many avant-gardists twice his age. The impression one remembers is that of a great rhythmic drive, which even in the slower and quieter sections is not allowed to flag. It was strong and vital all the way.

The opening Toccata and Fugue in CMajor of Bach was an excellent vehicle for Neary's discriminating taste in registration. He brought the toccata off briskly, closing the adagio with subdued registration, which served as a foil for the light organ tone of the fugue. Whether or not one agreed with this presentation, the phrasing was consistent throughout.

MORE BACH

The chorale "When in the Hour of Utmost Need" was followed by Bach Trio Sonata No. 4 in E Minor, treated crisply and with the movements excellently planned and executed as to registration.

Three pieces by John Bull for manuals showed the organist's respect for early music and utilized the contrasting colors of the positive organ well.

Thomas Tomkins' "A Sad Pavane for These Distracted Times" (1649) had a stately subdued theme that might well have been for our own times.

Tomkins encored with the allegro movement of the Bach Concerto in G Major.

Free 'Messiah' Concert Slated

The group of artists, whose assemblage of pictures is shown, has been several years in forming. It is with inspiration and purpose, that we conceived of this venture in what we prefer to think of as a museum of local contemporary paintings.

If within our group of paintings you find one that causes a pause, and a moment's reflection, then we feel our efforts and our purpose have been fulfilled.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Young Woman's Cold Hands, Feet Largely Due To Emotion

VAN DELLEN

A 25-year-old woman writes: "Many people share my problem — cold hands and feet. I have tried everything suggested, including two pairs of woolen mittens and socks, galoshes, insulated boots, and plastic liners worn close to the skin. I am not interested in using chemical and battery-operated gadgets. Can you help?"

Our reader has handled her condition well, with one exception—no attempt was made to find out why her hands and feet are cold.

In young adults, coldness usually stems from constriction of the smaller arterioles of the skin. Most sufferers, but not all, are females.

THE SYMPATHETIC nervous system regulates the size of the blood vessels. We have no control over these nerves, which also affect pulse rate, sweat glands, gooseflesh, digestion, and other functions. In individuals with cold limbs, this system is overly active and sensitive.

The sympathetic nervous system connects with the central nervous system and is influenced to a certain degree by stress-producing emotions such as anxiety, anger, and frustration. The skin also may be moist and slightly bluish.

Warmth lessens, but does not abolish, the coldness and skin color. Exposure to severe weather and emotional upheavals intensify sympathetic irritability.

WHEN THE CAUSE is on an emotional basis, it may be difficult to correct unless the person calms down. Tranquilizers may help. Drugs to relax the arterioles are useful, although the slight warming that takes place may not warrant ensuing side reactions.

This woman should learn to live with her problem, because it tends to improve with age and sophistication.

Hardening of the arteries is causative in oldsters with this manifestation.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the I-J.)

WORMS IN APPENDIX

A reader writes: When my appendix was removed, the hospital laboratory found pinworms in it. How did they get there?

REPLY

The appendix is a narrow offshoot of the intestine, which means that food, pits, and even worms can enter the structure. To the pinworms, this dead-end street is an ideal place to set up housekeeping. These intruders may be responsible for some cases of appendicitis.

SMOKING AND DIARRHEA

A reader arites: Does smoking aggravate chronic diarrhea?

REPLY

Tobacco increases the motility of the intestine and may aggravate an existing diarrhea, especially when it is caused by nervousness. Much more important is the question: What is causing the symptom? Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on diarrhea.

REST FOR MOTHER-TO-BE

A reader writes: Is it necessary for a pregnant woman to sleep two hours in the afternoon as well as eight hours at night?

REPLY

No, unless she needs the rest or the physician has prescribed additional sleep for some reason.

CLOSED FALLOPIAN TUBES

Mrs. H. H. writes: Can a woman with closed tubes conceive?

REPLY

No. The fallopian tubes must be open so that the ovum can reach the uterus, where fertilization occurs.

HEART AND COUGHING

D. T. writes: Is there such a thing as cough caused by heart disease?

REPLY

Yes, the dry, hacking type that occurs after exertion and when the victim lies flat in bed.

Today's Health Hint — Allow time for a leisurely lunch.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Young Woman's Cold Hands, Feet Largely Due To Emotion

VAN DELLEN

A 25-year-old woman writes: "Many people share my problem — cold hands and feet. I have tried everything suggested, including two pairs of woolen mittens and socks, galoshes, insulated boots, and plastic liners worn close to the skin. I am not interested in using chemical and battery-operated gadgets. Can you help?"

Our reader has handled her condition well, with one exception—no attempt was made to find out why her hands and feet are cold.

In young adults, coldness usually stems from constriction of the smaller arterioles of the skin. Most sufferers, but not all, are females.

THE SYMPATHETIC nervous system regulates the size of the blood vessels. We have no control over these nerves, which also affect pulse rate, sweat glands, gooseflesh, digestion, and other functions. In individuals with cold limbs, this system is overly active and sensitive.

The sympathetic nervous system connects with the central nervous system and is influenced to a certain degree by stress-producing emotions such as anxiety, anger, and frustration. The skin also may be moist and slightly bluish.

Warmth lessens, but does not abolish, the coldness and skin color. Exposure to severe weather and emotional upheavals intensify sympathetic irritability.

WHEN THE CAUSE is on an emotional basis, it may be difficult to correct unless the person calms down. Tranquilizers may help. Drugs to relax the arterioles are useful, although the slight warming that takes place may not warrant ensuing side reactions.

This woman should learn to live with her problem, because it tends to improve with age and sophistication.

Hardening of the arteries is causative in oldsters with this manifestation.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the I-J.)

WORMS IN APPENDIX

A reader writes: When my appendix was removed, the hospital laboratory found pinworms in it. How did they get there?

REPLY

The appendix is a narrow offshoot of the intestine, which means that food, pits, and even worms can enter the structure. To the pinworms, this dead-end street is an ideal place to set up housekeeping. These intruders may be responsible for some cases of appendicitis.

SMOKING AND DIARRHEA

A reader arites: Does smoking aggravate chronic diarrhea?

REPLY

Tobacco increases the motility of the intestine and may aggravate an existing diarrhea, especially when it is caused by nervousness. Much more important is the question: What is causing the symptom? Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on diarrhea.

REST FOR MOTHER-TO-BE

A reader writes: Is it necessary for a pregnant woman to sleep two hours in the afternoon as well as eight hours at night?

REPLY

No, unless she needs the rest or the physician has prescribed additional sleep for some reason.

CLOSED FALLOPIAN TUBES

Mrs. H. H. writes: Can a woman with closed tubes conceive?

REPLY

No. The fallopian tubes must be open so that the ovum can reach the uterus, where fertilization occurs.

HEART AND COUGHING

D. T. writes: Is there such a thing as cough caused by heart disease?

REPLY

Yes, the dry, hacking type that occurs after exertion and when the victim lies flat in bed.

The Monstrous Fraud At San Francisco State

Of these, between 800 and 900 were black students.

But because of the demands of this small minority, supported by a minority on the faculty, San Francisco State College is closed. The 18,147 students who enrolled there have all been defrauded.

AS A MATTER of fact, they were being defrauded before the college was closed Wednesday — closed by police at request of the administration to halt spreading destruction that accompanied a student-faculty strike. For days before that, many instructors had been cancelling classes "in support of the strike" by the Black Students Union. Others had called off tests and cut down on classwork because of absenteeism.

The fraud is now complete. The college is closed. President Robert R. Smith has announced it will remain closed "until we can open and operate in a more rational manner."

That may be a long time.

WE FIND IN EVENTS preceding the shutdown no indication that those who brought it about are interested in having the college open and operate in any rational manner. The evidence would indicate they might prefer that it remain closed.

Consider these events:

Last year, nine black students invaded the office of the Daily Gater, the student newspaper, and assaulted its editor, Jim Vaszko, because he had not censored from its columns remarks uncomplimentary to the Black Students Union. One of the nine was George Mason Murray.

However, Murray was employed for this school year as a part-time English instructor.

SCHOOL HAD SCARCELY opened before Murray began appearing on various campuses over the state, making inflammatory speeches which called for revolution and condemned with vile names leaders of the state and nation. These were brought to the attention of the California State Colleges Board of Trustees. The board passed the buck to Glen S. Dumke, chancellor of the state colleges. He requested president Smith of San Francisco State to transfer Murray to non-teaching duties. Smith refused.

Murray, apparently emboldened by this support, appeared at Fresno State the same day the state college board met there last month, and gave a speech to students in which, among other things, he declared: "To hell with the U.S.! To hell with the Bill of Rights! XXXX the Constitution!"

The following week, he told a gathering of San Francisco State students: "Bring your guns to school." (He later claimed he was misquoted, that he had told the students to carry guns "at all times" to protect themselves from "racist administrators.")

That was too much for Dumke. He ordered Murray suspended.

THE BLACK STUDENTS UNION promptly seized on this excuse for demonstrations in behalf of its newest "martyr." And, as always, it received support from some faculty members (doubtless hired, as was Murray according to president Smith, "according to established procedures.")

The Murray demonstrations, however, did not seem to be providing enough enthusiasm to seriously interfere with conduct of the college. So the Black Students Union on Nov. 4 called a press conference at which it announced 10 demands that must be met by the college, else the BSU would close it by a strike.

The demands were directed to president Smith. However, nobody bothered to give them to him until 4 p.m. on the following day — Nov. 5 — when he was told he must agree to them on the spot or the students would strike next day. Naturally, he refused.

For awhile, most classes were held despite the strike. But a growing number of teachers dismissed classes, black students who attended classes were hauled out bodily by BSU members, strikers invaded classrooms to interrupt proceedings. Acts of vandalism and arson began increasing. And 45 faculty members voted to go on strike if George ("To Hell With the Constitution") Murray were not reinstated.

The ridiculousness of the entire situation could not be better illustrated than by a notice which appeared on page 1 of the Daily Gater on Tuesday of this week. It read:

"NOTICE FROM THE DEAN OF STUDENTS OFFICE

"Individuals disrupting classes without the permission of the instructor will be subject to disciplinary action."

Permission of the instructor to disrupt his class apparently was not always lacking.

Thirty members of the San Francisco Police Tactical Squad were stationed on campus for protection. After they had twice been called out on Wednesday, president Smith ordered that the college close.

AND SO, 18,147 San Francisco State College enrollees have been defrauded. Parents of many of them, who scrimped to provide their children an education, have been defrauded. The taxpayers of California have been defrauded.

And worse than all this, another bleeding wound has been opened in the body of Freedom, by people who mouth the word without knowing or caring what it means.

Thank You, We'll Walk

This editorial might be titled "Nature's Revenge." It is written to call attention to the interesting revelation by a Bureau of Census survey made last year that showed people preferring hiking and walking to driving as an outdoor recreation.

It seems as though people are turning against the gas buggy as a means of enjoyment. A generation ago the Sunday drive was an American institution. Today, traffic congestion, the necessity of speed on the freeways, and the growing feeling that we had better enjoy our diminishing wilderness while there is still time, detract from the pleasure of driving.

Bouquets And No Brickbats

BOUQUET to the Tiburon City Council for finally moving to hire a city planning director — and at an $11,000 annual salary, which should assure some qualified applicants.

BOUQUET to Judge Harold Haley for refusing to follow a probation department recommendation that a marijuana seller be given only three days in jail. Such sentences for such crimes merely add to disrespect for law.

BOUQUETS to all the hardy souls who made the fourth annual Kennedy Memorial Hike on Mount Tamalapis today.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Rubin Appearance Essence Of Education

Thanks to Margaret J. Hammer for her comments ("What Our Readers Say," Nov. 13) on the "Controversy '68" appearance of Jerry Rubin at the College of Marin. I am glad that members of the community are taking the time to come to the college and listen to speakers who represent points of view which may be different from their own. This is the essence of the "Controversy" series and the essence of education itself.

The educational benefit derived from the meeting was that the students of the college (and members of the community) got the chance to hear Mr. Rubin express his own ideas, in his own words, without distortion or sifting or interpretation by the news media or anyone else. Mr. Rubin got the chance to either swell his ranks or expose his absurdity. Whichever he did, I leave up to the discretion of each individual who heard him speak, but the important thing is that each individual was able to hear it "from the horse's mouth." This is the responsibility of the Controversy Series and of education, and that reponsibility is being fulfilled.

Oh, yes, one more point; Jerry Rubin was paid $50, and not $500, as Miss (Mrs.?) Hammer stated in her letter.

Sausalito Teens Plead For Center

For years the youth of Sausalito have been striving for a place to call our own. So many obstacles seem to be in the paths of our efforts.

We, the members of the Sausalito Youth Center, are doing our utmost to be recognized by the city. We have been operating our own small youth center by ourselves. We need a permanent youth center here in Sausalito, but as yet have not found a way to obtain one.

Around 80 of we teen-agers have been working very hard with our own hands to keep this organization together. We need the help of our city government in order to reach our goal.

We are aware that the city is understanding of our goal and problems, but all we hear is "in the future," "we are doing our best," etc., etc . . .

Other cities in Marin County (i.e., San Rafael, Marin City, Mill Valley, Corte Madera, and Novato) have successful youth centers. Why can't Sausalito?

We are asking the people of Sausalito to help us by showing that they're with us . . .

We are capable of doing the work. We need their guidance.

Is it right that we, the teenagers of Sausalito, have to beg and prove ourselves so we can have what we should be offered? Is it right for the teenagers of Sausalito to have nothing to do? We need a youth center. Will our plea be heard?

LINES ON LIVING

Virtue Of Patience Lost In Mad Race With Time

By Rabbi HAIM KEMELMAN

There are no quick roads to inner redemption and no short cuts to self-fulfillment. The shackles of a lifetime of bondage are easier to shake off than to take on the disciplines of free men. This age of instantism has shown us this bitter truth. But do we recognize it? We all clamor for something. We all await the wonder of a deliverance that will give promise to our toil and fulfillment to our soul. But somehow, the gifts of heaven seem to elude us, redemption is away from us, rancor plagues us.

Have we made of our goods gods, and the jet that transports us the symbol of oue deliverance? Have we mistaken the ticket for a destination with a certificate for a destiny?

PACKAGED delivery has become the trademark of our rapid existence: a call, an order and a delivery. All you need is money; the rest is instant. The alienated, the disadvantaged, the rich, the poor, the young and old all demand delivery, impatiently, now: instant fulfillment.

It was bound to happen. It was inevitable. Because for too long we have confused speed with advancement, jet transportation with arrival, going places with attaining a goal, success with bliss. We have accelerated in traveling distances and conquered space, but not time. We are impatient with time. Time kills us. Time bedevils us. We are constantly rushing, in business and in leisure, on the job and on vacation, because we are afraid to confront the raw and living element of time. Some are so bored with time that they have a compulsion to "expand" it in liquid chemistry by blowing their minds.

IT WAS BOUND to happen, because when faith is in shortage, patience is a rarity. When power is pressure, faith goes up in bubbles, trust is dissipated and waiting is wanting. And so we are busy and neurotic, even while flying amidst pillars of lights and clouds. We conquer space, but do we conquer time and make it a meaningful element bu investing it with the anticipation and expectation of every minute and every hour as a welcome gift of life? Or do we press forward in irrascible mood, in ruthless pace, in the madness of a civilized rat race?

What we need today, and in great measure, is patience power: the power of plodding patiently, toiling honestly and ference between saint and sinwaiting faithfully. For the difference between saint and sinner, genius and the ordinary, we are told, is not so much in prowess of deed but in perseverence of heart. The first wait patiently and keep trying. The latter cannot endure in their rashness. And many are those who have failed not because they lacked talent or strength, but because they faltered in the disciplines of bearing and forbearing, persisting and persevering.

A CHINESE proverb has it that patience is power and that with time and patience the mulberry leaf becomes silk.

It is the strength that permits the interval between the thought of faith and the act of faith to germinate in a mood of sublime expectation; it is the power that distils impulse into wisdom and instinct into humanity; it is the "rest" signal that transforms the musical sounds in our life into a prearranged pattern of rhythmic beauty and symphonic depth; it is the wonder which gives time a chance, time that "was invented by Almighty God in order to give ideas a chance."

In The Caverns Of Wall Street Bets On Nixon Are Hedged

By MARQUIS CHILDS

NEW YORK — The great Nixon guessing game is being played in Wall Street as well as in Washington. The hints coming from those in the Nixon inner circle are no more than meager hints, since the President-elect is carrying on as he did in the campaign — cool, calm and collected.

No one really knows what his policies will be either at home or abroad. Nor can anyone be sure who will execute those policies. The best guess in the Street is that Richard M. Nixon concentrated so intensely on his campaign that his plans are still to be formulated. His prescriptions for the nation's ills in the campaign speeches were broad generalities. They conveyed no more than a vague sense of direction.

But the Street, which figuratively at least includes the great banking houses and their investment affiliates, is pressing harder for clues than even Washington and the politicians. For Wall Street must find a place to invest the billions of profit that American business rolls up from month to month and year to year. Because the Street is far more sophisticated than it was a generation ago, the simple formula of a fine Republican boom market celebrating a new Republican President (never mind how close it was) is as outdated as the Stanley Steamer.

THE GUESSING turns on computerized projections of earnings and performance, on graphs and charts, on an analysis of tax trends and the men in Congress who will shape tax policy.

Profit margins will be off in the first quartet of 1969. That is the projection of the computers. Therefore, the guess is for a mini-recession by, say, June of Nixon's first year in office. In the bearish view it could be a maxi-recession lasting until Nixon's money men pull the levers of the New Economics and pump some blood into the lagging stream.

Nixon promised tax reduction. He promised, too, to apply the brakes and check inflation. Does this mean holding the annual rate of price increase to three per cent as against the current rate of four per cent or more? And wouldn't that mean unemployment going from 3.7 per cent to 5 per cent or more? The increased load would be, by the rule-of-thumb of last-hired first-fired, in considerable part among Negroes where the rate has held at 10 per cent or higher. New and serious trouble in the core cities?

The 10 per cent federal income tax surcharge automatically expires on June 30 unless Congress acts to retain it. One hint out of the Nixon inner circle is that the new President will move to cut it to 5 or 6 per cent.

AND WILL President Nixon keep William McChesney Martin Jr. as chairman of the board of governors of the Federal Reserve System?

Another fiscal responsibility man, Martin has let it be known he wants to retire. But would Nixon keep him on as a symbol valued by a sizable share of the financial community to show Nixon's intent of maintaining the strength of the dollar and checking inflation?

One thing is certain beyond any doubt — the flood of money pouring into the stock market from pension funds and other institutional sources is creating new, upward pressures. Will economic performance in 1969 justify the rise in the market likely to grow out of these pressures? Here among those clutching at straws in the new winds is a sharp difference. One view is that the Dow-Jones average will break the 1,000 mark (currently 958) and go to 1,020 before the year's end. A doubter looking at the likelihood of lower profit margins says firmly no, probably under the present level.

ALL THIS is nonpolitical, as clinical as a conference of doctors considering a difficult diagnosis. These are men who must back their guesses with bets on how the market will go. They cannot wait until Inauguration Day and after.

To the outsider it has a curious air of unreality. The noon-hour crowds pushing through the sunless caverns, the hushed, almost-sacramenbanking houses in the top echelon, the guessing game over a generous lunch — this is divorced from the behemoth of a city that seems at darker moments to be reeling toward sure disaster.

ART BUCHWALD

Escalate Bombing Of South To Get Thieu To Talk Peace?

WASHINGTON — After five years of doing practically everything, the United States finally got Hanoi to come to the conference table. But the only trouble is that, although Hanoi has agreed to come to the conference table, Saigon is refusing to come. This leaves the United States in one bad spot, because it's always harder to deal with your friends than it is with your enemies.

The problem that everyone is working on now is, how do you get President Thieu to send someone to Paris?

MY FRIEND at the State Department has been working on this tricky problem for three weeks.

"There's a division of opinion on how to deal with South Vietnam," he said. "The Hawks want to bomb Saigon."

"What on earth for?" I asked.

"To save face for the South Vietnamese. If we bomb Saigon, then they can say they won't go to Paris until we stop the bombing. That's how we got the North Vietnamese to agree to talk, so there is no reason why it wouldn't work for the south."

"It makes sense. What's wrong with it?"

"THE DOVES say if you bomb Saigon it will just strengthen the South Vietnamese determination to keep fighting the war. They maintain we've been bombing parts of South Vietnam for years now and it hasn't intimidated President Thieu or Vice President Ky. It's just made Saigon's position tougher."

"What does the Air Force say about that?"

"They say we've been bombing the wrong targets in South Vietnam. If they could bomb the port at Camranh Bay and the city of Hue, then they're sure Thieu would see the light. But since they've only been permitted to bomb selected targets below the DMZ and on the Ho Chi Minh Trail, there is no reason for Thieu and Ky to talk peace."

"THEN THE AMERICAN military are insisting on all-out victory in South Vietnam?" I asked.

"They say we shouldn't have gone into South Vietnam unless we wanted to win."

"Is there any other way of getting the South Vietnamese to come to the conference table?"

"We were considering closing up all the U.S. Army PXs in South Vietnam, but that is a very drastic step and could turn world opinion against us. Without the black market South Vietnam would not be able to survive."

"It's probably against the Geneva Convention," I said. "Are there any alternative suggestions?"

"We could threaten to de-escalate the war, but that has its drawbacks. If we de-escalate the war, then we'd be dealing with Hanoi from a position of weakness."

"IT LOOKS AS IF you're not in very good shape."

"I guess our mistake was assuring South Vietnam they could win the war. Now they believe it."

"Couldn't you ask Ho Chi Minh to intervene and use his good offices on our behalf?"

"We have, but he says it's not his problem. We got ourselves into the mess; he claims we have to get out of it."

"A lot of people are wondering why we agreed to the bombing halt when we weren't sure Saigon would come to the peace table."

"It was a calculated risk. We assumed that once Hanoi agreed to peace talks, the Thieu government would agree also. Now it looks as if Hanoi knew Saigon wouldn't, and that's why they did. It shows you what dirty negotiators the North Vietnamese really are."

THE BLACK STUDENTS UNION promptly seized on this excuse for demonstrations in behalf of its newest "martyr." And, as always, it received support from some faculty members (doubtless hired, as was Murray according to president Smith, "according to established procedures.")

The Murray demonstrations, however, did not seem to be providing enough enthusiasm to seriously interfere with conduct of the college. So the Black Students Union on Nov. 4 called a press conference at which it announced 10 demands that must be met by the college, else the BSU would close it by a strike.

The demands were directed to president Smith. However, nobody bothered to give them to him until 4 p.m. on the following day — Nov. 5 — when he was told he must agree to them on the spot or the students would strike next day. Naturally, he refused.

For awhile, most classes were held despite the strike. But a growing number of teachers dismissed classes, black students who attended classes were hauled out bodily by BSU members, strikers invaded classrooms to interrupt proceedings. Acts of vandalism and arson began increasing. And 45 faculty members voted to go on strike if George ("To Hell With the Constitution") Murray were not reinstated.

The ridiculousness of the entire situation could not be better illustrated than by a notice which appeared on page 1 of the Daily Gater on Tuesday of this week. It read:

"NOTICE FROM THE DEAN OF STUDENTS OFFICE

"Individuals disrupting classes without the permission of the instructor will be subject to disciplinary action."

Permission of the instructor to disrupt his class apparently was not always lacking.

Thirty members of the San Francisco Police Tactical Squad were stationed on campus for protection. After they had twice been called out on Wednesday, president Smith ordered that the college close.

AND SO, 18,147 San Francisco State College enrollees have been defrauded. Parents of many of them, who scrimped to provide their children an education, have been defrauded. The taxpayers of California have been defrauded.

And worse than all this, another bleeding wound has been opened in the body of Freedom, by people who mouth the word without knowing or caring what it means.

Thank You, We'll Walk

This editorial might be titled "Nature's Revenge." It is written to call attention to the interesting revelation by a Bureau of Census survey made last year that showed people preferring hiking and walking to driving as an outdoor recreation.

It seems as though people are turning against the gas buggy as a means of enjoyment. A generation ago the Sunday drive was an American institution. Today, traffic congestion, the necessity of speed on the freeways, and the growing feeling that we had better enjoy our diminishing wilderness while there is still time, detract from the pleasure of driving.

Marin offers excellent opportunities for strolling and hiking. Few counties in the U.S. offer such a variety of beautiful scenery, flora and fauna.

BOUQUET to the Tiburon City Council for finally moving to hire a city planning director — and at an $11,000 annual salary, which should assure some qualified applicants.

BOUQUET to Judge Harold Haley for refusing to follow a probation department recommendation that a marijuana seller be given only three days in jail. Such sentences for such crimes merely add to disrespect for law.

BOUQUETS to all the hardy souls who made the fourth annual Kennedy Memorial Hike on Mount Tamalapis today.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Rubin Appearance Essence Of Education

Thanks to Margaret J. Hammer for her comments ("What Our Readers Say," Nov. 13) on the "Controversy '68" appearance of Jerry Rubin at the College of Marin. I am glad that members of the community are taking the time to come to the college and listen to speakers who represent points of view which may be different from their own. This is the essence of the "Controversy" series and the essence of education itself.

The educational benefit derived from the meeting was that the students of the college (and members of the community) got the chance to hear Mr. Rubin express his own ideas, in his own words, without distortion or sifting or interpretation by the news media or anyone else. Mr. Rubin got the chance to either swell his ranks or expose his absurdity. Whichever he did, I leave up to the discretion of each individual who heard him speak, but the important thing is that each individual was able to hear it "from the horse's mouth." This is the responsibility of the Controversy Series and of education, and that reponsibility is being fulfilled.

Oh, yes, one more point; Jerry Rubin was paid $50, and not $500, as Miss (Mrs.?) Hammer stated in her letter.

Sausalito Teens Plead For Center

For years the youth of Sausalito have been striving for a place to call our own. So many obstacles seem to be in the paths of our efforts.

We, the members of the Sausalito Youth Center, are doing our utmost to be recognized by the city. We have been operating our own small youth center by ourselves. We need a permanent youth center here in Sausalito, but as yet have not found a way to obtain one.

Around 80 of we teen-agers have been working very hard with our own hands to keep this organization together. We need the help of our city government in order to reach our goal.

We are aware that the city is understanding of our goal and problems, but all we hear is "in the future," "we are doing our best," etc., etc . . .

Other cities in Marin County (i.e., San Rafael, Marin City, Mill Valley, Corte Madera, and Novato) have successful youth centers. Why can't Sausalito?

We are asking the people of Sausalito to help us by showing that they're with us . . .

We are capable of doing the work. We need their guidance.

Is it right that we, the teenagers of Sausalito, have to beg and prove ourselves so we can have what we should be offered? Is it right for the teenagers of Sausalito to have nothing to do? We need a youth center. Will our plea be heard?

LINES ON LIVING

By Rabbi HAIM KEMELMAN

There are no quick roads to inner redemption and no short cuts to self-fulfillment. The shackles of a lifetime of bondage are easier to shake off than to take on the disciplines of free men. This age of instantism has shown us this bitter truth. But do we recognize it? We all clamor for something. We all await the wonder of a deliverance that will give promise to our toil and fulfillment to our soul. But somehow, the gifts of heaven seem to elude us, redemption is away from us, rancor plagues us.

Have we made of our goods gods, and the jet that transports us the symbol of oue deliverance? Have we mistaken the ticket for a destination with a certificate for a destiny?

PACKAGED delivery has become the trademark of our rapid existence: a call, an order and a delivery. All you need is money; the rest is instant. The alienated, the disadvantaged, the rich, the poor, the young and old all demand delivery, impatiently, now: instant fulfillment.

It was bound to happen. It was inevitable. Because for too long we have confused speed with advancement, jet transportation with arrival, going places with attaining a goal, success with bliss. We have accelerated in traveling distances and conquered space, but not time. We are impatient with time. Time kills us. Time bedevils us. We are constantly rushing, in business and in leisure, on the job and on vacation, because we are afraid to confront the raw and living element of time. Some are so bored with time that they have a compulsion to "expand" it in liquid chemistry by blowing their minds.

IT WAS BOUND to happen, because when faith is in shortage, patience is a rarity. When power is pressure, faith goes up in bubbles, trust is dissipated and waiting is wanting. And so we are busy and neurotic, even while flying amidst pillars of lights and clouds. We conquer space, but do we conquer time and make it a meaningful element bu investing it with the anticipation and expectation of every minute and every hour as a welcome gift of life? Or do we press forward in irrascible mood, in ruthless pace, in the madness of a civilized rat race?

What we need today, and in great measure, is patience power: the power of plodding patiently, toiling honestly and ference between saint and sinwaiting faithfully. For the difference between saint and sinner, genius and the ordinary, we are told, is not so much in prowess of deed but in perseverence of heart. The first wait patiently and keep trying. The latter cannot endure in their rashness. And many are those who have failed not because they lacked talent or strength, but because they faltered in the disciplines of bearing and forbearing, persisting and persevering.

A CHINESE proverb has it that patience is power and that with time and patience the mulberry leaf becomes silk.

It is the strength that permits the interval between the thought of faith and the act of faith to germinate in a mood of sublime expectation; it is the power that distils impulse into wisdom and instinct into humanity; it is the "rest" signal that transforms the musical sounds in our life into a prearranged pattern of rhythmic beauty and symphonic depth; it is the wonder which gives time a chance, time that "was invented by Almighty God in order to give ideas a chance."

MARQUIS CHILDS

By MARQUIS CHILDS

NEW YORK — The great Nixon guessing game is being played in Wall Street as well as in Washington. The hints coming from those in the Nixon inner circle are no more than meager hints, since the President-elect is carrying on as he did in the campaign — cool, calm and collected.

No one really knows what his policies will be either at home or abroad. Nor can anyone be sure who will execute those policies. The best guess in the Street is that Richard M. Nixon concentrated so intensely on his campaign that his plans are still to be formulated. His prescriptions for the nation's ills in the campaign speeches were broad generalities. They conveyed no more than a vague sense of direction.

But the Street, which figuratively at least includes the great banking houses and their investment affiliates, is pressing harder for clues than even Washington and the politicians. For Wall Street must find a place to invest the billions of profit that American business rolls up from month to month and year to year. Because the Street is far more sophisticated than it was a generation ago, the simple formula of a fine Republican boom market celebrating a new Republican President (never mind how close it was) is as outdated as the Stanley Steamer.

THE GUESSING turns on computerized projections of earnings and performance, on graphs and charts, on an analysis of tax trends and the men in Congress who will shape tax policy.

Profit margins will be off in the first quartet of 1969. That is the projection of the computers. Therefore, the guess is for a mini-recession by, say, June of Nixon's first year in office. In the bearish view it could be a maxi-recession lasting until Nixon's money men pull the levers of the New Economics and pump some blood into the lagging stream.

Nixon promised tax reduction. He promised, too, to apply the brakes and check inflation. Does this mean holding the annual rate of price increase to three per cent as against the current rate of four per cent or more? And wouldn't that mean unemployment going from 3.7 per cent to 5 per cent or more? The increased load would be, by the rule-of-thumb of last-hired first-fired, in considerable part among Negroes where the rate has held at 10 per cent or higher. New and serious trouble in the core cities?

The 10 per cent federal income tax surcharge automatically expires on June 30 unless Congress acts to retain it. One hint out of the Nixon inner circle is that the new President will move to cut it to 5 or 6 per cent.

AND WILL President Nixon keep William McChesney Martin Jr. as chairman of the board of governors of the Federal Reserve System?

Another fiscal responsibility man, Martin has let it be known he wants to retire. But would Nixon keep him on as a symbol valued by a sizable share of the financial community to show Nixon's intent of maintaining the strength of the dollar and checking inflation?

One thing is certain beyond any doubt — the flood of money pouring into the stock market from pension funds and other institutional sources is creating new, upward pressures. Will economic performance in 1969 justify the rise in the market likely to grow out of these pressures? Here among those clutching at straws in the new winds is a sharp difference. One view is that the Dow-Jones average will break the 1,000 mark (currently 958) and go to 1,020 before the year's end. A doubter looking at the likelihood of lower profit margins says firmly no, probably under the present level.

ALL THIS is nonpolitical, as clinical as a conference of doctors considering a difficult diagnosis. These are men who must back their guesses with bets on how the market will go. They cannot wait until Inauguration Day and after.

To the outsider it has a curious air of unreality. The noon-hour crowds pushing through the sunless caverns, the hushed, almost-sacramenbanking houses in the top echelon, the guessing game over a generous lunch — this is divorced from the behemoth of a city that seems at darker moments to be reeling toward sure disaster.

ART BUCHWALD

Escalate Bombing Of South To Get Thieu To Talk Peace?

WASHINGTON — After five years of doing practically everything, the United States finally got Hanoi to come to the conference table. But the only trouble is that, although Hanoi has agreed to come to the conference table, Saigon is refusing to come. This leaves the United States in one bad spot, because it's always harder to deal with your friends than it is with your enemies.

The problem that everyone is working on now is, how do you get President Thieu to send someone to Paris?

MY FRIEND at the State Department has been working on this tricky problem for three weeks.

"There's a division of opinion on how to deal with South Vietnam," he said. "The Hawks want to bomb Saigon."

"What on earth for?" I asked.

"To save face for the South Vietnamese. If we bomb Saigon, then they can say they won't go to Paris until we stop the bombing. That's how we got the North Vietnamese to agree to talk, so there is no reason why it wouldn't work for the south."

"It makes sense. What's wrong with it?"

"THE DOVES say if you bomb Saigon it will just strengthen the South Vietnamese determination to keep fighting the war. They maintain we've been bombing parts of South Vietnam for years now and it hasn't intimidated President Thieu or Vice President Ky. It's just made Saigon's position tougher."

"What does the Air Force say about that?"

"They say we've been bombing the wrong targets in South Vietnam. If they could bomb the port at Camranh Bay and the city of Hue, then they're sure Thieu would see the light. But since they've only been permitted to bomb selected targets below the DMZ and on the Ho Chi Minh Trail, there is no reason for Theiu and Ky to talk peace."

"THEN THE AMERICAN military are insisting on all-out victory in South Vietnam?" I asked.

"They say we shouldn't have gone into South Vietnam unless we wanted to win."

"Is there any other way of getting the South Vietnamese to come to the conference table?"

"We were considering closing up all the U.S. Army PXs in South Vietnam, but that is a very drastic step and could turn world opinion against us. Without the black market, South Vietnam would not be able to survive."

"It's probably against the Geneva Convention," I said. "Are there any alternative suggestions?"

"We could threaten to deescalate the war, but that has its drawbacks. If we deescalate the war, then we'd be dealing with Hanoi from a position of weakness."

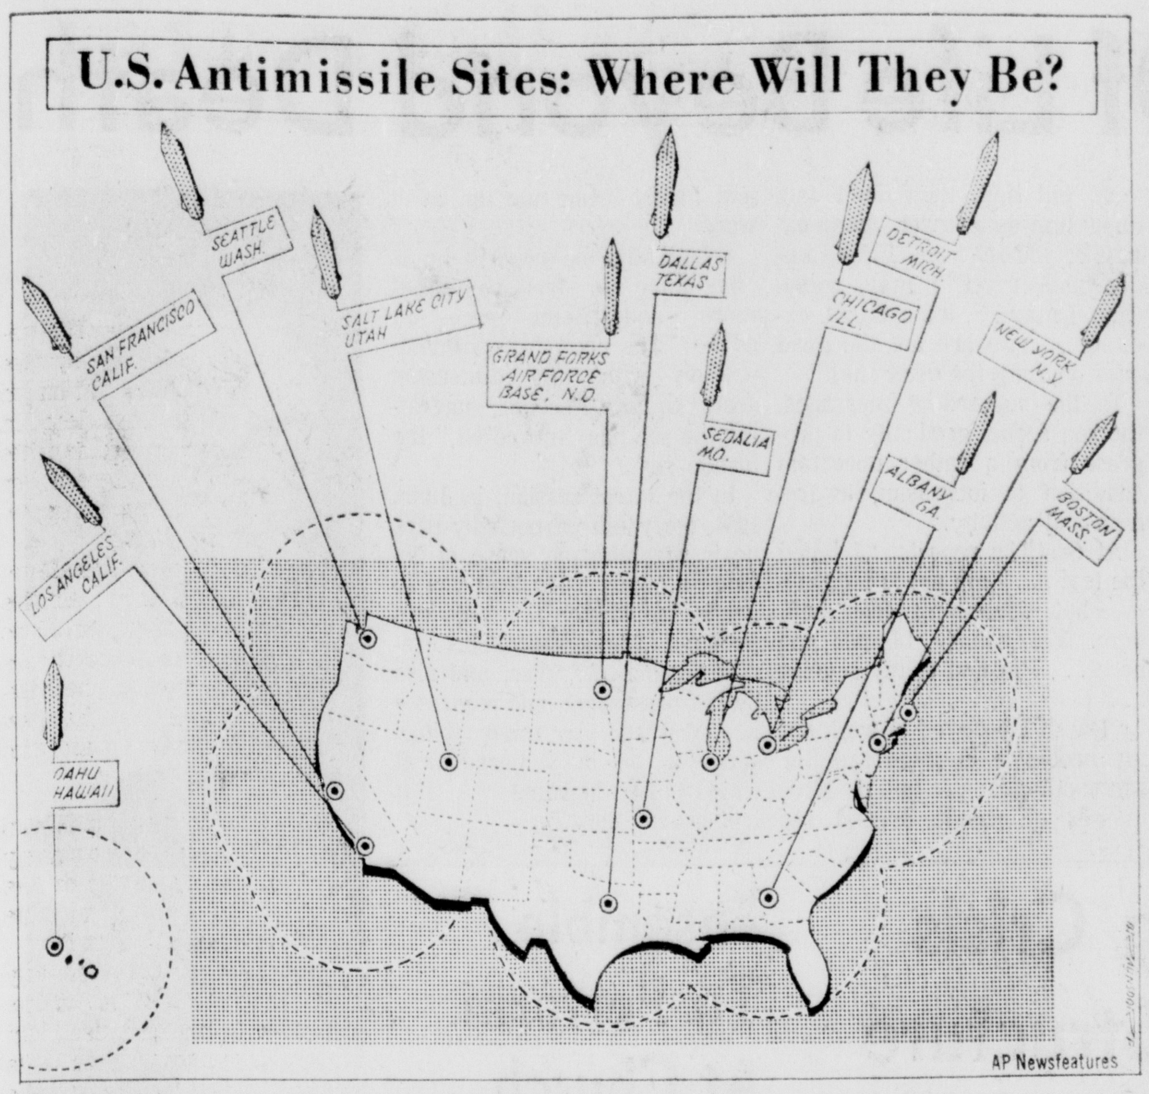
"I guess our mistake was assuring South Vietnam they could win the war. Now they believe it."

"Couldn't you ask Ho Chi Minh to intervene and use his good offices on our behalf?"

"We have, but he says it's not his problem. We got ourselves into the mess; he claims we have to get out of it."

"A lot of people are wondering why we agreed to the bombing halt when we weren't sure Saigon would come to the peace table."

"It was a calculated risk. We assumed that once Hanoi agreed to peace talks, the Thieu government would agree also. Now it looks as if Hanoi knew Saigon wouldn't, and that's why they did. It shows you what dirty negotiators the North Vietnamese really are."



Sentinel Chief Outlines Plans

By BOB HORTON
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U. S. general in charge of missile defense says some Americans don't particularly appreciate having antimissiles near their cities but the Army is determined to win them over peacefully.

Lt. Gen. Alfred D. Starbird says it isn't that people are repulsed by super weapons. Mostly they just don't want to give up choice chunks of land to the government.

"Generally, we haven't found that we are opposed on the basis of 'we don't want a weapons system,' " Starbird said. "There are some that feel this way, but they are in the minority. What we have found is that they wonder why it has to be next to them."

The major resistance, Starbird said, "is quite similar, I think, to the opposition that occurs whenever one takes a sizable piece of land for a purpose foreign to land-use in that particular area."

Or to put it more simply: "Usually there are elements of the city, or of the community who have plans for that acreage."

The tall, graying general, manager of the Sentinel system since 1967, also made these points:

Sentinel is designed against the Communist Chinese nuclear threat of the 1970s and not against the Soviet Union. But the United States may decide later to defend its offensive missile bases against Soviet attack.

The cost of Sentinel is going up. When then Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara approved it in 1967 the price was estimated at $5 billion. Cost refinements and price increases have raised that to $5.5 billion.

Thirteen areas are being studied by the Army for antimissile sites. Boston is a definite choice and will have a radar installation serving as the "eyes of the entire Eastern seaborad" in spotting enemy missiles approaching over the northern horizon.

Eventually the nation will have 15 to 20 Sentinel complexes, each with major missile and radar installations requiring about one-half square mile areas, the general said. Angel Island and Wolfback Ridge above Sausalito, along with San Pablo Ridge in the East Bay are being considered.

In addition to Boston, Detroit will have an antimissile battery, and Army engineers and public relations experts are zeroing in on 11 other locales being eyed for Sentinel equipment.

These include areas near Albany, Ga.; Chicago; Dallas; Grand Forks Air Force Base, N. D.; New York City; Oahu, Hawaii; Salt Lake City, Utah; Seattle, Wash.; San Francisco Bay Area; Los Angeles; and Sedalia, Mo.

In a question-and-answer session with the Associated Press, Starbird had this to say:

Q. General, when will this system initially be operational?

A. We've said in the early 1970s. We haven't, for security reasons, pinned it down any further.

Q. And the explanation is that we're timing it toward the first significant operational capability on the part of the Chinese?

A. It's timed against that threat. I don't want to go into it any further.

Q. Obviously, at some point in time, our cities with antimissile sites would be logical targets for enemy ICBMs. How do they react when your people go in to find ABM sites?

A. This has not been a major factor. It has been raised, but whenever it was raised it became evident to the individuals themselves who raised it that their area was already a target, and that a degree of defense is being added at this particular location which did not otherwise exist.

Q. What is the major opposition to your building antimissile sites?

A. The major opposition is quite similar, I think, to the opposition that occurs whenever one takes a sizable piece of land for a purpose foreign to land-use in a particular area.

What it amounts to is that those sites . . . involve an installation fairly close to a city. If there are already residents there, usually they hope the area would be used for parks or some conservation purpose, or at least, that it would be converted to housing of the same standard as their own. This concern is quite understandable — their worry. The outcome is usually a feeling of 'why can't you go somewhere else.'

However, with Boston as an example, by telling all we could in an unclassified manner as to why a particular location is selected we were finally accepted. Now we do our best to avoid anything that would have an unfavorable impact on any community. Our sites are not to be a group of smokestacks and antenna or industrial looking buildings. They have one large radar building and a small administrative housing area which we intend to be a neat and attractive area. We have certain additional underground facilities with security fences but they are much less industrial looking then many of the military installations that have been constructed next to communities and which have not hurt property values.

Q. Where are your training facilities?

A. Training facilities in embryo form exist now at Fort Bliss, Tex. They will be expanded.

Q. Where do we stand today with Sentinel deployment and production?

A. We have announced a total of 13 site areas. We normally go through with site selection in three phases of activity. And I'll explain this so you know the terms.

Before we publicly announce the location, we go through extensive map studies and system analysis type studies. We try to establish the general locality where a site would be most effective and, without entering any private property, through map studies and riding around the roads, establish that there are feasible Sentinel site locations there.

Then we go through a period of about three months, going on the property, getting necessary right of access, conducting a visual reconnaissance and surface investigation just to satisfy ourselves as well as we can before spending extensive survey and boring money that this probably is a satisfactory site. We usually refer to that effort as 'certifying candidate sites'.

From that we usually will pick one, two or more specific spots for further, more extensive engineering investigation. We call that the 'validation process.' It also takes three to four months. We put the drill rigs in and run boring holes. We may bring in a piece of gear to see what radio frequency activity is in the area.

Now with respect to Boston, all that has been done.

With respect to the other sites, we're still in the valid phase of certifying candidate sites.

REMEMBER TORREY CANYON?

Oil Shipowners Take Steps To Pay For Cleanup Chore

NEW YORK (BW) — Seven major oil companies have announced a proposed voluntary plan under which national governments would be compensated for the cost of containing or cleaning up oil spills that may occur off their coastlines.

The plan, to be incorporated in an agreement known as the Tanker Owners Voluntary Agreement Concerning Liability for Oil Pollution (TOVALOP), would also provide incentive for tanker owners to act promptly in such cases.

In general, it would permit tanker owners and national governments to deal more effectively with both minor spills and major disasters of the Torrey Canyon kind, which coated the beaches of England.

The agreement has been sponsored by British Petroleum Co., Ltd., Gulf Oil Corp., Mobil Oil Corp., Shell International Marine, Ltd., Standard Oil Co. of California, Marine Affiliates of Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey;, and Texaco, Inc.

The plan would be for participation by any other tanker owner, either private company or government, and would become effective when it is joined by companies representing 50 per cent of the world's privately owned tanker tonnage. The present seven sponsors account for approximately 30 per cent.

The companies said the agreement would encourage tanker owners to take immediate remedial action in the event of an oil split, and assure their financial ability to do so.

It would also provide a national government with machinery to make valid claims even when it has no legal obligation under international or local law to remove discharged oil or any legal right to recover removal expenses.

The agreement would also avoid jurisdictional and collection problems existing in present maritime law and practice.

Two organizations would be set up under the plan. One, the International Tanker Owners Pollution Federation, Ltd., in London, would administer the entire plan. Each company would be a member of the federation, which would have a full-time managing director and staff.

The other, the International Tanker Indemnity Association, Ltd., in Bermuda, would insure tanker owners for their liability under the plan.

The agreement would provide that a tanker owner would be responsible for cleaning up any discharge of oil that threatens to pollute or actually does pollute coastlines as a result of a marine incident attributable to the fault of the shipowner.

If the tanker owner is unable to clean up such a spill himself, provision is made for reimbursing the national government for its reasonable costs in the clean-up operation.

In either case, whether the costs are incurred by the tanker owner or a national government, the reimbursement would be limited to a maximum of $100 per gross registered ton of the vessel or $10 million, whichever is less.

Reimbursement would be made by the association to the tanker owner in either event.

In case of dispute as to whether a spill was caused by negligence, the onus would be on the tanker owner to prove he was not negligent rather than on the national government to prove that he was.

The plan, once operative, will remain in force for a minimum of five years, to be followed by successive two-year periods.

However, it will lapse after two years if by that time tanker owners representing 80 per cent of the world's tonnage have not joined.

THE SACRAMENTO WEEK

Political Guessing Games Much In Spotlight: What Of Finch?

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Political appointments continued to be the biggest guessing game in the state capitol with Lt. Gov. Robert Finch as the prime suspect for appointment to a national post. Finch who handled President-elect Richard M. Nixon's California campaign, seemed to be in a position which would give him his choice of the top posts in the Nixon administration.

Finch has indicated he is not interested in being attorney general or an aide to Nixon. He says he would be interested in being a U. S. senator from California, and those in the know claim he is also interested in the governorship.

If Finch should be named to another post, who would get the lieutenant governorship becomes an interesting subject of discussion. Some have pointed the finger at Senate President Pro Tempore Hugh Burns, a Democrat, while others have eyed Speaker-elect Robert Monagan of the lower house.

Either of these choices, however, might tend to upset the balance of power in either house. The 20-20 count in the Senate has worked well for Gov. Ronald Reagan because Burns has voted his conscience and not on a partisan basis. The 41-39 Republican majority in the assembly could be upset if Monagan left and the Democrats were successful in replacing him with one of their own men.

Conservative Reagan might even look to his defeated senatorial candidate, Dr. Max Rafferty, as a replacement for Finch. Thus Rafferty's political value would not suffer as much as being a defeated senatorial candidate and continued conservative backing is guaranteed.

Cash grants for assistance from the state department of social welfare increased by $1 million from August to September bringing to statewide total to more than $89 million, more than $9 million higher than for the same month a year ago. Also increasing was the number of cases, which reached 1,301,024 for September. The number of persons receiving medical assistance only or general home relief declined.

Total civilian population was set at 19,785,000, up from the 19,304,000 a year ago.

Allocations by the state allocation board totaled $5,512,627 for state school building aid. They were approved for the planning of schools, the purchase of sites, or the construction of full school plants throughout the state.

Appointments by Gov. Ronald Reagan this week included the naming of George R. Johnson, Long Beach attorney, to the state coordinating council for higher education. He also reappointed Lorenzo N. Hoopes of Oakland and William C. Bark of Stanford to posts on the same council.

A new law which became effective Wednesday requires all buildings which are built with city, county or state funds to have architectural barriers eliminated and to be readily accessible to and usable by disabled persons. The state announced its two new 17-story office buildings in downtown Sacramento, expected to be opened in February, 1969, will be among the first to be constructed with the needs of the disabled in mind.

Special ramps and automatic doors and other features will permit easy access for persons in wheelchairs, on crutches or suffering from other physical handicaps.

After 118 years, the Office of the Adjutant General of the been replaced by the new Office of the Commanding General, State Military Forces. Originated in 1850, the office has now been changed and Maj. Gen. Glenn C. Ames, who was appointed adjutant general by Governor Reagan in 1967, will became the first man to hold office under the new title. The military department consists of the office of the commanding general of the state military forces, the national guard, the California Cadet Corps, the state military reserve and the naval militia.

Speaker of the 1969 state assembly apparently will be Assemblyman Robert Monagan, minority floor leader during the 1968 session, who is unchallenged for that post now that the Republicans have a bare 41-39 majority in the lower house.

A battle over the speaker pro tempore post seems to be developing between Assemblyman Robert Badham, R-Orange, and Charles J. Conrad, R-Los Angeles. Badham says he has the votes to get the post while Conrad cites his previous experience as speaker pro tem in 1957-58 during the previous Republican administration. Badham is the leader of the conservative faction in the lower house.

Behind The News

This Week In The World

By U. P. International

In a sweltering courtroom in the Bible Belt town of Dayton, Tenn., 43 years ago, two of the foremost lawyers of the day clashed in a legal battle over a state law that forbid the teaching of Darwin's theory of evolution in public schools.

The climax of the "Monkey Trial" came when Clarence Darrow in the defense of John Scopes, a 25-year-old biology teacher who had deliberately broken the law to test its constitutionality, put prosecuting lawyer William Jennings Bryan on the stand.

In a hammering cross examination, Darrow challenged the fundamentalist Biblical beliefs of Bryan, who said everything in the Bible meant just what it said. Bryan's verbal attack was so blistering that some contended it was the cause of Bryan's death. He died within the week.

Although Scopes was convicted and fined $100, the case was never decided on the legal merits of the anti-evolution law. The state supreme court overturned Scopes' conviction on technical grounds.

The U.S. Supreme Court this week ruled on the merits of the law challenged by Scopes. The court decided unanimously the state laws prohibiting the teaching of evolution in public schools are unconstitutional.

The decision was the result of a second "monkey trial," this one held in Arkansas, one of the two states that still have anti-evolution laws. The other is Mississippi. The Tennessee legislature repealed the state's anti-evolution law last year.

Of the Arkansas statute that forbade the teaching that "mankind ascended or descended from a lower order of animals," Justice Abe Fortas said: "Plainly the law is contrary to the mandate of the 1st and in violation of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution."

The 1st Amendment guarantees freedom of religion and the 14th makes it binding on the states.

Around The World; Around The Clock:

WASHINGTON—In a meeting between the two and in contacts between their representatives, President-elect Richard M. Nixon and President Johnson were working in closer concert in the field of foreign affairs than would have been believed possible during the heat of the presidential campaign.

PARIS—The United States said North Vietnam was endangering the agreed upon expanded peace talks when it allowed its troops to violate Vietnam's Demilitarized Zone (DMZ). North Vietnam replied the charge was made "to hide American policy of aggression" and accused the United States of breaking a pledge that North Vietnam and the Viet Cong would have separate delegations at the talks.

WASHINGTON—The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) announced that three astronauts in an Apollo flight scheduled for Dec. 21 would orbit the moon 10 times at an altitude of 70 miles if all signals are "go" at an early stage of the flight.

VICKSBURG, Miss.—In the first ruling of its kind, a federal court jury decided that the White Knights of the Ku Klux Klan and three Natchez white men should pay $1,021,500 to the relatives of Ben Chester White, a 67-year-old Negro slain in 1966. The assessment of punitive damages in such cases would "serve as a deterrent" to similar acts, the judge said.

"It's a wonderful feeling," Mrs. Haupt said from her South African home. "I suppose this is one of the compensations of being the wife of a heart donor —the feeling someone who was very dear to me is still taking part in life."

The majority of relatives of heart donors have indicated they would, if they had their way, make sure there was never a shortage of donors for future transplant patients, a United Press International survey shows.

But there is a shortage.

St. Luke's Hospital in Houston has more than 25 potential recipients, Stanford University medical center at Palo Alto, Calif., lists a dozen, and other transplant hospitals around the world say they also have recipients waiting.

BELIEF UNCHANGED

Mrs. Haupt said months of thinking she has done since her husband died of a stroke Jan. 1, when he was only 24 years old, has not changed her belief that heart transplants should continue.

"It's wonderful to know that lives which would otherwise have been lost can now be saved through the magnificent pioneering work of professor (Christiaan) Barnard. I am very proud to know that through my late husband, I am associated with this great work," Mrs. Haupt said.

Blaiberg, 58, a retired dentist who received Haupt's heart Jan. 2 at Groote Schuur Hospital in Capetown, is the world's longest living heart transplant recipient.

Eddie Darvall, 65, also of South Africa, father of the world's first heart donor, Denise Darvall, 25, said he is "very proud" his daughter's heart was used in the Dec. 3, 1967, transplant to Louis Washkansky.

FATHER PROUD

"Knowing her heart was used to further medical science, I have the satisfaction at least of knowing she did not die for nothing," said Darvall. "Even though the recipient, Mr. Washkansky, died, I am proud to know a member of my family contributed to a major breakthrough in transplant surgery."

Gabriel Veliz, father of the 20-year-old butcher's apprentice who donated his heart June 28 to Maria Elena Penaloza, said, "If Christ died on the cross giving his heart to save mankind why deny the heart of my son if it can save someone?"

Veliz, who owns a tire vulcanizing shop in Valparaiso, Chile, said he, his wife and his surviving nine children would all give their hearts to save someone.

Carmen Cuello, mother of the 35-year-old man who donated his heart in Argentina's second unsuccessful transplant attempt, said both she and her grandchildren should be proud their father had helped prolong the life of another.

Mrs. Cuello said that "without a doubt" she would give her own heart for a transplant.

There has been some objection to the donation of hearts, but most of this has come when the heart was taken before permission could be obtained from relatives.

Pedro Contreras, 43, of Valparaiso, Chile, whose son Pedro Jr.'s heart was given to Nelson Orellano Sanchez, Oct. 1, accepted doctors' explanation that his son's clinical death had been confirmed and that the 17-year-old boy's heart had saved Orellana, who was dying of a distended heart.

A suit was threatened in Capetown after the heart of an unidentified woman was transplanted into Petrus Smith without permission being obtained from the woman's relatives.

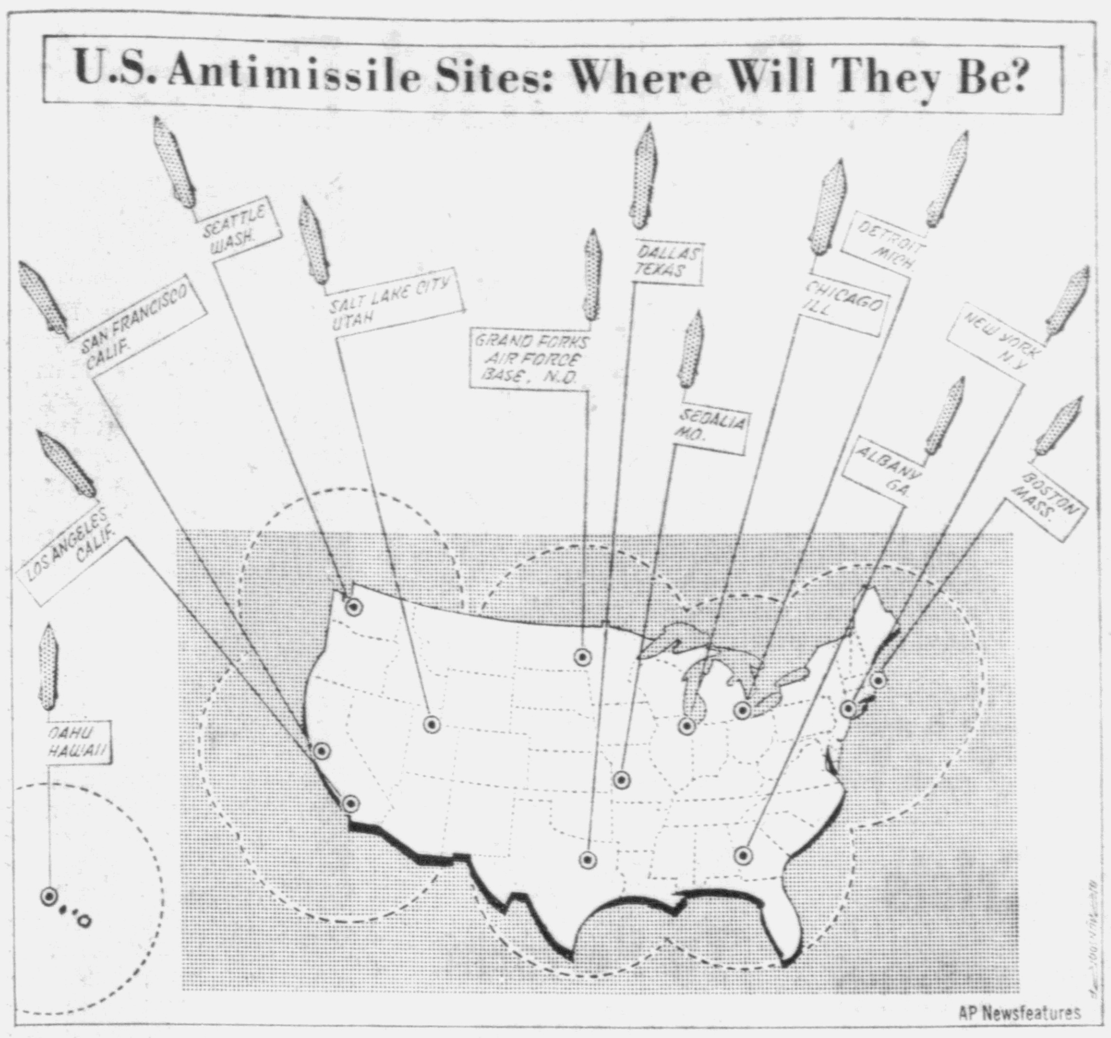
RELATIVES UNAVAILABLE

Evidence points strongly to the donor being Evelyn Jacobs, a South African servant who died Sept. 7 of brain hemorrhage at Groote Schuur Hospital. The hospital confirmed the heart was removed from the woman following special health department permission when the donor's relatives could not be found in time to give consent.

While controversy over the identity of the donor grew, Miss Jacobs' cousin Benjamin Tsindi told reporters he was taken to the Groote Schuur mortuary and shown the face of a dead woman he identified as Miss Jacobs. He said he was not shown the rest of the body, which was wrapped in a sheet.

Tsindi said he and members of the family were dissatisfied about the removal of Miss Jacobs' heart and threatened to demand its return.

TICKLISH QUESTION — Dr. Christiaan Barnard, pioneer heart transplant surgeon, discusses with Columbia Broadcasting newsman Walter Cronkite (left) the problem of securing donor organs for the life-saving operations which are being performed in South Africa, Palo Alto, Houston, Tex., and elsewhere in the world. Survivors of some heart donors are proud, others disturbed over the operations.



U.S. Antimissile Sites: Where Will They Be?

Sentinel Chief Outlines Plans

By BOB HORTON
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U. S. general in charge of missile defense says some Americans don't particularly appreciate having antimissiles near their cities but the Army is determined to win them over peacefully.

Lt. Gen. Alfred D. Starbird says it isn't that people are repulsed by super weapons. Mostly they just don't want to give up choice chunks of land to the government.

"Generally, we haven't found that we are opposed on the basis of 'we don't want a weapons system,' " Starbird said. "There are some that feel this way, but they are in the minority. What we have found is that they wonder why it has to be next to them."

The major resistance, Starbird said, "is quite similar, I think, to the opposition that occurs whenever one takes a sizable piece of land for a purpose foreign to land-use in that particular area."

Or to put it more simply: "Usually there are elements of the city, or of the community who have plans for that acreage."

The tall, graying general, manager of the Sentinel system since 1967, also made these points:

Sentinel is designed against the Communist Chinese nuclear threat of the 1970s and not against the Soviet Union. But the United States may decide later to defend its offensive missile bases against Soviet attack.

The cost of Sentinel is going up. When then Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara approved it in 1967 the price was estimated at $5 billion. Cost refinements and price increases have raised that to $5.5 billion.

Thirteen areas are being studied by the Army for antimissile sites. Boston is a definite choice and will have a radar installation serving as the "eyes of the entire Eastern seaborad" in spotting enemy missiles approaching over the northern horizon.

Eventually the nation will have 15 to 20 Sentinel complexes, each with major missile and radar installations requiring about one-half square mile areas, the general said. Angel Island and Wolfback Ridge above Sausalito, along with San Pablo Ridge in the East Bay are being considered.

In addition to Boston, Detroit will have an antimissile battery, and Army engineers and public relations experts are zeroing in on 11 other locales being eyed for Sentinel equipment.

These include areas near Albany, Ga.; Chicago; Dallas; Grand Forks Air Force Base, N. D.; New York City; Oahu, Hawaii; Salt Lake City, Utah; Seattle, Wash.; San Francisco Bay Area; Los Angeles; and Sedalia, Mo.

In a question-and-answer session with the Associated Press, Starbird had this to say:

Q. General, when will this system initially be operational?

A. We've said in the early 1970s. We haven't, for security reasons, pinned it down any further.

Q. And the explanation is that we're timing it toward the first significant operational capability on the part of the Chinese?

A. It's timed against that threat. I don't want to go into it any further.

Q. Obviously, at some point in time, our cities with antimissile sites would be logical targets for enemy ICBMs. How do they react when your people go in to find ABM sites?

A. This has not been a major factor. It has been raised, but whenever it was raised it became evident to the individuals themselves who raised it that their area was already a target, and that a degree of defense is being added at this particular location which did not otherwise exist.

Q. What is the major opposition to your building antimissile sites?

A. The major opposition is quite similar, I think, to the opposition that occurs whenever one takes a sizable piece of land for a purpose foreign to land-use in a particular area.

What it amounts to is that those sites . . . involve an installation fairly close to a city. If there are already residents there, usually they hope the area would be used for parks or some conservation purpose, or at least, that it would be converted to housing of the same standard as their own. This concern is quite understandable — their worry. The outcome is usually a feeling of 'why can't you go somewhere else.'

However, with Boston as an example, by telling all we could in an unclassified manner as to why a particular location is selected we were finally accepted. Now we do our best to avoid anything that would have an unfavorable impact on any community. Our sites are not to be a group of smokestacks and antenna or industrial looking buildings. They have one large radar building and a small administrative housing area which we intend to be a neat and attractive area. We have certain additional underground facilities with security fences but they are much less industrial looking then many of the military installations that have been constructed next to communities and which have not hurt property values.

Q. Where are your training facilities?

A. Training facilities in embryo form exist now at Fort Bliss, Tex. They will be expanded.

Q. Where do we stand today with Sentinel deployment and production?

A. We have announced a total of 13 site areas. We normally go through with site selection in three phases of activity. And I'll explain this so you know the terms.

Before we publicly announce the location, we go through extensive map studies and system analysis type studies. We try to establish the general locality where a site would be most effective and, without entering any private property, through map studies and riding around the roads, establish that there are feasible Sentinel site locations there.

Then we go through a period of about three months, going on the property, getting necessary right of access, conducting a visual reconnaissance and surface investigation just to satisfy ourselves as well as we can before spending extensive survey and boring money that this probably is a satisfactory site. We usually refer to that effort as 'certifying candidate sites'.

From that we usually will pick one, two or more specific spots for further, more extensive engineering investigation. We call that the 'validation process.' It also takes three to four months. We put the drill rigs in and run boring holes. We may bring in a piece of gear to see what radio frequency activity is in the area.

Now with respect to Boston, all that has been done.

With respect to the other sites, we're still in the valid phase of certifying candidate sites.

REMEMBER TORREY CANYON?

Oil Shipowners Take Steps To Pay For Cleanup Chore

NEW YORK (BW) — Seven major oil companies have announced a proposed voluntary plan under which national governments would be compensated for the cost of containing or cleaning up oil spills that may occur off their coastlines.

The plan, to be incorporated in an agreement known as the Tanker Owners Voluntary Agreement Concerning Liability for Oil Pollution (TOVALOP), would also provide incentive for tanker owners to act promptly in such cases.

In general, it would permit tanker owners and national governments to deal more effectively with both minor spills and major disasters of the Torrey Canyon kind, which coated the beaches of England.

The agreement has been sponsored by British Petroleum Co., Ltd., Gulf Oil Corp., Mobil Oil Corp., Shell International Marine, Ltd., Standard Oil Co. of California, Marine Affiliates of Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey;, and Texaco, Inc.

The plan would be for participation by any other tanker owner, either private company or government, and would become effective when it is joined by companies representing 50 per cent of the world's privately owned tanker tonnage. The present seven sponsors account for approximately 30 per cent.

The companies said the agreement would encourage tanker owners to take immediate remedial action in the event of an oil split, and assure their financial ability to do so.

It would also provide a national government with machinery to make valid claims even when it has no legal obligation under international or local law to remove discharged oil or any legal right to recover removal expenses.

The agreement would also avoid jurisdictional and collection problems existing in present maritime law and practice.

Two organizations would be set up under the plan. One, the International Tanker Owners Pollution Federation, Ltd., in London, would administer the entire plan. Each company would be a member of the federation, which would have a full-time managing director and staff.

The other, the International Tanker Indemnity Association, Ltd., in Bermuda, would insure tanker owners for their liability under the plan.

The agreement would provide that a tanker owner would be responsible for cleaning up any discharge of oil that threatens to pollute or actually does pollute coastlines as a result of a marine incident attributable to the fault of the shipowner.

If the tanker owner is unable to clean up such a spill himself, provision is made for reimbursing the national government for its reasonable costs in the clean-up operation.

In either case, whether the costs are incurred by the tanker owner or a national government, the reimbursement would be limited to a maximum of $100 per gross registered ton of the vessel or $10 million, whichever is less.

Reimbursement would be made by the association to the tanker owner in either event.

In case of dispute as to whether a spill was caused by negligence, the onus would be on the tanker owner to prove he was not negligent rather than on the national government to prove that he was.

The plan, once operative, will remain in force for a minimum of five years, to be followed by successive two-year periods.

However, it will lapse after two years if by that time tanker owners representing 80 per cent of the world's tonnage have not joined.

THE SACRAMENTO WEEK

Political Guessing Games Much In Spotlight: What Of Finch?

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Political appointments continued to be the biggest guessing game in the state capitol with Lt. Gov. Robert Finch as the prime suspect for appointment to a national post. Finch who handled President-elect Richard M. Nixon's California campaign, seemed to be in a position which would give him his choice of the top posts in the Nixon administration.

Finch has indicated he is not interested in being attorney general or an aide to Nixon. He says he would be interested in being a U. S. senator from California, and those in the know claim he is also interested in the governorship.

If Finch should be named to another post, who would get the lieutenant governorship becomes an interesting subject of discussion. Some have pointed the finger at Senate President Pro Tempore Hugh Burns, a Democrat, while others have eyed Speaker-elect Robert Monagan of the lower house.

Either of these choices, however, might tend to upset the balance of power in either house. The 20-20 count in the Senate has worked well for Gov. Ronald Reagan because Burns has voted his conscience and not on a partisan basis. The 41-39 Republican majority in the assembly could be upset if Monagan left and the Democrats were successful in replacing him with one of their own men.

Conservative Reagan might even look to his defeated senatorial candidate, Dr. Max Rafferty, as a replacement for Finch. Thus Rafferty's political value would not suffer as much as being a defeated senatorial candidate and continued conservative backing is guaranteed.

Cash grants for assistance from the state department of social welfare increased by $1 million from August to September bringing to statewide total to more than $89 million, more than $9 million higher than for the same month a year ago. Also increasing was the number of cases, which reached 1,301,024 for September. The number of persons receiving medical assistance only or general home relief declined.

Total civilian population was set at 19,785,000, up from the 19,304,000 a year ago.

Allocations by the state allocation board totaled $5,512,627 for state school building aid. They were approved for the planning of schools, the purchase of sites, or the construction of full school plants throughout the state.

Appointments by Gov. Ronald Reagan this week included the naming of George R. Johnson, Long Beach attorney, to the state coordinating council for higher education. He also reappointed Lorenzo N. Hoopes of Oakland and William C. Bark of Stanford to posts on the same council.

A new law which became effective Wednesday requires all buildings which are built with city, county or state funds to have architectural barriers eliminated and to be readily accessible to and usable by disabled persons. The state announced its two new 17-story office buildings in downtown Sacramento, expected to be opened in February, 1969, will be among the first to be constructed with the needs of the disabled in mind.

Special ramps and automatic doors and other features will permit easy access for persons in wheelchairs, on crutches or suffering from other physical handicaps.

After 118 years, the Office of the Adjutant General of the been replaced by the new Office of the Commanding General, State Military Forces. Originated in 1850, the office has now been changed and Maj. Gen. Glenn C. Ames, who was appointed adjutant general by Governor Reagan in 1967, will became the first man to hold office under the new title. The military department consists of the office of the commanding general of the state military forces, the national guard, the California Cadet Corps, the state military reserve and the naval militia.

Speaker of the 1969 state assembly apparently will be Assemblyman Robert Monagan, minority floor leader during the 1968 session, who is unchallenged for that post now that the Republicans have a bare 41-39 majority in the lower house.

A battle over the speaker pro tempore post seems to be developing between Assemblyman Robert Badham, R-Orange, and Charles J. Conrad, R-Los Angeles. Badham says he has the votes to get the post while Conrad cites his previous experience as speaker pro tem in 1957-58 during the previous Republican administration. Badham is the leader of the conservative faction in the lower house.

Behind The News

This Week In The World

By U. P. International

In a sweltering courtroom in the Bible Belt town of Dayton, Tenn., 43 years ago, two of the foremost lawyers of the day clashed in a legal battle over a state law that forbid the teaching of Darwin's theory of evolution in public schools.

The climax of the "Monkey Trial" came when Clarence Darrow in the defense of John Scopes, a 25-year-old biology teacher who had deliberately broken the law to test its constitutionality, put prosecuting lawyer William Jennings Bryan on the stand.

In a hammering cross examination, Darrow challenged the fundamentalist Biblical beliefs of Bryan, who said everything in the Bible meant just what it said. Bryan's verbal attack was so blistering that some contended it was the cause of Bryan's death. He died within the week.

Although Scopes was convicted and fined $100, the case was never decided on the legal merits of the anti-evolution law. The state supreme court overturned Scopes' conviction on technical grounds.

The U.S. Supreme Court this week ruled on the merits of the law challenged by Scopes. The court decided unanimously the state laws prohibiting the teaching of evolution in public schools are unconstitutional.

The decision was the result of a second "monkey trial," this one held in Arkansas, one of the two states that still have anti-evolution laws. The other is Mississippi. The Tennessee legislature repealed the state's anti-evolution law last year.

Of the Arkansas statute that forbade the teaching that "mankind ascended or descended from a lower order of animals," Justice Abe Fortas said: "Plainly the law is contrary to the mandate of the 1st and in violation of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution."

The 1st Amendment guarantees freedom of religion and the 14th makes it binding on the states.

Around The World; Around The Clock:

WASHINGTON—In a meeting between the two and in contacts between their representatives, President-elect Richard M. Nixon and President Johnson were working in closer concert in the field of foreign affairs than would have been believed possible during the heat of the presidential campaign.

PARIS—The United States said North Vietnam was endangering the agreed upon expanded peace talks when it allowed its troops to violate Vietnam's Demilitarized Zone (DMZ). North Vietnam replied the charge was made "to hide American policy of aggression" and accused the United States of breaking a pledge that North Vietnam and the Viet Cong would have separate delegations at the talks.

WASHINGTON—The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) announced that three astronauts in an Apollo flight scheduled for Dec. 21 would orbit the moon 10 times at an altitude of 70 miles if all signals are "go" at an early stage of the flight.

VICKSBURG, Miss.—In the first ruling of its kind, a federal court jury decided that the White Knights of the Ku Klux Klan and three Natchez white men should pay $1,021,500 to the relatives of Ben Chester White, a 67-year-old Negro slain in 1966. The assessment of punitive damages in such cases would "serve as a deterrent" to similar acts, the judge said.

TRANSPLANT ORGANS NEEDED

Most Donors' Survivors Feel Proud Of Kin's Role

Dorothy Haupt, whose husband Clive's heart beats in the body of Dr. Philip Blaiberg, sorrows, but still feels that Clive is with her even today.

Bishop Pike Becomes Supporter Of Life Beyond Death

NEW YORK (AP) — Episcopal Bishop James A. Pike, often criticized for discounting some aspects of Christian doctrine, has become a firm and outspoken advocate of its primary belief—life beyond death.

"It's indifated by the empirical data," he remarked in an interview. "It's the most plausible conclusion."

For more than two years, the bishop has been probing psychic phenomena, along with numerous sessions in which he reports apparent communication with various deceased persons, including his son, James Jr., who killed himself Feb. 4, 1966, at the age of 20.

After examining critically other possible alternatives, he says the most reasonable explanation is "the affirmation of life after death."

Now a staff member of the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions, of Santa Barbara, Bishop Pike details his case in a new book, published by Doubleday, called "The Other Side."

Asked what that other realm is like on the basis of what the bishop said was apparent messages from it, he replied, "It seems hard to describe in our terms, just as it's hard for us to tell what vichyssoise tastes like. You say it's salty. But what's salt?

"It's a whole different plane of existence. It seems to be a kind of a growth from 'strength to strength,' much as the prayerbook puts it. But it's not all heaven or hell, but a growing, or else a shriveling."

In his clinically analytical account, the bishop, a one-time attorney and Navy Intelligence officer, subjects his experiences to rigorous questioning, seeking natural explanations when possible, but often finding none.

The result, he says, "enables me to affirm life after death as the natural thing to expect of the human psyche, which already seems to be in eternal life."

His investigations were triggered by a series of strange occurrences—objects moving, clocks stopping at the time his son died—which took place in an apartment in Cambridge, England, shortly after his son's death in New York.

Two assistants witnessed the phenomena. Baffled, finally assuming his son was trying to communicate with him, the bishop consulted a British clergyman, who suggested he see a London spiritual medium, Emma Twigg.

Along with that first meeting with her, on March 2, 1966, the bishop describes a dozen sessions with various mediums, both in this country and in England, continuing up to June of this year.

In most cases, he had other witnesses with him, present stenographic notes or excerpts from tape recordings of many sessions.

The bishop reports apparent messages from several persons who have died besides his son, including the late great theologian, Paul Tillich, a long-time friend and mentor of Bishop Pike.

At first, the bishop's son seems in a disturbed state, and purportedly says that "nothing I've seen over here makes me any more inclined to believe in God."

Later, in June, 1968, the son supposedly reports that his companions "talk about" Jesus. "Oh, but dad, they don't talk about him as a savior. As an example, you see? . . . I don't understand it yet. I may, sometime, I may . . . it's exciting, exciting . . . we are not the dead ones, you are the dead ones."

In the succeeding messages, the son seems gradually to progress from a rather uncertain condition to increasing awareness and activity.

At first, he reports, "I failed the test . . . I am not in purgatory, but something like hell, here. Yet nobody blames me here . . . I'm tied to my regrets . . .

"I wish I'd stayed to work out my problems in more familiar surroundings . . . but I have masses of people around me and hands lifting me up, as it were."

Eventually, he reports he is "beginning to feel somewhat more and home—more at peace." His need for communication with this dimension seems to have lessened, suggesting the son has "moved on," the bishop says.

In the latest session, in June, 1968, the youth purportedly says he is regaining a "sense of belonging again. They lead you so gently, so kindly . . . You see, we have to be selfless. This creates freedom . . . Yes, and also by not possessing, one possesses . . . You see, so many things seem to be in a paradoxical way. I am learning . . . I'm trying very hard."

Special Course Set For Adult Members

On an experimental basis, an "adult option" is offered each week between the 9:15 and 11 a.m. Sunday services at First Methodist Church in San Rafael.

These 10-10:30 a.m. programs are supplements to the continuing adult study and discussion groups, which are followed weekly by the regular 10:30 a.m. coffee hours.

Tomorrow the film, "Marijuana" will be presented. The discussion on drug abuse will be led by Harold Rodell and Mrs. G. Albert Howenstein program chairmen.

On Thanksgiving Sunday, Nov. 24, Dr. Philip Whitmer, pastor, will lead a discussion on God's grace and human gratitude.

On Dec. 1, a mission film on southeast Asia, "From Ox Cart to the Moon," will be shown.

A sermon "talk-through" on the advent theme is planned for Dec. 8. The "talk-through" will be led by a layman, with the minister not present, so those attending will feel more free to discuss the sermon just heard.

On Dec. 8, the Christian Social Concerns Committee will sponsor a program on the scope of the church's mission. The Dec. 22 session will be a discussion on the Bibles Christmas scriptures, led by Dr. Whitmer.

The programs were worked out by the church's education commission. Taking a major role was Mrs. Robert Winters, superintendent of the adult department.

Enrollment At Seminary Shows Hike

Enrollment for the fall semester at Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary at Strawberry is 22.7 per cent higher than last year, according to figures released this week.

When late registration closed, 295 students had registered for credit courses, the largest number of students to be registered since the seminary moved to its present location in 1959.

Of the total, new students number 129, a 42.6 per cent increase over new students in the fall of 1967 when 74 new students registered for classes.

There are 226 students working on a theological degree or diploma; 52 on a religious education degree or diploma; 10 special students; and seven students working on a degree in music.

New student interest has resulted from two experimental courses added this year to the Golden Gate Seminary program — Missions 103, a dialogue-oriented experimental course in the challenge of the racially changing community and pastoral care and New Testament interpretation, part of the seminary's "Continuing Theological Education."

School Crisis Plea Is Made

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI)—Bishops, religious superiors, school superintendents and parents must cooperate in solving the problems facing the nation's Catholic schools, Msgr. William M. Roche of the National Catholic Educational Association (NCEA) said here recently.

Reverend Roche, president of the NCEA's Department of School Superintendents, told a meeting of superintendents that to provide a complete education within a Christian atmosphere there is "a more positive need for Catholic schools today than the reasons which brought them into existence 100 years ago."

Catholic Church Facing Crisis Of Obedience Within Structure

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—The Roman Catholic Church is going through its deepest crisis in modern times—a crisis of obedience.

The all-powerful position of the Pope has been seriously weakened, with millions of Catholics defying Paul VI's pronouncement against birth control.

Age-old doctrines are being challenged or given new interpretations by theologians.

Laymen have divided into mutually hostile conservative vs. liberal factions.

Throughout the nominally 600-million-member church, there is turmoil and confusion and, in the case of Paul himself, evident bitterness and worry.

Debate, experimentation and innovation—much of it opposed by the Pope—are now rife in the church. Millions of Catholics have placed individual conscience or judgment above obedience to the Pope on birth control and other questions.

But the birth control controversy was not the start of the crisis of obedience. It began during the Ecumenical Council, called by the late Pope John XXIII and carried to completion, although with some misgivings, by Pope Paul.

Before the council, most Catholics had accepted without serious question the teachings of the church.

But the council brought to light the fact many of these teachings were being challenged or reinterpreted by some of the most brilliant minds of the church—theologians, cardinals and bishops.

Bitter wrangles took place among council fathers, and suddenly discussion and debate became fashionable at all levels of the church.

The reforms enacted by the council only fed what appeared to be a widespread, dormant desire for even more change.

While some may argue the church could not have survived 20 centuries except for its authoritarian nature, others argue just as strongly that it cannot remain authoritarian and survive in the changed circumstances of the modern world.

Some Vatican observers have suggested the Pope is being driven back to a hard-line, counter-reformation policy to try to salvage his authority and compel obedience.

But the counter-reformation—the Catholic reaction to the rise of Protestantism—occurred 400 years ago and both the world and the Catholic church have changed so radically since that a return to such a policy hardly seems conceivable.

Other observers believe it more likely that dissent on a wide scale will become a more or less permanent feature of Catholic life. This presumably would involve a decline in papal authority—and some Protestant leaders look on this as a hopeful possibility since the all-powerful position of the Pope has been the greatest obstacle to reunion of Protestants with the Catholic church.

Archbishop Simojoki, addressing a church Synod, said "young people's points of view may surprise us who are older."

"The young people of today," he said, "do often express their ideas in a new way, different from what we have been used to in the meetings of the Synod, but let none of us doubt their sincerity and honest desire to serve the church, so dear to all of us, and to aim only at its good."

Hostesses For Church Rites?

HEMEL HEMPSTEAD, England (UPI) — A vicar thinks churches should take a cue from night clubs and airlines and have hostesses greet newcomers to the parish flock.

Rev. Christopher Newton, writing in a local church magazine, said the women should replace the soberly dressed and sometimes foreboding men who usually greet newcomers.

Bishop Pike Becomes Supporter Of Life Beyond Death

NEW YORK (AP) — Episcopal Bishop James A. Pike, often criticized for discounting some aspects of Christian doctrine, has become a firm and outspoken advocate of its primary belief—life beyond death.

"It's indifated by the empirical data," he remarked in an interview. "It's the most plausible conclusion."

For more than two years, the bishop has been probing psychic phenomena, along with numerous sessions in which he reports apparent communication with various deceased persons, including his son, James Jr., who killed himself Feb. 4, 1966, at the age of 20.

After examining critically other possible alternatives, he says the most reasonable explanation is "the affirmation of life after death."

Now a staff member of the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions, of Santa Barbara, Bishop Pike details his case in a new book, published by Doubleday, called "The Other Side."

Asked what that other realm is like on the basis of what the bishop said was apparent messages from it, he replied, "It seems hard to describe in our terms, just as it's hard for us to tell what vichyssoise tastes like. You say it's salty. But what's salt?

"It's a whole different plane of existence. It seems to be a kind of a growth from 'strength to strength,' much as the prayerbook puts it. But it's not all heaven or hell, but a growing, or else a shriveling."

In his clinically analytical account, the bishop, a one-time attorney and Navy Intelligence officer, subjects his experiences to rigorous questioning, seeking natural explanations when possible, but often finding none.

The result, he says, "enables me to affirm life after death as the natural thing to expect of the human psyche, which already seems to be in eternal life."

His investigations were triggered by a series of strange occurrences—objects moving, clocks stopping at the time his son died—which took place in an apartment in Cambridge, England, shortly after his son's death in New York.

Two assistants witnessed the phenomena. Baffled, finally assuming his son was trying to communicate with him, the bishop consulted a British clergyman, who suggested he see a London spiritual medium, Emma Twigg.

Along with that first meeting with her, on March 2, 1966, the bishop describes a dozen sessions with various mediums, both in this country and in England, continuing up to June of this year.

In most cases, he had other witnesses with him, present stenographic notes or excerpts from tape recordings of many sessions.

The bishop reports apparent messages from several persons who have died besides his son, including the late great theologian, Paul Tillich, a long-time friend and mentor of Bishop Pike.

At first, the bishop's son seems in a disturbed state, and purportedly says that "nothing I've seen over here makes me any more inclined to believe in God."

Later, in June, 1968, the son supposedly reports that his companions "talk about" Jesus. "Oh, but dad, they don't talk about him as a savior. As an example, you see? . . . I don't understand it yet. I may, sometime, I may . . . it's exciting, exciting . . . we are not the dead ones, you are the dead ones."

In the succeeding messages, the son seems gradually to progress from a rather uncertain condition to increasing awareness and activity.

At first, he reports, "I failed the test . . . I am not in purgatory, but something like hell, here. Yet nobody blames me here . . . I'm tied to my regrets . . .

"I wish I'd stayed to work out my problems in more familiar surroundings . . . but I have masses of people around me and hands lifting me up, as it were."

Eventually, he reports he is "beginning to feel somewhat more and home—more at peace." His need for communication with this dimension seems to have lessened, suggesting the son has "moved on," the bishop says.

In the latest session, in June, 1968, the youth purportedly says he is regaining a "sense of belonging again. They lead you so gently, so kindly . . . You see, we have to be selfless. This creates freedom . . . Yes, and also by not possessing, one possesses . . . You see, so many things seem to be in a paradoxical way. I am learning . . . I'm trying very hard."

Special Course Set For Adult Members

On an experimental basis, an "adult option" is offered each week between the 9:15 and 11 a.m. Sunday services at First Methodist Church in San Rafael. These 10-10:30 a.m. programs are supplements to the continuing adult study and discussion groups, which are followed weekly by the regular 10:30 a.m. coffee hours.

Tomorrow the film, "Marijuana" will be presented. The discussion on drug abuse will be led by Harold Rodell and Mrs. G. Albert Howenstein program chairmen.

On Thanksgiving Sunday, Nov. 24, Dr. Philip Whitmer, pastor, will lead a discussion on God's grace and human gratitude.

On Dec. 1, a mission film on southeast Asia, "From Ox Cart to the Moon," will be shown.

A sermon "talk-through" on the advent theme is planned for Dec. 8. The "talk-through" will be led by a layman, with the minister not present, so those attending will feel more free to discuss the sermon just heard.

On Dec. 8, the Christian Social Concerns Committee will sponsor a program on the scope of the church's mission. The Dec. 22 session will be a discussion on the Bibles Christmas scriptures, led by Dr. Whitmer.

The programs were worked out by the church's education commission. Taking a major role was Mrs. Robert Winters, superintendent of the adult department.

Enrollment At Seminary Shows Hike

Enrollment for the fall semester at Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary at Strawberry is 22.7 per cent higher than last year, according to figures released this week.

When late registration closed, 295 students had registered for credit courses, the largest number of students to be registered since the seminary moved to its present location in 1959.

Of the total, new students number 129, a 42.6 per cent increase over new students in the fall of 1967 when 74 new students registered for classes.

There are 226 students working on a theological degree or diploma; 52 on a religious education degree or diploma; 10 special students; and seven students working on a degree in music.

New student interest has resulted from two experimental courses added this year to the Golden Gate Seminary program — Missions 103, a dialogue-oriented experimental course in the challenge of the racially changing community and pastoral care and New Testament interpretation, part of the seminary's "Continuing Theological Education."

School Crisis Plea Is Made

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI)—Bishops, religious superiors, school superintendents and parents must cooperate in solving the problems facing the nation's Catholic schools, Msgr. William M. Roche of the National Catholic Educational Association (NCEA) said here recently.

Reverend Roche, president of the NCEA's Department of School Superintendents, told a meeting of superintendents that to provide a complete education within a Christian atmosphere there is "a more positive need for Catholic schools today than the reasons which brought them into existence 100 years ago."

Seminary Choir To Give Excerpts From 'Messiah'

The Oratorio Choir of Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary will present excerpts from "The Messiah" by George F. Handel at 8 p.m., Dec. 6 in Broadus Chapel in Broadus Hall on the Strawberry campus.

Dr. Carlyle D. Bennett, head of the department of church music at the seminary, will direct the musical composition which was written in 1741.

Mrs. George Suffern of the music faculty at Golden Gate Seminary will accompany the choir on the organ. Mrs. James C. Bradley, wife of seminary religious education professor James C. Bradley, will accompany the choral presentation on the piano.

Hostesses For Church Rites?

HEMEL HEMPSTEAD, England (UPI) — A vicar thinks churches should take a cue from night clubs and airlines and have hostesses greet newcomers to the parish flock.

Rev. Christopher Newton, writing in a local church magazine, said the women should replace the soberly dressed and sometimes foreboding men who usually greet newcomers.

"The accomplishment of unity between the colored and white races will be an assurance of the world's peace."

Tars Pull Out Game And Title In Mud, 17-14

Finnegan Touchdown Is Capper In Clincher Over Santa Rosa

The College of Marin Tars grabbed at least a tie for the inaugural Camino Norte Conference football crown by coming from behind to beat old rival Santa Rosa Junior College, 17-14, before 650 Homecoming fans in Kentfield last night.

Both coaches had predicted that rain was a great equalizer and that breaks would decide the contest. They were right.

Three times, Santa Rosa punts hit inside the Marin three-yard line and stopped dead in the mud, two of them setting up safeties for the Bearcubs. But the last break was a smashing tackle by Bill Hickerson that forced a fumble, pounced on by the opportunistic Karl Stein, to give Marin another chance after their last hope seemed gone.

The win gave Marin a title tie, but the Conference representative will be decided by tonight's West Valley-DeAnza game in Los Gatos. If West Valley wins, the Vikings of Los Gatos will go to the State Junior College Large College Division Playoffs. If DeAnza of Cupertino wins, the Tars are it.

Despite a field that resembled the Great Dismal Swamp, and hampered by miscues and the absence of star halfback Tim Garvin and starting safety Rod Powell, ineligible due to grades, the Tars fought back from their own errors to eke out the win. For Santa Rosa, it was close, but no cigar.

Marin's Dick Read put it this way: "Santa Rosa was deserving, they played real well — but we deserved it too, and these boys deserved a championship."

EARLY LEAD

Marin took an early lead at the end of the first quarter after a bad snap from center went over Bearcub quarterback Ray Borowicz's head on a punt attempt. Rick Smith, a 165-pound giant at defensive end all night, smeared Borowicz for a loss of 26 yards to the Santa Rosa 27. On third down at the 13, quarterback Val Sabuco hit Gary Dinkel for 12 yards and scored on a sneak over Doug Guillon's block on the next play. Bill Hickerson kicked the point after.

A nicely angled punt by Borowicz dropped in a mudhole at the Marin one midway through the second quarter, and the Cub's swarmed over Keith Stirling for a safety on first down. Five pass completions, the last a nine-yarder from Borowicz to end Dan Lester, gave Santa Rosa a touchdown in the last seconds of the half, and a 9-7 lead.

Marin took the second-half kickoff and promptly fumbled the ball away. The defense held, but another drowned punt died at the two. Mike Fowler and Gary Dinkel scrambled for the ball in the end zone on first down, Dinkel falling on it to avert a Bearcub touchdown. The safety gave SRJC an 11-7 lead, which was cut to 11-10 moments later as Sabuco hit Dinkel at the sideline for 28 yards to set up a 31-yard goal by Hickerson.

FINAL SCORE

A 38-yard return of the ensuing kickoff by Ray Allena and a 15-yard face mask penalty set up Santa Rosa's final score with four minutes left in the third period, Bill Glover booting a 23-yard field goal to put the Tars out of victory range via Hickerson's toe.

The fourth quarter was a series of near misses. First a clipping penalty stalled Santa Rosa, then Marin gained a yard on three plays, forcing a punt and, when the kick was returned to the Tar 30, seemingly setting up perfect field position for the Cubs. But Hickerson's powerful hit (which dislocated his oft-injured shoulder again) forced Borowicz to loose the ball, and Stein fell on it eagerly.

Two incomplete passes left Marin with three minutes left and a fourth and four situation. Sabuco came through, hitting Bob Bahlman, who made a leaping catch to keep the Tars alive. On the next play, the sideline pass to Dinkel worked again, for 26 yards to the SRJC 29. Jim Finnegan, running a stubbornly as ever, took it over on two power sweeps, the last a 16-yard bulling, twisting, tip-toeing jaunt down the left sideline. Hickerson's PAT was good, despite a sneak punch by a rushing Cub.

DESPERATE PASS

Two plays later, Billy Poole intercepted a desperate Borowicz pass to ice the win, as Marin ran out the clock.

Sabuco hit on eight of thirteen passes for 120 yards, five to Dinkel for 90, while Finnegan was the rushing leader with 19 yards in 15 carries.

"They came to play" said Read about Santa Rosa "and we didn't play well at all, early in the game. We had poor field position, and the only time we had good position, we petered out and settled for three points. But the kids deserved it, they've made an awful lot of progress. I'm grateful to win, it's good to be the champion at least." Read admitted he would probably head for Los Gatos tomorrow night, rather than wait for the score. "Better to make the trip than go crazy waiting at home."

REDWOOD HARRIERS WIN AGAIN

Redwood High School of Larkspur is becoming a cross-county mecca.

The Giants raced to victories in both the varsity and frosh-soph divisions of the North Coast Division III meet at Foley Park in Vallejo yesterday to remain unbeaten and advance to the section meets next week along with three other schools in each division.

It was tough in the varsity, with Redwood prevailing, 43-45 over Piner High School of Santa Rosa. Santa Rosa was third at 96 points, followed by Tamalpais in fourth. Phil Russel and Dave Neuhaus were the top Redwood finishers in fourth and eighth.

Redwood won easily in the frosh-soph meet, 44-87 over runner-up Novato. San Rafael was fourth. Lee Hotchkin of Redwood won it in 10:52 over a two-mile course.

RUN FOR YOUR LIFE — Santa Rosa quarterback Ray Borowicz (17) bootlegs around left end for nine yards and a first down in last night's College of Marin-Santa Rosa JC "Little Big Game." The Tars won 17-14. Marin pursuer is Dennis Quinn (86).

San Rafael Goes Down Tough

The St. Ignatius of San Francisco footballers must have wondered where the sacrificial lamb had disappeared to last night.

The West Catholic Athletic League powerhouse got a tremendous battle from San Rafael High School last night before it finally pulled together for a 20-point fourth quarter and a 27-7 non-league victory at San Rafael.

St. Ignatius didn't act like a WCAL power for three quarters last night. The Wildcats almost looked human, losing the ball on fumbles twice, able to move only sporadically in the mud against an inspired San Rafael defense.

Conversely, the Bulldogs didn't act like a team with a 1-7 record, the doormats of the Marin County Athletic League. For three periods, they nagged, stacked up and kept pecking away at the Wildcats, getting close to a second touchdown twice in the third period before the roof caved in.

St. Ignatius rolled to its first touchdown with powerful ease, punching away behind fullback Dennis Ward, an incredible workhorse who finished the night with 198 yards rushing on 37 carries.

Ward climaxed a six-play drive with a one-yard plunge for the touchdown and a 7-0 lead.

But San Rafael got a big break on a fumble recovery inside the 20-yard line and scored when spunky quarterback Lowell Widmer, under a big rush, hit Tom O'Donnell with a fading scoring pass from five yards out. Tim Ecke's kick tied it a 7-7 and that's where it stood for three grim quarters.

But the Wildcats came alive in the final quarter, acting like the potential champs they are. Ward climaxed a 60-yard drive, taking it all in himself from two yards out und a 14-7 lead. A San Rafael fumble inside the 30 set up another touchdown, an seven-yard scoring pass thrown by ex-Marin Catholic quarterback Dan Fouts.

Mood Of Subdued Pride After Tars Win Title

The atmosphere in the College of Marin dressing room last night was one of fairly subdued pride, rather than jubilation. The players were happy and proud, but realized that they had had a close call. But the closeness of the game, and the fact that Santa Rosa led most of the way, only sharpened their pride at coming back with the chips down. A few quotes on the game and the season:

Dick Read, Head Coach — "We've had a real good bunch this year, with good leadership from our captains, who've done a fine job (Bill Hickerson and Doug Guillon) ever since the West Valley game, when we had our backs to the wall. After that one I told the kids that we had to win our four remaining games to win it, and they came running. We should have done the job ourselves on West Valley (Marin lost its conference opener to WVC 26-21 after leading 21-7) and its hard to wait for DeAnza now. But 7-2 is a good year, and I'm pleased with the progress we've made. I think we've improved 100% every game since West Valley. Over the season, I'd have to single out Tim Garvin as our key player. He's a fierce competitor, and having him there to make the big play gives us confidence. We missed that tonight, I think Dinkel and Finnegan tried to do it, Dinkel in particular did it pretty well, I thought this was easily his best game. I'm happy with the year and the championship, whether we go on or not. If DeAnza wins, we'll probably play Thanksgiving Day in Fresno against Fresno City College, the Valley Conference champion. There's a small chance we might make the playoffs even if West Valley wins. There's a bye provided for one team in the setup right now, and if the Camino Norte is the only tied league, both teams might go. I'd like to thank my coaches, Pete Limm and Ed Grimm, for a real great job all year."

Pete Limm, line coach — "We didn't play at all well tonight, but the boys pulled together, gave 110%, and didn't give up — what more can you ask of anybody?"

Len Pieri, end, Redwood of Larkspur — "We were outplayed, but won, which is what counts. We weren't as close this year as last, because we had more freshmen, fewer transfer from four-year schools, although guys like Charley Keppel and Doug Guillon fit in well with the kind of spirit we had last year."

Sam Crowell, end, San Rafael High — "We won the early games on individual effort, but these last four on team effort. After we beat Yuba on a wet field, we came together. West Valley was a total letdown in the second half, but after that Guillon and Mr. Limm kind of got us together and we really did it against Contra Costa last week, we did it as a unit."

Doug Guillon, guard and offensive captain, George Washington High of San Francisco — "Yuba was the turning point. We came together when we were supposed to, and when it counted, like tonight."

Bill Hickerson, Drake of San Anselmo, linebacker-placekicker, defensive captain — "We weren't as close as last year, but when the chips were down, we play as a unit."

Drake, Novato Meet In Key Game

Tonight's Marin County Athletic League windup game between Novato High School and Drake High of San Anselmo at College of Marin Stadium in Kentfield could be a championship game or it could be a lower-pitched game for second place.

It all depends on this afternoon's news.

That's the outcome of the Terra Linda-Redwood of Larkspur game on the same field this afternoon. If Redwood upsets Terra Linda, Novato and Drake will battle for a piece of the title and it would mean that the title would be shared for the third straight year. If the Terra Linda Trojans prevail, they'll have an unbeaten season and the title all to themselves.

Drake and Novato are both 6-2 won-lost on the season and 3-1 in league play. Both have lost to Terra Linda, Drake by 20-0, Novato by 7-6.

Neither coach Bob Franceschini of Drake or Al Scott of Novato prefers to talk too much of each other's team. But, naturally enough, they are full of praise for Redwood. And wishing.

Scott pointed out a key factor in regards to Drake, and a traditional one.

The Drake Pirates have a fair passing attack with quarterback Ed Harrington, who doesn't throw all that much, but is accurate. His standout receivers are Mike Davlin and Dave Alvarado. The running attack centers around fullback Bob Sutherland and quickie halfbacks Mark Silverman and Jamison.

Scott's Novato Hornets are extremely versatile, behind the throwing of quarterback Russ Dillon, a smooth lefty who can go for the long bomb.

The Pirates, obviously will try to get to Dillon, who holds the key to the Novato offense. That little bit of extra Pirate pressure helped eventually to derail two fine quarterbacks in earlier Drake victories — Jim Peters of Redwood and Don Mackin of Tamalpais.

But, if the afternoon is good for both teams, that won't be the only kind of pressure in this game scheduled to start at 8 o'clock.

THIRD SECTION 21
Saturday, Nov. 16, 1968

which was cut to 11-10 moments later as Sabuco hit Dinkel at the sideline for 28 yards to set up a 31-yard goal by Hickerson.

FINAL SCORE

A 38-yard return of the ensuing kickoff by Ray Allena and a 15-yard face mask penalty set up Santa Rosa's final score with four minutes left in the third period, Bill Glover booting a 23-yard field goal to put the Tars out of victory range via Hickerson's toe.

The fourth quarter was a series of near misses. First a clipping penalty stalled Santa Rosa, then Marin gained a yard on three plays, forcing a punt and, when the kick was returned to the Tar 30, seemingly setting up perfect field position for the Cubs. But Hickerson's powerful hit (which dislocated his oft-injured shoulder again) forced Borowicz to loose the ball, and Stein fell on it eagerly.

Two incomplete passes left Marin with three minutes left and a fourth and four situation. Sabuco came through, hitting Bob Bahlman, who made a leaping catch to keep the Tars alive. On the next play, the sideline pass to Dinkel worked again, for 26 yards to the SRJC 29. Jim Finnegan, running a stubbornly as ever, took it over on two power sweeps, the last a 16-yard bulling, twisting, tip-toeing jaunt down the left sideline. Hickerson's PAT was good, despite a sneak punch by a rushing Cub.

DESPERATE PASS

Two plays later, Billy Poole intercepted a desperate Borowicz pass to ice the win, as Marin ran out the clock.

Sabuco hit on eight of thirteen passes for 120 yards, five to Dinkel for 90, while Finnegan was the rushing leader with 19 yards in 15 carries.

"They came to play" said Read about Santa Rosa "and we didn't play well at all, early in the game. We had poor field position, and the only time we had good position, we petered out and settled for three points. But the kids deserved it, they've made an awful lot of progress. I'm grateful to win, it's good to be the champion at least." Read admitted he would probably head for Los Gatos tomorrow night, rather than wait for the score. "Better to make the trip than go crazy waiting at home."

REDWOOD HARRIERS WIN AGAIN

Redwood High School of Larkspur is becoming a cross-county mecca.

The Giants raced to victories in both the varsity and frosh-soph divisions of the North Coast Division III meet at Foley Park in Vallejo yesterday to remain unbeaten and advance to the section meets next week along with three other schools in each division.

It was tough in the varsity, with Redwood prevailing, 43-45 over Piner High School of Santa Rosa. Santa Rosa was third at 96 points, followed by Tamalpais in fourth. Phil Russel and Dave Neuhaus were the top Redwood finishers in fourth and eighth.

Redwood won easily in the frosh-soph meet, 44-87 over runner-up Novato. San Rafael was fourth. Lee Hotchkin of Redwood won it in 10:52 over a two-mile course.

RUN FOR YOUR LIFE — Santa Rosa quarterback Ray Borowicz (17) bootlegs around left end for nine yards and a first down in last night's College of Marin-Santa Rosa JC "Little Big Game." The Tars won 17-14. Marin pursuer is Dennis Quinn (86).

San Rafael Goes Down Tough

The St. Ignatius of San Francisco footballers must have wondered where the sacrificial lamb had disappeared to last night.

The West Catholic Athletic League powerhouse got a tremendous battle from San Rafael High School last night before it finally pulled together for a 20-point fourth quarter and a 27-7 non-league victory at San Rafael.

St. Ignatius didn't act like a WCAL power for three quarters last night. The Wildcats almost looked human, losing the ball on fumbles twice, able to move only sporadically in the mud against an inspired San Rafael defense.

Conversely, the Bulldogs didn't act like a team with a 1-7 record, the doormats of the Marin County Athletic League. For three periods, they nagged, stacked up and kept pecking away at the Wildcats, getting close to a second touchdown twice in the third period before the roof caved in.

St. Ignatius rolled to its first touchdown with powerful ease, punching away behind fullback Dennis Ward, an incredible workhorse who finished the night with 198 yards rushing on 37 carries.

Ward climaxed a six-play drive with a one-yard plunge for the touchdown and a 7-0 lead.

But San Rafael got a big break on a fumble recovery inside the 20-yard line and scored when spunky quarterback Lowell Widmer, under a big rush, hit Tom O'Donnell with a fading scoring pass from five yards out. Tim Ecke's kick tied it a 7-7 and that's where it stood for three grim quarters.

But the Wildcats came alive in the final quarter, acting like the potential champs they are. Ward climaxed a 60-yard drive, taking it all in himself from two yards out und a 14-7 lead. A San Rafael fumble inside the 30 set up another touchdown, an seven-yard scoring pass thrown by ex-Marin Catholic quarterback Dan Fouts.

Mood Of Subdued Pride After Tars Win Title

The atmosphere in the College of Marin dressing room last night was one of fairly subdued pride, rather than jubilation. The players were happy and proud, but realized that they had had a close call. But the closeness of the game, and the fact that Santa Rosa led most of the way, only sharpened their pride at coming back with the chips down. A few quotes on the game and the season:

Dick Read, Head Coach — "We've had a real good bunch this year, with good leadership from our captains, who've done a fine job (Bill Hickerson and Doug Guillon) ever since the West Valley game, when we had our backs to the wall. After that one I told the kids that we had to win our four remaining games to win it, and they came running. We should have done the job ourselves on West Valley (Marin lost its conference opener to WVC 26-21 after leading 21-7) and its hard to wait for DeAnza now. But 7-2 is a good year, and I'm pleased with the progress we've made. I think we've improved 100% every game since West Valley. Over the season, I'd have to single out Tim Garvin as our key player. He's a fierce competitor, and having him there to make the big play gives us confidence. We missed that tonight, I think Dinkel and Finnegan tried to do it, Dinkel in particular did it pretty well, I thought this was easily his best game. I'm happy with the year and the championship, whether we go on or not. If DeAnza wins, we'll probably play Thanksgiving Day in Fresno against Fresno City College, the Valley Conference champion. There's a small chance we might make the playoffs even if West Valley wins. There's a bye provided for one team in the setup right now, and if the Camino Norte is the only tied league, both teams might go. I'd like to thank my coaches, Pete Limm and Ed Grimm, for a real great job all year."

Pete Limm, line coach — "We didn't play at all well tonight, but the boys pulled together, gave 110%, and didn't give up — what more can you ask of anybody?"

Len Pieri, end, Redwood of Larkspur — "We were outplayed, but won, which is what counts. We weren't as close this year as last, because we had more freshmen, fewer transfer from four-year schools, although guys like Charley Keppel and Doug Guillon fit in well with the kind of spirit we had last year."

Sam Crowell, end, San Rafael High — "We won the early games on individual effort, but these last four on team effort. After we beat Yuba on a wet field, we came together. West Valley was a total letdown in the second half, but after that Guillon and Mr. Limm kind of got us together and we really did it against Contra Costa last week, we did it as a unit."

Doug Guillon, guard and offensive captain, George Washington High of San Francisco — "Yuba was the turning point. We came together when we were supposed to, and when it counted, like tonight."

Bill Hickerson, Drake of San Anselmo, linebacker-placekicker, defensive captain — "We weren't as close as last year, but when the chips were down, we play as a unit."

Drake, Novato Meet In Key Game

Tonight's Marin County Athletic League windup game between Novato High School and Drake High of San Anselmo at College of Marin Stadium in Kentfield could be a championship game or it could be a lower-pitched game for second place.

It all depends on this afternoon's news.

That's the outcome of the Terra Linda-Redwood of Larkspur game on the same field this afternoon. If Redwood upsets Terra Linda, Novato and Drake will battle for a piece of the title and it would mean that the title would be shared for the third straight year. If the Terra Linda Trojans prevail, they'll have an unbeaten season and the title all to themselves.

Drake and Novato are both 6-2 won-lost on the season and 3-1 in league play. Both have lost to Terra Linda. Drake by 20-0, Novato by 7-6.

Neither coach Bob Franceschini of Drake or Al Scott of Novato prefers to talk too much of each other's team. But, naturally enough, they are full of praise for Redwood. And wishing.

The Drake Pirates have a fair passing attack with quarterback Ed Harrington, who doesn't throw all that much, but is accurate. His standout receivers are Mike Davlin and Dave Alvarado. The running attack centers around fullback Bob Sutherland and quickie halfbacks Mark Silverman and Jamison.

Scott's Novato Hornets are extremely versatile, behind the throwing of quarterback Russ Dillon, a smooth lefty who can go for the long bomb.

The Pirates, obviously will try to get to Dillon, who holds the key to the Novato offense. That little bit of extra Pirate pressure helped eventually to derail two fine quarterbacks in earlier Drake victories — Jim Peters of Redwood and Don Mackin of Tamalpais.

But, if the afternoon is good for both teams, that won't be the only kind of pressure in this game scheduled to start at 8 o'clock.

IN PLACE OF SAYERS

Piccolo Tries The Grid Impossible

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Brian Piccolo gets a long-awaited chance as Chicago's starting running back in the Bears' National Football League game against Atlanta tomorrow. It should be a moment of great joy for him but it isn't.

That's because Piccolo is replacing Gale Sayers and while a player can occupy Sayers' spot on the field, it's quite another thing to replace him. Sayers, of course, is out for the season with torn ligaments and cartilage in his right knee.

"This isn't the way I wanted it," says Piccolo. "Gale should be out there."

Piccolo knows there are things Sayers can do which will be impossible for him to duplicate. "The change of pace and direction without losing speed or a step, the instinct that tells Gale which way to go, and all the other intangibles he possesses--they belong to Sayers alone. Nobody can do what Gale Sayers does," Piccolo admits. But he'll try anyway.

FOUR STRAIGHT

Piccolo picked up 67 yards in 18 carries after replacing Sayers last Sunday. Gale had 32 yards in 11 carries and 856 for the season—second best in the league—before the accident.

The Bears have won four straight with rookie Virgil Carter at quarterback and share the NFL's Central Division lead with Minnesota.

The Vikings, sky-high after dropping Green Bay last Sunday, hope for as strong a defensive show against Detroit this week as they had against the Packers. They dumped Bart Starr five times, blocked a field goal and jarred the Packers into two costly fourth period fumbles.

The Lions ended a 14-quarter draught with their first TD scored by the offense since Oct. 20, but still lost to Baltimore last week.

HOT CARDS

The Colts, sharing the Coastal Division lead with Los Angeles, run up against the hot Cardinals, who have not lost in five weeks. Jim Hart passed for 353 yards last Sunday as the Cardinals wiped out a three-touchdown Pittsburgh lead and battled the Steelers to a 28-28 tie.

Earl Morrall continues to pilot the Colts and together with a devastating defense which has permitted just two touchdowns in the last three weeks, he has kept Baltimore neck and neck with the Rams.

Los Angeles, too, has been doing it with defense. The Rams have allowed 111 points—only three more than league-leading Baltimore. They beat Atlanta by a touchdown last week with some clutch running from Tommy Mason and Willie Ellison.

John Brodie passed for 199 yards and two TDs but suffered four interceptions against Chicago as the 49ers lost their fifth game last week.

Green Bay tries to climb back into the Central Division picture against New Orleans. The world champion Packers have lost four and tied one in five division games this year. Over-all, they're 3-5-1 and 1½ games back of both Detroit and Minnesota.

TOP RUSHER

Cleveland, clinging to a one-half game edge in the Century Division, has won four straight and five in the last six weeks. The Browns have the NFL's leading rusher in Leroy Kelly, who has gained 890 yards in 144 carries. Pittsburgh, after dropping six straight, has not lost in three weeks.

New York closed to within one game of Dallas in the Capitol Division race by knocking off the Cowboys last Sunday. The Giants could tie for the lead by beating winless Philadelphia and getting some help from Washington, which hosts Dallas.

Jets, Namath Attempt To Decide AFL Western Title In Oakland

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The New York Jets, already a cinch winner in the Eastern Division, launch phase one of their role tomorrow to help determine the team they will face in the American Football League's championship showdown.

The Jets, owners of a bulging 3½-game lead in their division, step into the thick of the Western Division chase—tightest in AFL history—for a two-game West Coast swing.

They take on Oakland Sunday, then meet San Diego the following week—the two teams currently locked in second place with 7-2 records, just one half game behind Kansas City, 8-2.

A pair of Jet victories would not only assure them of their first Eastern title ever, but also could help set up Kansas City as the Jets' foe for the right to move on to the Sugar Bowl.

New York's magic number is only two for clinching the title—any combination of Jet victories and Boston or Houston losses totaling two gives the Jets the crown.

The Jets, who turned back Kansas City and San Diego earlier this season, are winging along on a four-game victory streak although Joe Namath hasn't thrown a touchdown pass in six games.

But Namath hasn't been needed with Joe Turner's foot around. Turner booted four or five field goal attempts in a 26-7 coast past Houston last week to take over the league's scoring leadership.

BLANDA AT HELM

The Raiders may have to combat New York with the oldest player in the league—40-year-old George Blanda—handling the quarterback duties again.

A decision on whether injured Daryle Lamonica would start was not expected to be made until game time. Blanda filled in last week and rifled four touchdown passes in a 43-7 blasting of Denver—the Raiders third straight since a loss to Kansas City.

The Chiefs and the Chargers, meanwhile, aren't expected to have much difficulty winning. Kansas City plays host to Boston, 3-6, while San Diego goes to Buffalo, 1-8-1. Denver, 4-5, is at Houston and Cincinnati, 2-8, at Miami, 3-5-1, in other league games.

Boston's big chore in trying to stop a three-game losing streak will be to contain the Chiefs' rookie Robert Holmes, who carried 21 times for 158 yards and caught all five of Kansas City's completions for 62 yards in a 16-9 victory over Cincinnati last week. The Pats gave San Diego a rugged battle most of the way last week before finally losing, 27-17.

Buffalo faces a murderous task in attempting to stop the Chargers' John Hadl led attack, the most potent in the league. And, the Bills have to do it with a lineup riddled with injuries. Even rookie quarterback Dan Darragh, who is subbing for a sub, is injured and may not be able to play.

Madison Square Garden Gets Brawling Baptism

NEW YORK (AP) — The new Madison Square Garden got its baptism of whiskey and wine bottles and stray chairs last night in a wild demonstration after the main event of a fight show.

When Ismael Laguna of Panama, former lightweight champion, was given a majority decision over Roman Blanco of Venezuela by way of Puerto Rico, the trouble started.

Ringside spectators scattered for the exits and reporters and the referee crawled under the ring while pieces of glass bounced off chairs and showered the fugitives.

Several seats were ripped with knives. One small fire was reported to have started. The hockey press box was torn up and a small refrigerator was torn from its moorings.

OLD SCENE

It was a scene reminiscent of riots in the old Garden in recent years. Trouble started after the Flash Elorde-Frank Narvaez match March 10, 1967 and the Dick Tiger-Jose Torres bout May 16, 1967.

Three spectators were reported to have been slightly injured. One complained of a shoulder injury suffered in a fall. Another had superficial cuts. Both were examined by Dr. Kazuo Yanigasawa, the Garden physician.

This spectator can report that the thump, thump of hard objects overhead in the ring and the shower of splintering glass were real enough to make a man want to take his boxing on television.

FANCY

Laguna, 136, is a fancy dancer type with quick hands and agile moves. Blanco, 136, called in Wednesday as a sub for the ailing Bunny Grant of Jamaica, is a sturdy little man who gave away height and reach but almost made up for it in punching power.

He wobbled Laguna two or three times but the Panamanian always escaped and came back strong, his jab spinning his opponent with those quick hands.

Referee Jimmy Devlin and Judge Tony Rossi each scored it 7-3 for Laguna. Judge Johnny Dran had it even at 5-5 in rounds and 6-6 in points. The AP had Laguna a 6-4 winner.

A crowd of 8,500 fans paying $40,000 saw the show that also featured two other 10-rounders.

Luis Rodriguez, 153½, a Cuban who lives in Miami and a former world welter champ, won a unanimous decision over Joe Shaw, 148, New York in one ten.

Another Powerhouse For 49ers

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—They say life for a rookie coach isn't easy. For San Francisco's Dick Nolan it's ridiculous.

For the seventh straight week, Nolan's task has been to prime his Forty Niners for a battle against a National Football League powerhouse. tomorrow the Los Angeles Rams, currently tied with Baltimore for the Coastal Division lead, will furnish the opposition on the Kezar Stadium gridiron.

The Rams started it all seven weeks ago by taking the Forty Niners, 24-10. Since then, Nolan's forces have met Baltimore, New York, Detroit, Cleveland and Chicago, all title contenders.

As it turned out, the Forty Niners won two—over the Giants and Lions—and dropped the others. For the season, San Francisco is 4-5 while the defensively rugged Rams are 8-1.

If—and it's a big if—the Forty Niners can carry over their second half performance against Chicago, Bay Area fans may be in for some cheering. After being down 24-0 at the half last Sunday, San Francisco stormed back to outscore the Bears 19-3 in the final two quarters.

Again, the Forty Niners attack will revolve around the passing combination of John Brodie to Cliff McNeil but the Rams won't be able to concentrate solely on the ex-Cleveland pass catcher.

Massive Kevin Hardy will take over Clark Miller's spot on the defensive line and, in the only other change, Mel Phillips was named to start in place of John Fuller.

Bullets Take Over In East

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

A Tale of Four Cities—or A Gruelling Way to Drop out of First Place. That's the latest chapter of the Cincinnati Royals' episodes in the National Basketball Association.

In first place in the NBA's Eastern Division with an 8-2 record, the Royals opened a four-straight-day, four-city tour with a 126-115 victory over the Bullets at Baltimore.

They finished it last night in third place with a 10-4 mark after losing 116-105 to the Celtics in Boston.

Meanwhile Baltimore, 12-4, is in first place, ahead of Boston, 9-3, after pounding the Milwaukee Bucks 129-102 last night.

In other action, Philadelphia nipped Atlanta 116-115, Los Angeles stopped San Diego 127-119, San Francisco turned back Detroit and Seattle edged Phoenix 128-124 in two overtimes.

Player-coach Bill Russell sent Cincinnati out of first place when he sparked a 10-point Boston surge that broke an 80-80 tie by turning in a three-point play in the third period.

Bailey Howell scored 27 points for the Celtics, who had seven players in double figures. Oscar Robertson had 28 and Jerry Lucas 21 for Cincinnati.

MISSED SHOTS

Two missed foul shots and a pair of good ones spelled the difference in the Philadelphia-Atlanta game. With Atlanta leading 115-114 and seven second left, Walt Hazzard missed two free throws that would have clinched it for the Hawks. Bill Cunningham then made two with two second remaining to win it for Philadelphia.

Cunningham finished with 27 points, high for the game, and Luke Jackson contributed 23 for the 76ers. Lou Hudson scored 26 and Hazzard 21 for Atlanta, whose coach, Richie Guerin, reactivated himself for the game but did not play.

34 FOR WEST

Jerry West and Elgin Baylor teamed to guide Los Angeles' Western Division leaders to their sixth straight. West drilled in 34 points and Baylor scored 28, offsetting a 38-point performance by rookie Elvin Hayes.

Lenny Wilken's six points in the second overtime enabled Seattle to slip past the Suns.

LAKERS, WARRIORS IN LOCAL NBA WARFARE

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The rampaging Los Angeles Lakers, who have won six straight and nine of 10, test their high-powered offense against the San Francisco Warriors tonight in a battle between the NBA's two top western teams.

The Lakers, who spot a 10-4 record and first place, reeled off their sixth straight win last night with a 127-119 decision over San Diego in Los Angeles.

Meanwhile, the Warriors rolled up a whopping 73 points in the first half and romped to an easy 133-105 home triumph over Detroit. The Warriors' season mark is 7-7 and they trail the Lakers by three games.

Elvis Hayes followed his 54-point performance of Wednesday night with a 38-point effort to pace the Rocket scorers.

In San Francisco, Rudy LaRusso and Jeff Mullins each scored 16 points in the first half as the Warriors coasted to a comfortable 73-49 midway margin. The reserves took over and finished out the final quarter.

Mullins' 22 points was tops for the game with rookie Fritz Williams adding 21 and Nate Thurmond 19 with 23 rebounds.

Boros Finds Putter

ROME (AP) — Now that Julius "The Moose" Boros has recovered his putting form, the chances look better than ever for the United States to take the undisputable lead today in the World Golf Cup Championship.

The 48-year-old Boros of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., fashioned a 70—much of it on the greens—in yesterday's second round.

Nationalist China was at the same level. Both nations were five shots ahead of the field.

"Yes, I found the putter," said Boros.

That's all this lazy swinger needs to outstrip the field.

FINE STYLE

Trevino of Dallas has shown fine style around the greens ever since the contest started Thursday and yesterday's rain and chill failed to dampen his spirits.

The next challenger was Ireland with veteran Christy O'Connor and Jimmy Kinsella.

They were even par at 288 and Kinsella thanked a strange kind of driver for it. He shot a four under-par-68 yesterday and said: "My driving is pretty good, I have one now that's an inch longer than standard and two ounces heavier. It has two shafts, you see, one down inside the other. I had to do that to mend it because I broke it when I was riding my bicycle.

STIFF DRIVER

The 6,850-yard par 72 Olgiata course has been a good deal tougher than expected.

Roberto De Vicenzo, of Argentina, former British Open champ, said, "I don't understand it but I play it not very good and I can't putt."

Lu Liang-Huan of Nationalist China shot another 69 for the individual lead at 138.

CHICAGO (AP) — Gale Sayers, the Chicago Bears' injured superstar, walked out of Illinois Masonic Hospital yesterday with the same pride and dominance he employes on the football field.

Sayers, who last Sunday night underwent knee surgery for torn ligaments, amazed the medical world by walking out of the hospital less than a week after his operation.

Refusing crutches and keeping the cast on his right leg out of sight under his blue slacks, the player called the most exciting runner in the National Football League vowed he'd be back next season without any mental blocks.

Sayers suffered the injury early in the second quarter of last Sunday's triumph over the San Francisco 49ers when he was hit by defensive back Kermit Alexander, one of Sayers' closest friends in football. Minutes later Dr. Theodore Fox announced Sayers would undergo surgery that night and would be lost for the season.

FANTASTIC

Dr. Fox, who performed the operation, said yesterday "his recovery so far is fantastic. I tried to give Gale crutches Tuesday but the refused them. He's a week ahead of anybody I know who had a similar injury. Gale will be back next year as good as ever, you have my word for it."

Sayers, in his first interview since the mishap, said "it's the breaks of the game. You always think about it, a knee injury, I mean. I never worried about it, but I did think about it—carrying the ball as much as I do. So I was prepared mentally."

Asked if he can overcome the haunting fear that comes to many runners following such injries, Sayers said, "I'm not going to let that worry me. There will not be a mental block. I'll be able to overcome this. Other players have had the same thing and come back."

Petaluma Loses Ninth Game, 13-7

The long season has ended for Petaluma High School's football team.

Petaluma led briefly in the first half, 7-6, but Cardinal Newman went ahead for a 13-7 halftime lead that stood up.

Petaluma wound up the year winless. The Trojans were at the Cardinal Newman half-yard line in the third quarter but fumbled the ball.

Strike Vs. Girl Jockey?

LOUISVILLE, Ky (AP) — Pretty Penny Ann Early prepared to take the track aboard Bo Tree at Churchill Downs today, amid unconfirmed reports that male jockeys might boycott the race.

Miss Early, 25, received her first assignment yesterday afternoon when the owner of Bo Tree authorized the blonde jockey to ride the 2-year-old colt in the first race.

Florine Stelzig, the owner, said "Penny and I have been friends a long time. I have every faith in her."

REFUSE TO RIDE

Later, there were unconfirmed reports that male jockeys would refuse to ride in the first race and possibly boycott the entire card if Miss Early is permitted to race.

If she does, the petitie rider would become the first woman in modern history to compete as a professional jockey.

When asked whether she had heard about the possible rebellion, Miss Early replied, "Yeah, I heard about that strikearoo but I don't know anything except what some newsmen told me the jockeys said."

Lyyn Stone, vice president and general manager of Churchill Downs, said he had not heard of a boycott, either.

Although the majority of the jockeys belong to the Jockey's Guild, it is a benevolent organization and one person normally does speak for its members. Jockeys sign contracts individually with the horses' owners.

NERVOUS

Miss Early was granted a temporary license by the Kentucky State Racing Commission Thursday. The license permits her to ride two horses, after which a final decision will be made by the commission.

Last night, Miss Early said, "Sure. I'm nervous. Everybody's nervous in their first race. I just hope he runs good."

Miss Stelzig said Bo Tree would put Penny out front early "because he's a speedball." She added, however, that the horse "is going to lose a lot of races" unless his early speed can be controlled. Thus far, that speed has gone uncontrolled and Bo Tree has yet to win a race.

Miss Early, a divorcee and mother of an 8-year-old daughter, is the second woman in the United States to be licensed as a jockey. The first, Kathy Kusner of Maryland, has a broken leg and has not ridden.

IN PLACE OF SAYERS

Piccolo Tries The Grid Impossible

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Brian Piccolo gets a long-awaited chance as Chicago's starting running back in the Bears' National Football League game against Atlanta tomorrow. It should be a moment of great joy for him but it isn't.

That's because Piccolo is replacing Gale Sayers and while a player can occupy Sayers' spot on the field, it's quite another thing to replace him. Sayers, of course, is out for the season with torn ligaments and cartilage in his right knee.

"This isn't the way I wanted it," says Piccolo. "Gale should be out there."

Piccolo knows there are things Sayers can do which will be impossible for him to duplicate. "The change of pace and direction without losing speed or a step, the instinct that tells Gale which way to go, and all the other intangibles he possesses--they belong to Sayers alone. Nobody can do what Gale Sayers does," Piccolo admits. But he'll try anyway.

FOUR STRAIGHT

Piccolo picked up 67 yards in 18 carries after replacing Sayers last Sunday. Gale had 32 yards in 11 carries and 856 for the season—second best in the league—before the accident.

The Bears have won four straight with rookie Virgil Carter at quarterback and share the NFL's Central Division lead with Minnesota.

The Vikings, sky-high after dropping Green Bay last Sunday, hope for as strong a defensive show against Detroit this week as they had against the Packers. They dumped Bart Starr five times, blocked a field goal and jarred the Packers into two costly fourth period fumbles.

The Lions ended a 14-quarter draught with their first TD scored by the offense since Oct. 20, but still lost to Baltimore last week.

HOT CARDS

The Colts, sharing the Coastal Division lead with Los Angeles, run up against the hot Cardinals, who have not lost in five weeks. Jim Hart passed for 353 yards last Sunday as the Cardinals wiped out a three-touchdown Pittsburgh lead and battled the Steelers to a 28-28 tie.

Earl Morrall continues to pilot the Colts and together with a devastating defense which has permitted just two touchdowns in the last three weeks, he has kept Baltimore neck and neck with the Rams.

Los Angeles, too, has been doing it with defense. The Rams have allowed 111 points—only three more than league-leading Baltimore. They beat Atlanta by a touchdown last week with some clutch running from Tommy Mason and Willie Ellison.

John Brodie passed for 199 yards and two TDs but suffered four interceptions against Chicago as the 49ers lost their fifth game last week.

Green Bay tries to climb back into the Central Division picture against New Orleans. The world champion Packers have lost four and tied one in five division games this year. Over-all, they're 3-5-1 and 1½ games back of both Detroit and Minnesota.

TOP RUSHER

Cleveland, clinging to a one-half game edge in the Century Division, has won four straight and five in the last six weeks. The Browns have the NFL's leading rusher in Leroy Kelly, who has gained 890 yards in 144 carries. Pittsburgh, after dropping six straight, has not lost in three weeks.

New York closed to within one game of Dallas in the Capitol Division race by knocking off the Cowboys last Sunday. The Giants could tie for the lead by beating winless Philadelphia and getting some help from Washington, which hosts Dallas.

Jets, Namath Attempt To Decide AFL Western Title In Oakland

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The New York Jets, already a cinch winner in the Eastern Division, launch phase one of their role tomorrow to help determine the team they will face in the American Football League's championship showdown.

The Jets, owners of a bulging 3½-game lead in their division, step into the thick of the Western Division chase—tightest in AFL history—for a two-game West Coast swing.

They take on Oakland Sunday, then meet San Diego the following week—the two teams currently locked in second place with 7-2 records, just one half game behind Kansas City, 8-2.

A pair of Jet victories would not only assure them of their first Eastern title ever, but also could help set up Kansas City as the Jets' foe for the right to move on to the Sugar Bowl.

New York's magic number is only two for clinching the title —any combination of Jet victories and Boston or Houston losses totaling two gives the Jets the crown.

The Jets, who turned back Kansas City and San Diego earlier this season, are winging along on a four-game victory streak although Joe Namath hasn't thrown a touchdown pass in six games.

But Namath hasn't been needed with Joe Turner's foot around. Turner booted four or five field goal attempts in a 26-7 coast past Houston last week to take over the league's scoring leadership.

BLANDA AT HELM

The Raiders may have to combat New York with the oldest player in the league—40-year-old George Blanda—handling the quarterback duties again.

A decision on whether injured Daryle Lamonica would start was not expected to be made until game time. Blanda filled in last week and rifled four touchdown passes in a 43-7 blasting of Denver—the Raiders third straight since a loss to Kansas City.

The Chiefs and the Chargers, meanwhile, aren't expected to have much difficulty winning. Kansas City plays host to Boston, 3-6, while San Diego goes to Buffalo, 1-8-1. Denver, 4-5, is at Houston and Cincinnati, 2-8, at Miami, 3-5-1, in other league games.

Boston's big chore in trying to stop a three-game losing streak will be to contain the Chiefs' rookie Robert Holmes, who carried 21 times for 158 yards and caught all five of Kansas City's completions for 62 yards in a 16-9 victory over Cincinnati last week. The Pats gave San Diego a rugged battle most of the way last week before finally losing, 27-17.

Buffalo faces a murderous task in attempting to stop the Chargers' John Hadl led attack, the most potent in the league. And, the Bills have to do it with a lineup riddled with injuries. Even rookie quarterback Dan Darragh, who is subbing for a sub, is injured and may not be able to play.

Madison Square Garden Gets Brawling Baptism

NEW YORK (AP) — The new Madison Square Garden got its baptism of whiskey and wine bottles and stray chairs last night in a wild demonstration after the main event of a fight show.

When Ismael Laguna of Panama, former lightweight champion, was given a majority decision over Roman Blanco of Venezuela by way of Puerto Rico, the trouble started.

Ringside spectators scattered for the exits and reporters and the referee crawled under the ring while pieces of glass bounced off chairs and showered the fugitives.

Several seats were ripped with knives. One small fire was reported to have started. The hockey press box was torn up and a small refrigerator was torn from its moorings.

OLD SCENE

It was a scene reminiscent of riots in the old Garden in recent years. Trouble started after the Flash Elorde-Frank Narvaez match March 10, 1967 and the Dick Tiger-Jose Torres bout May 16, 1967.

Three spectators were reported to have been slightly injured. One complained of a shoulder injury suffered in a fall. Another had superficial cuts. Both were examined by Dr. Kazuo Yanigasawa, the Garden physician.

This spectator can report that the thump, thump of hard objects overhead in the ring and the shower of splintering glass were real enough to make a man want to take his boxing on television.

FANCY

Laguna, 136, is a fancy dancer type with quick hands and agile moves. Blanco, 136, called in Wednesday as a sub for the ailing Bunny Grant of Jamaica, is a sturdy little man who gave away height and reach but almost made up for it in punching power.

He wobbled Laguna two or three times but the Panamanian always escaped and came back strong, his jab spinning his opponent with those quick hands.

Referee Jimmy Devlin and Judge Tony Rossi each scored it 7-3 for Laguna. Judge Johnny Dran had it even at 5-5 in rounds and 6-6 in points. The AP had Laguna a 6-4 winner.

A crowd of 8,500 fans paying $40,000 saw the show that also featured two other 10-rounders.

Luis Rodriguez, 153½, a Cuban who lives in Miami and a former world welter champ, won a unanimous decision over Joe Shaw, 148, New York in one ten.

Another Powerhouse For 49ers

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— They say life for a rookie coach isn't easy. For San Francisco's Dick Nolan it's ridiculous.

For the seventh straight week, Nolan's task has been to prime his Forty Niners for a battle against a National Football League powerhouse. tomorrow the Los Angeles Rams, currently tied with Baltimore for the Coastal Division lead, will furnish the opposition on the Kezar Stadium gridiron.

The Rams started it all seven weeks ago by taking the Forty Niners, 24-10. Since then, Nolan's forces have met Baltimore, New York, Detroit, Cleveland and Chicago, all title contenders.

As it turned out, the Forty Niners won two—over the Giants and Lions—and dropped the others. For the season, San Francisco is 4-5 while the defensively rugged Rams are 8-1.

If—and it's a big if—the Forty Niners can carry over their second half performance against Chicago, Bay Area fans may be in for some cheering. After being down 24-0 at the half last Sunday, San Francisco stormed back to outscore the Bears 19-3 in the final two quarters.

Again, the Forty Niners attack will revolve around the passing combination of John Brodie to Cliff McNeil but the Rams won't be able to concentrate solely on the ex-Cleveland pass catcher.

Massive Kevin Hardy will take over Clark Miller's spot on the defensive line and, in the only other change, Mel Phillips was named to start in place of John Fuller.

Bullets Take Over In East

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

A Tale of Four Cities—or A Gruelling Way to Drop out of First Place. That's the latest chapter of the Cincinnati Royals' episodes in the National Basketball Association.

In first place in the NBA's Eastern Division with an 8-2 record, the Royals opened a four-straight-day, four-city tour with a 126-115 victory over the Bullets at Baltimore.

They finished it last night in third place with a 10-4 mark after losing 116-105 to the Celtics in Boston.

Meanwhile Baltimore, 12-4, is in first place, ahead of Boston, 9-3, after pounding the Milwaukee Bucks 129-102 last night.

In other action, Philadelphia nipped Atlanta 116-115, Los Angeles stopped San Diego 127-119, San Francisco turned back Detroit and Seattle edged Phoenix 128-124 in two overtimes.

Player-coach Bill Russell sent Cincinnati out of first place when he sparked a 10-point Boston surge that broke an 80-80 tie by turning in a three-point play in the third period.

Bailey Howell scored 27 points for the Celtics, who had seven players in double figures. Oscar Robertson had 28 and Jerry Lucas 21 for Cincinnati.

MISSED SHOTS

Two missed foul shots and a pair of good ones spelled the difference in the Philadelphia-Atlanta game. With Atlanta leading 115-114 and seven second left, Walt Hazzard missed two free throws that would have clinched it for the Hawks. Bill Cunningham then made two with two second remaining to win it for Philadelphia.

Cunningham finished with 27 points, high for the game, and Luke Jackson contributed 23 for the 76ers. Lou Hudson scored 26 and Hazzard 21 for Atlanta, whose coach, Richie Guerin, reactivated himself for the game but did not play.

34 FOR WEST

Jerry West and Elgin Baylor teamed to guide Los Angeles' Western Division leaders to their sixth straight. West drilled in 34 points and Baylor scored 28, offsetting a 38-point performance by rookie Elvin Hayes.

Lenny Wilken's six points in the second overtime enabled Seattle to slip past the Suns.

Boros Finds Putter

ROME (AP) — Now that Julius "The Moose" Boros has recovered his putting form, the chances look better than ever for the United States to take the undisputable lead today in the World Golf Cup Championship.

The 48-year-old Boros of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., fashioned a 70—much of it on the greens—in yesterday's second round.

Nationalist China was at the same level. Both nations were five shots ahead of the field.

"Yes, I found the putter," said Boros.

That's all this lazy swinger needs to outstrip the field.

FINE STYLE

Trevino of Dallas has shown fine style around the greens ever since the contest started Thursday and yesterday's rain and chill failed to dampen his spirits.

They were even par at 288 and Kinsella thanked a strange kind of driver for it. He shot a four under-par-68 yesterday and said:

"My driving is pretty good, I have one now that's an inch longer than standard and two ounces heavier. It has two shafts, you see, one down inside the other. I had to do that to mend it because I broke it when I was riding my bicycle.

STIFF DRIVER

The 6,850-yard par 72 Olgiata course has been a good deal tougher than expected.

Roberto De Vicenzo, of Argentina, former British Open champ, said, "I don't understand it but I play it not very good and I can't putt."

Lu Liang-Huan of Nationalist China shot another 69 for the individual lead at 138.

LAKERS, WARRIORS IN LOCAL NBA WARFARE

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The rampaging Los Angeles Lakers, who have won six straight and nine of 10, test their high-powered offense against the San Francisco Warriors tonight in a battle between the NBA's two top western teams.

The Lakers, who spot a 10-4 record and first place, reeled off their sixth straight win last night with a 127-119 decision over San Diego in Los Angeles.

Meanwhile, the Warriors rolled up a whopping 73 points in the first half and romped to an easy 133-105 home triumph over Detroit. The Warriors' season mark is 7-7 and they trail the Lakers by three games.

Elvis Hayes followed his 54-point performance of Wednesday night with a 38-point effort to pace the Rocket scorers.

In San Francisco, Rudy LaRusso and Jeff Mullins each scored 16 points in the first half as the Warriors coasted to a comfortable 73-49 midway margin. The reserves took over and finished out the final quarter.

Mullins' 22 points was tops for the game with rookie Fritz Williams adding 21 and Nate Thurmond 19 with 23 rebounds.

Proud Sayers Walks Out Of Hospital

CHICAGO (AP) — Gale Sayers, the Chicago Bears' injured superstar, walked out of Illinois Masonic Hospital yesterday with the same pride and dominance he employes on the football field.

Sayers, who last Sunday night underwent knee surgery for torn ligaments, amazed the medical world by walking out of the hospital less than a week after his operation.

Refusing crutches and keeping the cast on his right leg out of sight under his blue slacks, the player called the most exciting runner in the National Football League vowed he'd be back next season without any mental blocks.

Sayers suffered the injury early in the second quarter of last Sunday's triumph over the San Francisco 49ers when he was hit by defensive back Kermit Alexander, one of Sayers' closest friends in football. Minutes later Dr. Theodore Fox announced Sayers would undergo surgery that night and would be lost for the season.

FANTASTIC

Dr. Fox, who performed the operation, said yesterday "his recovery so far is fantastic. I tried to give Gale crutches Tuesday but the refused them. He's a week ahead of anybody I know who had a similar injury. Gale will be back next year as good as ever, you have my word for it."

Sayers, in his first interview since the mishap, said "it's the breaks of the game. You always think about it, a knee injury, I mean. I never worried about it, but I did think about it—carrying the ball as much as I do. So I was prepared mentally."

Asked if he can overcome the haunting fear that comes to many runners following such injries, Sayers said, "I'm not going to let that worry me. There will not be a mental block. I'll be able to overcome this. Other players have had the same thing and come back."

French Money In Trouble; German Mark Riding High

LONDON (AP) — Anxiety about the French franc rubbed off on the U.S. dollar and the British pound today as the world's top bankers assembled in Basel, Switzerland, to discuss a growing monetary crisis.

Speculators rushed to get rid of francs, dollars and pounds, switching to gold, commodities and the German mark, currently rated the safest of all paper money.

Financial commentators here said the market activity was the most fevered since the pound sterling was devalued exactly a year ago, despite official assurances that the franc will not be devalued.

The meeting in Basel was to be a routine monthly session of central European bankers. But there have been persistent rumors that the West German mark will be revalued upward from its present level of about 25 American cents, and France is expected to seek massive international support for the franc.

Swiss bankers reported they were inundated with orders for German marks. The authoritative London Financial Times reported the French money market was showing signs of panic, with private banks cleared out of marks and Swiss francs.

One factor acting against the franc was fear that France may bring back exchange control, causing the rush to switch to other freely convertible currencies or commodities. The French Finance Ministry denied it was even considering exchange control.

Another factor was the rise in the French cost of living, now running at 5 per cent a year. This inevitably made the franc's purchasing power suspect.

In London, the free market price of gold—always an indicator in times of currency trouble—reached $40 an ounce for the first time since September. The official price is $35.

French Money In Trouble; German Mark Riding High

LONDON (AP) — Anxiety about the French franc rubbed off on the U.S. dollar and the British pound today as the world's top bankers assembled in Basel, Switzerland, to discuss a growing monetary crisis.

Speculators rushed to get rid of francs, dollars and pounds, switching to gold, commodities and the German mark, currently rated the safest of all paper money.

Financial commentators here said the market activity was the most fevered since the pound sterling was devalued exactly a year ago, despite official assurances that the franc will not be devalued.

The meeting in Basel was to be a routine monthly session of central European bankers. But there have been persistent rumors that the West German mark will be revalued upward from its present level of about 25 American cents, and France is expected to seek massive international support for the franc.

Swiss bankers reported they were inundated with orders for German marks. The authoritative London Financial Times reported the French money market was showing signs of panic, with private banks cleared out of marks and Swiss francs.

One factor acting against the franc was fear that France may bring back exchange control, causing the rush to switch to other freely convertible currencies or commodities. The French Finance Ministry denied it was even considering exchange control.

Another factor was the rise in the French cost of living, now running at 5 per cent a year. This inevitably made the franc's purchasing power suspect.

In London, the free market price of gold—always an indicator in times of currency trouble—reached $40 an ounce for the first time since September. The official price is $35.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, Nov. 16 the 321st day of 1968 with 45 to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase. The morning stars are Mars and Jupiter. The evening stars are Saturn and Venus.

On this day in history:

In 1908 conductor Arturo Toscanini made his American debut.

In 1933 the United States and Russia established diplomatic relations.

In 1966 Dr. Sam Sheppard was acquitted of the 1954 slaying of his wife after the jury deliberated 9 hours.

Also in 1966 President Johnson underwent surgery for removal of a benign throat polyp and repair of a hernia.

A thought for the day: Scottish novelist Robert Lewis Stevenson wrote: "Mankind was never so happily inspired as when it made a cathedral."

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce, United States Coast Geodetic Survey. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Will South Give Us Something To Cheer Or Bring On Tears?

Since everybody has enough strength to bear the other fellow's misfortunes, my readers should not suffer unduly over South's defeat in today's hand. But suppose you were South: would you give the rest of us something to cheer about or would we have to shed tears for you, too?

RUFFS HEARTS

The actual declarer ruffed the third round of hearts and led a club to dummy's king. East took the ace of clubs and returned a club, forcing South to ruff.

South led out the ace and king of spades and tried a finesse with the queen of diamonds. When this held, he led a few more trumps and then hopefully led the ace of diamonds. The king didn't drop, and South was down one.

Now decide how you would play the hand before you read on. You can be the hero instead of the fall guy.

CAREFUL RUFFING

To begin with, you must ruff the third heart with the nine of spades and the second club with the 10 of spades. Now, after five routine tricks you need two entries to dummy so that you can take two diamond finesses.

Lead the deuce of spades. When West plays low, try a finesse with dummy's seven of spades. When this "unnecessary" finesse works you can take a diamond finesse at once, returning to dummy with the king of spades to repeat the finesse.

DRAW LAST TRUMP

You then draw the missing trump and bow to the applause.

If you ruffed the heart or the club with the deuce of trumps and later led the three of trumps toward dummy, West could play the eight of trumps and thus limit you to one entry to dummy. West would have to be a genius to make this play, but why leave anything to chance?

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes. You hold:

♠ 8 6 4
♥ Q J 10 6
♦ 6 5 2
♣ Q 10 9

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two hearts. This borderline decision is justified by your strong heart support. If partner had opened with one spade, you would have passed.

Philippine Courts Increase Payments

MANILA (UPI)—The Philippine Supreme Court has doubled to 12,000 pesos ($3,000) the award of compensatory damages for death caused by crime.

The court said in a ruling the raise was necessary because of the lower purchasing power of the Philippine peso after World War II.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, Nov. 16 the 321st day of 1968 with 45 to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase. The morning stars are Mars and Jupiter. The evening stars are Saturn and Venus.

On this day in history:

In 1908 conductor Arturo Toscanini made his American debut.

In 1933 the United States and Russia established diplomatic relations.

In 1966 Dr. Sam Sheppard was acquitted of the 1954 slaying of his wife after the jury deliberated 9 hours.

Also in 1966 President Johnson underwent surgery for removal of a benign throat polyp and repair of a hernia.

A thought for the day: Scottish novelist Robert Lewis Stevenson wrote: "Mankind was never so happily inspired as when it made a cathedral."

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce, United States Coast Geodetic Survey. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Will South Give Us Something To Cheer Or Bring On Tears?

Since everybody has enough strength to bear the other fellow's misfortunes, my readers should not suffer unduly over South's defeat in today's hand. But suppose you were South: would you give the rest of us something to cheer about or would we have to shed tears for you, too?

RUFFS HEARTS

The actual declarer ruffed the third round of hearts and led a club to dummy's king. East took the ace of clubs and returned a club, forcing South to ruff.

South led out the ace and king of spades and tried a finesse with the queen of diamonds. When this held, he led a few more trumps and then hopefully led the ace of diamonds. The king didn't drop, and South was down one.

Now decide how you would play the hand before you read on. You can be the hero instead of the fall guy.

CAREFUL RUFFING

To begin with, you must ruff the third heart with the nine of spades and the second club with the 10 of spades. Now, after five routine tricks you need two entries to dummy so that you can take two diamond finesses.

Lead the deuce of spades. When West plays low, try a finesse with dummy's seven of spades. When this "unnecessary" finesse works you can take a diamond finesse at once, returning to dummy with the king of spades to repeat the finesse.

DRAW LAST TRUMP

You then draw the missing trump and bow to the applause.

If you ruffed the heart or the club with the deuce of trumps and later led the three of trumps toward dummy, West could play the eight of trumps and thus limit you to one entry to dummy. West would have to be a genius to make this play, but why leave anything to chance?

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes. You hold:

♠ 8 6 4
♥ Q J 10 6
♦ 6 5 2
♣ Q 10 9

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two hearts. This borderline decision is justified by your strong heart support. If partner had opened with one spade, you would have passed.

"Now, make me a newspaper by tonight"

Tall order . . . since a complete newspaper such as the Independent-Journal is at once the most complex yet lowest-priced product that can be made in one day.

Every day a new "model" . . . delivered by nightfall. To do this job against the clock–

- our 18 reporters comb the county, observing, interviewing, phoning, writing, getting the facts for you.
- thousands of AP and UPI newsmen check the world for you, put its pulse on the wire.
- teletypes chatter some 120,000 words to us, from as close as Mill Valley, as far away as Capetown.
- rolls of paper, each 850 lbs., move in from Canada and the Northwest.
- electronic impulses turn into photographs on a machine—the world in black and white, caught in action.
- the managing editor watches for the big stories, gauging the importance of each, overseeing the editorial "construction" of the paper, from content to design.
- pressmen feed the giant press with ink and paper—a taste of what's to come.
- "Circulation" readies for the job of distributing the paper, via 700 newspaperboys, to two out of three homes in the county.
- experts set type for news, for ads—enough in one day to fill a good-sized book.
- the retail advertising staff, 10 strong, contacts almost every business in the county . . . planning campaigns, offering merchants professional service in copywriting, layout and merchandising.
- the city editor "feels" for the news on a hundred fronts, hands out assignments, shaping the news force to the shape of events.
- engravers work their chemical magic, placing print and picture on metal.
- the women's editor and staff of 5 molds food and fashions, social doings, meetings, school events, into a women's world.
- syndicates send in both national and world-wide features—columns, comics, cartoons.
- specialists "make up" the paper, designing every page of news and ads.
- the art department creates illustrations, layouts, designs, cartoons.
- photographers race the news throughout the county, clicking the visual happenings of Marin today.
- ink for the press arrives not in bottles but tank trucks.
- color plates and color inks are being readied for ads, special editions, covers—all to brighten your reading eye.
- sports "jump" in the typewriters of the sports department and Willie Mays leaps up into a headline.
- "Classified" is setting up the county's daily market place, and the phone rings with "wanted" and "for sale."
- headlines are being written against deadlines—and the tight confines of space.
- vital statistics are being compiled; weather and stock reports are coming in.
- the mechancial superintendent moves the copy through a maze of linotypes, electronic typesetters and the precise hands of men who literally know type up-side down.
- the library is digging up background data for stories, filing photos, micro-filming each edition of the newspaper.
- legal ads get eagle-eyed checking for accuracy.
- orders are coming in from the nation's advertising agencies with mats for advertisements—everything from autos to ant spray.
- issues become the tissue of editorials—the reasoned interpretation of events.
- proofreaders scan every line of news and advertising trying to hold errors to a minimum against the pressure of time.
- letters to the editor are being read for possible publication.
- the dispatch office is moving ads into production—checking size, type, mats, insertion dates, art, photos—a hundred elements.
- our national representatives are meeting with ad agencies and advertisers in New York, Detroit, Chicago—a dozen cities—telling them about Marin County and its newspaper.
- special contributors' columns on fishing, baseball and many others are being processed.
- Marin Magazine is being dummied; stories developed for the Saturday edition—picturing life in Marin.

Live Storage Held Hope For Organs

Another heart transplant recipient walked out of his hospital room on the way to a new life yesterday—and a pioneering transplant surgeon suggested a new method for maintaining potential transplant hearts before surgery.

Stanford University heart surgeon Dr. Norman E. Shumway said in Los Angeles it may be possible for one person to serve as a "host" for an organ to be transplanted later. (See also story on donors, page 19.)

Shumway, who has performed seven heart transplants, said a heart has been maintained in the neck of a dog for four days, although the experiment has never been attempted on a human.

He said the host would suffer no ill effects, though the parasitic organ might suffer some damage during the transitionary period.

In Houston, the world's 27th heart recipient, Henry W. Jurgens, 57, was released yesterday from St. Luke's Hospital to take up apartment living.

The Beatrice, Neb., man, who received the heart of a 16-year-old auto accident victim July 23, was in good condition and has "much color in his cheeks," a hospital spokesman said.

Jurgens was Dr. Denton A. Cooley's seventh heart transplant patient and the fifth patient to be released from a Houston hospital. He will live with his wife three blocks from the hospital, returning daily for checkups and medication.

Fred Christian Everman, 58, of Arlington, Va., whose transplant operation at St. Luke's preceded that of Jurgens by three days, yesterday was up and about again—with the help of a protective corset. He fractured a vertebrae in a hospital fall in October.

One of the more recent transplant recipients, Andrew S. Perhace, 55, of Hempstead, N.Y., practiced his putting game in his St. Luke's Hospital room yesterday. Perhace, who received the heart of a 27-year-old New Jersey housewife last Saturday, now is on a regular diet and receives his family for visits regularly.

In his Los Angeles speech, Shumway also commented on the current status of heart transplant technique around the world. He said there is a 50 per cent survival rate.

A total of 80 heart transplant operations have been performed on every continent. There are 41 survivors.

"I am not dissatisfied with the progress of this year, but I am certainly not proud of it," Shumway said. "It is what you might expect at the outset."

WANTS TO SELL SELF — Ex-Marine Charles P. Gannon of Portland, Ore., seeks to sell off his heart, liver, eyes and other potentially transplantable organs while still alive, in order to pay off debts for himself and his hospitalized wife. "It's the only honest way I know of to pay off my debts and get right with the world," says the former member of Carlson's Raiders in World War II. (AP Wirephoto)

Auto Owners Warned On Smog Control

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Owners of motor vehicles will be denied registration if their vehicles do not contain operative smog control devices.

The warning was issued yesterday by the Department of Motor Vehicles, Highway Patrol and Air Resources Board at a joint news conference called to explain the administration of the antismog legislation which became law this week.

Verne Orr, director of motor vehicles, said his department will not change smog codes that are a part of the registration form for 1967 and older vehicles without approval of the Highway Patrol or a certificate of inspection from a licensed garage or service station.

Orr and R. A. Kridler, deputy commissioner of the Highway Patrol, said smog control devices on the crankcase or exhaust are frequently altered or made ineffective by engine modifications.

Kridler said the CHP "will cite" persons when the required smog control devices are found to be missing or inoperative in random roadside inspections the patrol conducts on about 150,000 vehicles each month.

The world is yours.

Sausalito Profanity Ban Struck Down On Appeal

Three Marin Superior Court judges, sitting in appellate court, have struck down a Sausalito city ordinance which made it illegal to use rude or profane language.

Their action came in the case of George Michael Barnes, 38, of Marin City, accused of swearing at Sausalito policeman Gary Gee when stopped for speeding on Bridgeway Aug. 18, 1967.

Judge Hadden W. Roth of Municipal Court found him guilty of the offense and turned back a constitutional challenge to the ordinance March 7.

Lawyer Theodore C. Lachelt, representing Barnes for the American Civil Liberties Union, appealed the case on grounds that state laws preempted the field of the Sausalito ordinance on the grounds of free speech.

The appellate court, composed of Judges Thomas F. Keating, Joseph G. Wilson and Samuel W. Gardiner, reversed Judge Roth's decision Wednesday without comment.

The ordinance was passed by the Sausalito City Council Nov. 9, 1966. City Atty. Leland Jordan defended the ordinance before the tribunal.

The decision of the judges leaves the ordinance without any force, said Lachelt, who termed the decision a victory for freedom of speech.

Immigration into California has averaged about 1,000 persons a day almost every year since 1950.

Chimp Liver Used In Try To Aid Girl

ATLANTA (UPI)—A 3-year-old girl, whose veins were linked to those of a chimpanzee for nearly six hours yesterday in a last-ditch effort to save her life, was reported in "slightly improved" condition today.

Dr. Joseph Patterson, organizer of the team of physicians which performed the delicate operation believed to be the first with a human and a chimpanzee, said the unidentified child was still comatose after the linkup.

But he said the girl, who was fighting a losing battle against hepatitis, a virus infection attacking the liver, was able to maintain the function of her own system after the link was severed.

The object of the operation, he said, was to allow the chimp's liver to work for the girl, giving her own liver time to recover and fight against the infection.

Patterson said chances were "overwhelmingly against" the child's recovery.

Yesterday's operation at Egleston Hospital in the Emory Medical School complex was the first performed with a chimpanzee. Similar operations, using baboons, have been performed at the Medical College of Virginia and by Dr. Christiaan Barnard, the pioneer heart transplant specialist. Only Dr. Barnard's 29-year-old woman patient recovered.

The 68-pound chimpanzee, named Cassandra, was supplied for the operation by the Yerkes regional primate center. She was chosen because she had the same type-O positive blood as the patient.

Live Storage Held Hope For Organs

Another heart transplant recipient walked out of his hospital room on the way to a new life yesterday—and a pioneering transplant surgeon suggested a new method for maintaining potential transplant hearts before surgery.

Stanford University heart surgeon Dr. Norman E. Shumway said in Los Angeles it may be possible for one person to serve as a "host" for an organ to be transplanted later. (See also story on donors, page 19.)

Shumway, who has performed seven heart transplants, said a heart has been maintained in the neck of a dog for four days, although the experiment has never been attempted on a human.

He said the host would suffer no ill effects, though the parasitic organ might suffer some damage during the transitionary period.

In Houston, the world's 27th heart recipient, Henry W. Jurgens, 57, was released yesterday from St. Luke's Hospital to take up apartment living.

The Beatrice, Neb., man, who received the heart of a 16-year-old auto accident victim July 23, was in good condition and has "much color in his cheeks," a hospital spokesman said.

Jurgens was Dr. Denton A. Cooley's seventh heart transplant patient and the fifth patient to be released from a Houston hospital. He will live with his wife three blocks from the hospital, returning daily for checkups and medication.

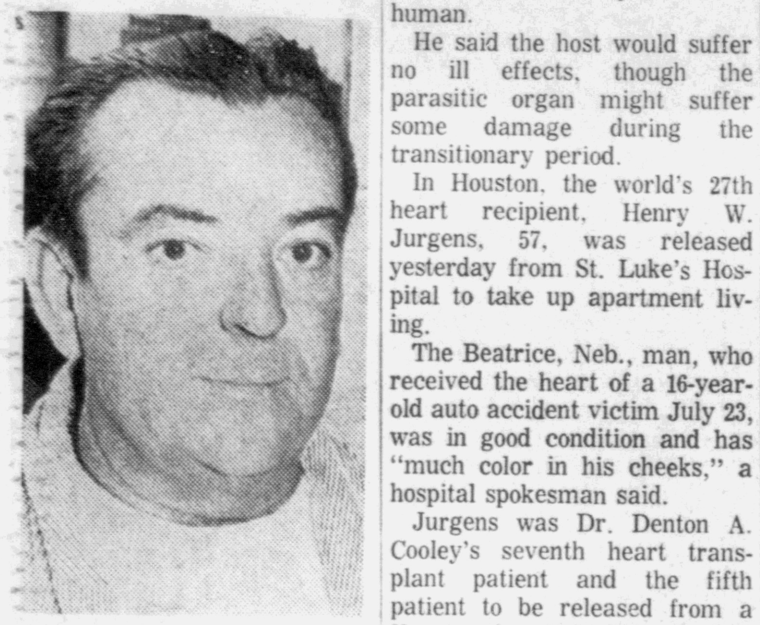
Fred Christian Everman, 58, of Arlington, Va., whose transplant operation at St. Luke's preceded that of Jurgens by three days, yesterday was up and about again—with the help of a protective corset. He fractured a vertebrae in a hospital fall in October.

One of the more recent transplant recipients, Andrew S. Perhace, 55, of Hempstead, N.Y., practiced his putting game in his St. Luke's Hospital room yesterday. Perhace, who received the heart of a 27-year-old New Jersey housewife last Saturday, now is on a regular diet and receives his family for visits regularly.

In his Los Angeles speech, Shumway also commented on the current status of heart transplant technique around the world. He said there is a 50 per cent survival rate.

A total of 80 heart transplant operations have been performed on every continent. There are 41 survivors.

"I am not dissatisfied with the progress of this year, but I am certainly not proud of it," Shumway said. "It is what you might expect at the outset."



WANTS TO SELL SELF — Ex-Marine Charles P. Gannon of Portland, Ore., seeks to sell off his heart, liver, eyes and other potentially transplantable organs while still alive, in order to pay off debts for himself and his hospitalized wife. "It's the only honest way I know of to pay off my debts and get right with the world," says the former member of Carlson's Raiders in World War II. (AP Wirephoto)

Auto Owners Warned On Smog Control

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Owners of motor vehicles will be denied registration if their vehicles do not contain operative smog control devices.

The warning was issued yesterday by the Department of Motor Vehicles, Highway Patrol and Air Resources Board at a joint news conference called to explain the administration of the antismog legislation which became law this week.

Verne Orr, director of motor vehicles, said his department will not change smog codes that are a part of the registration form for 1967 and older vehicles without approval of the Highway Patrol or a certificate of inspection from a licensed garage or service station.

Orr and R. A. Kridler, deputy commissioner of the Highway Patrol, said smog control devices on the crankcase or exhaust are frequently altered or made ineffective by engine modifications.

Kridler said the CHP "will cite" persons when the required smog control devices are found to be missing or inoperative in random roadside inspections the patrol conducts on about 150,000 vehicles each month.

'THE ORIGINAL REBEL'

Trevor Howard Is Mellowing— But He's Still Far From Square

By PATRICIA E. DAVIS

NEW YORK (UPI)—Actor Trevor Howard, who has been called a "hellraiser" and a "gentleman rogue," says that at the age of 53 he is mellowing—but not intentionally.

"It is necessary at my age to mellow," he noted, "but I can't say I'm mellowing intentionally. I'm still doing pretty well, but I find it harder to stay up late at night."

Howard has appeared in over 50 films in a 28-year acting career and is currently starring in "The Charge of the Light Brigade" for United Artists release. "I love acting," he said in an interview, "but I'm perfectly willing to declare my innings closed and never work again."

HOWARD, WHO lives outside London with his wife, actress Helen Cherry, insists he's "a very simple man.

"I like nice people—isn't that a terrible cliche? I won't tolerate rudeness, bad behavior or any kind of discourtesy. If it comes up I just disappear—the world and I can live without that."

"I do hope I'm not sounding pompous about this," he added. "Don't make me sound like an old square."

HOWARD, NOTED for his portrayal of Captain Bligh in "Mutiny on the Bounty," says he was at his "hell-raising best" in the mid-1950s.

"I was really wild in those days. I'd hit all the clubs. I used to spend a lot of time at Eddie Condon's (a now-defunct jazz club in Greenwich Village).

"You know," he continued, "Eddie called me the other day after he saw me on TV. I think that's a great compliment—I thought he was dead and told him so.

TREVOR HOWARD
Hell-raiser in 1950s

"MOST OF my old musician friends—my darling friends from Harlem and the Metropole—are dead and gone now, dammit, dammit.

"I used to love New York—I still do—but it's all changed now. The places I was really wild in don't exist any more. Those were great days and now they're gone. I don't know where to go for a drink these days."

Howard terms himself "the original rebel . . . 30 years ago—rebelled against everything . . . now I leave most of the rebelling to the younger set . . . they have the control."

BESIDE HAVING "control" Howard noted, the younger set has an innovation of which the actor approved . . mini-skirts.

"They drive me insane . . . they're too provocative for me. Maybe they should be longer. But it's nice when you're my age to still get a kick out of girls in mini-skirts."

However, he disapproves of the modern dances, calling them "thoroughly sexless."

HOWARD, A slight, ruddy-faced man who has played British army officers galore in American war films ("I always seem to be in uniform") feels that American productions tend to "kill" British actors.

"They decry us . . . they tried to make me look like a nothing man in 'Bounty' and 'Von Ryan's Express." I don't mind looking like a nothing man, but I don't want to let my country down."

Born in England, Howard was raised in Ceylon, Los Angeles and Canada. His father, who was in the shipping business, hoped Howard would be a career army officer, but instead he entered the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art. After playing in several dramas, Howard switched to motion pictures.

HE HAS appeared in "The Third Man," "The Roots of Heaven" ("my favorite role, but it was a lousy film. It wasn't my fault, anyway."), "Around the World in 80 Days," and "Operation Crossbow."

Although he started on the stage, Howard has no desire to return. "I hate saying the same thing night after night. I can't bear at my time of life to be a gramophone record."

'THE ORIGINAL REBEL'

Trevor Howard Is Mellowing—But He's Still Far From Square

By PATRICIA E. DAVIS

NEW YORK (UPI)—Actor Trevor Howard, who has been called a "hellraiser" and a "gentleman rogue," says that at the age of 53 he is mellowing—but not intentionally.

"It is necessary at my age to mellow," he noted, "but I can't say I'm mellowing intentionally. I'm still doing pretty well, but I find it harder to stay up late at night."

Howard has appeared in over 50 films in a 28-year acting career and is currently starring in "The Charge of the Light Brigade" for United Artists release. "I love acting," he said in an interview, "but I'm perfectly willing to declare my innings closed and never work again."

HOWARD, WHO lives outside London with his wife, actress Helen Cherry, insists he's "a very simple man.

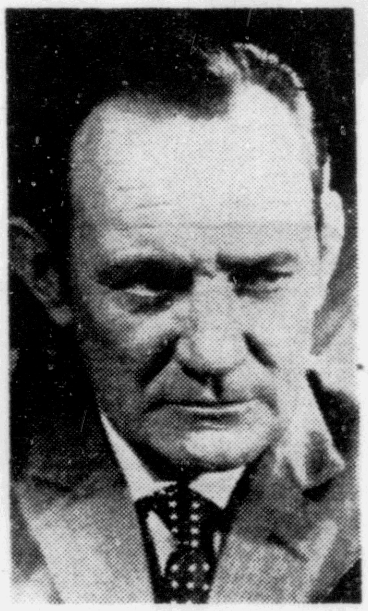
"I like nice people—isn't that a terrible cliche? I won't tolerate rudeness, bad behavior or any kind of discourtesy. If it comes up I just disappear—the world and I can live without that."

"I do hope I'm not sounding pompous about this," he added. "Don't make me sound like an old square."

HOWARD, NOTED for his portrayal of Captain Bligh in "Mutiny on the Bounty," says he was at his "hell-raising best" in the mid-1950s.

"I was really wild in those days. I'd hit all the clubs. I used to spend a lot of time at Eddie Condon's (a now-defunct jazz club in Greenwich Village).

"You know," he continued, "Eddie called me the other day after he saw me on TV. I think that's a great compliment—I thought he was dead and told him so.



TREVOR HOWARD
Hell-raiser in 1950s

"MOST OF my old musician friends—my darling friends from Harlem and the Metropole—are dead and gone now, dammit, dammit.

"I used to love New York—I still do—but it's all changed now. The places I was really wild in don't exist any more. Those were great days and now they're gone. I don't know where to go for a drink these days."

Howard terms himself "the original rebel . . . 30 years ago—rebelled against everything . . . now I leave most of the rebelling to the younger set . . . they have the control."

BESIDE HAVING "control" Howard noted, the younger set has an innovation of which the actor approved . . mini-skirts.

"They drive me insane . . . they're too provocative for me. Maybe they should be longer. But it's nice when you're my age to still get a kick out of girls in mini-skirts."

HOWARD, A slight, ruddy-faced man who has played British army officers galore in American war films ("I always seem to be in uniform") feels that American productions tend to "kill" British actors.

"They decry us . . . they tried to make me look like a nothing man in 'Bounty' and 'Von Ryan's Express." I don't mind looking like a nothing man, but I don't want to let my country down."

Born in England, Howard was raised in Ceylon, Los Angeles and Canada. His father, who was in the shipping business, hoped Howard would be a career army officer, but instead he entered the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art. After playing in several dramas, Howard switched to motion pictures.

HE HAS appeared in "The Third Man," "The Roots of Heaven" ("my favorite role, but it was a lousy film. It wasn't my fault, anyway."), "Around the World in 80 Days," and "Operation Crossbow."

Although he started on the stage, Howard has no desire to return. "I hate saying the same thing night after night. I can't bear at my time of life to be a gramophone record."

THE PRISON DOC

Recalls Early San Quentin's Warden Hoyle

(Editor's Note: This is another in a series of articles written by Dr. Leo L. Stanley, long-time surgeon at San Quentin Prison, on his recollections of events and persons during his service at the prison.)

By DR. LEO. L. STANLEY

During the 38-year period between 1913 to 1951 that I was in prison work, except for four years with the Navy in World War II, I knew seven different wardens as my bosses.

Without exception, they were fine men who became my personal friends.

The first of these, but one of the best remembered, was John E. Hoyle, appointed San Quentin warden in 1907 when John C. Edgar resigned because of ill health. Hoyle was then secretary of the State Board of Prison Directors and had achieved a reputation as a clear thinker and a progressive student of prison affairs. Previously he had been a newspaper editor. It was his espousal of the cause of the proper political party that earned him his prison appointment, since the warden post was then considered a political "plum."

JOHN E. HOYLE was a large, friendly man, with a warm countenance. I know he must have wondered if he was acting wisely when he named me assistant resident physician in his huge institution. I had no political pull, and at 26 was just out of medical school.

Nevertheless, within six months after my coming to the prison, he had the courage to make me head of the medical department. I know he was criticized for not appointing an older man with some political weight. But he was steadfast in his decision.

Certainly the medical department was in need of some new blood and some improvements. The services and facilities had been allowed to deteriorate sadly, and a revitalization was a necessity without delay.

THE MEDICAL OFFICER was then on call 24 hours a day, with one day off a month, and even for this he needed the warden's permission and was required to keep the prison informed as to his whereabouts. In some ways, he was little better off than the convicts.

But I set to work upon a program for improving the health of the inmates, and establishing a useful, serviceable hospital.

One big step forward came when the warden approved Dr. Francis Stolle, recent medical school graduate, as my assistant. Being unfamiliar with protocol, I made the announcement to the press. It was innocently done, but the next day Warden Hoyle called me to his office.

"DOCTOR," HE SAID rather sternly, "you are new at this prison. If newspapers ring you up and ask for information in the future, refer them to me. Good day!"

It was a lesson I never forgot.

I remember that I got myself in "wrong" with the usually amiable warden on one other occasion.

He developed "cold sores" on his lips, and asked me to prescribe something for him. I sent him a small vial of weak silver nitrate with directions that it be applied lightly to the affected areas. But he applied the medicine overgenerously. The result: Lips dyed a deep black. It was several days before the coloration wore off. The cold sores were cured, but whether by time or my treatment, I do not know.

JOHN E. HOYLE, warden at San Quentin for nearly seven years shortly after the turn of the century, was an affable man who introduced a number of prison reforms and improvements.

HOYLE HAD TAKEN office hailed as a reform warden who would change the system overnight, as newcomers invariably were. If he did not live up to those expectations, he nevertheless had some good ideas on penology.

He proceeded with caution and sometimes acted slowly in firing officials incompetent or in disfavor. But he worked consistently for better conditions, gradually reducing the worst forms of abuse of prisoners. And he was generally regarded at the time as the most efficient warden San Quentin had known.

Many predicted that given 10 years or more he would earn a reputation as the best warden in the country. But he was to have not quite seven years as prison chief. Our association was all too brief before he left the prison, going to San Francisco where he engaged in the hotel business successfully for a number of years.

HE BEQUEATHED TO his successors a number of enlightened practices, some of which were felt particularly during the holiday season. He initiated a Christmas amnesty by which lost privileges were restored, punishment slates washed clean and prisoners enabled to start the new year fresh.

He favored early in his administration permitting prisoners to receive Christmas gift packages from the outside, but was dissuaded because of the ingenuity with which narcotics and other contraband were so often hidden in such parcels.

It was a measure of Hoyle's success and the respect he earned from the inmates when a New Year's Eve arrived and passed without the usual clamor and disturbances from the imprisoned men. Traditionally, the convicts looked upon New Year's Eve as a time to let off steam—to make all the noise possible, yelling and shouting obscenities and hatred, beating against the barred doors with their wash-basins, striking steel partitions with stools, creating bedlam. Their repressions and despair poured out in torrents.

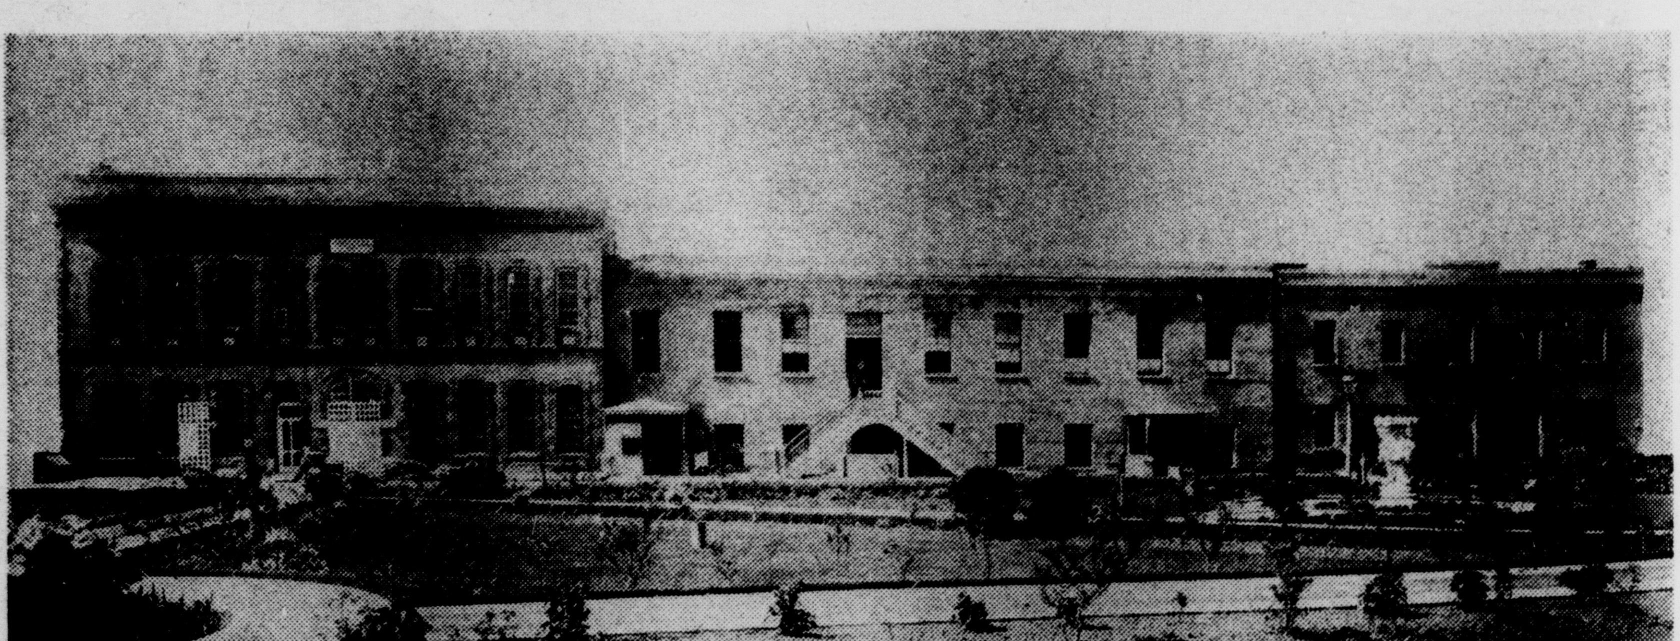
But this year, a week before New Year's Eve, Warden Hoyle had toured the cell blocks. Greeting him were a number of empty stockings protruding from the wickets of nearly every cell. It was the inmates' ironical way of calling his attention to Christmas Eve.

They had intended it as a joke. But Warden Hoyle took the hint. He sent an officer to San Quentin Point with instructions to purchase all the confections and fruit that could be found in the village. Then the prison staff was put to work stuffing these treats into the Christmas stockings.

NEXT MORNING when the prisoners awoke, they found that Santa Claus had indeed visited San Quentin Prison.

These hardened men were deeply touched. And out of appreciation for a warden who had shown both a humane spirit and a sense of humor, there was no New Year's Eve demonstration that year.



WITHIN MONTHS after reporting to work at San Quentin Prison, Dr. Leo L. Stanley, a young recent medical school graduate, had been promoted by Warden John E. Hoyle to head of the medical department and placed in charge of the hospital building that appears at left. Dr. Stanley promptly initiated an improvement program for the hospital that had been built in 1886 and had fallen into sad neglect.

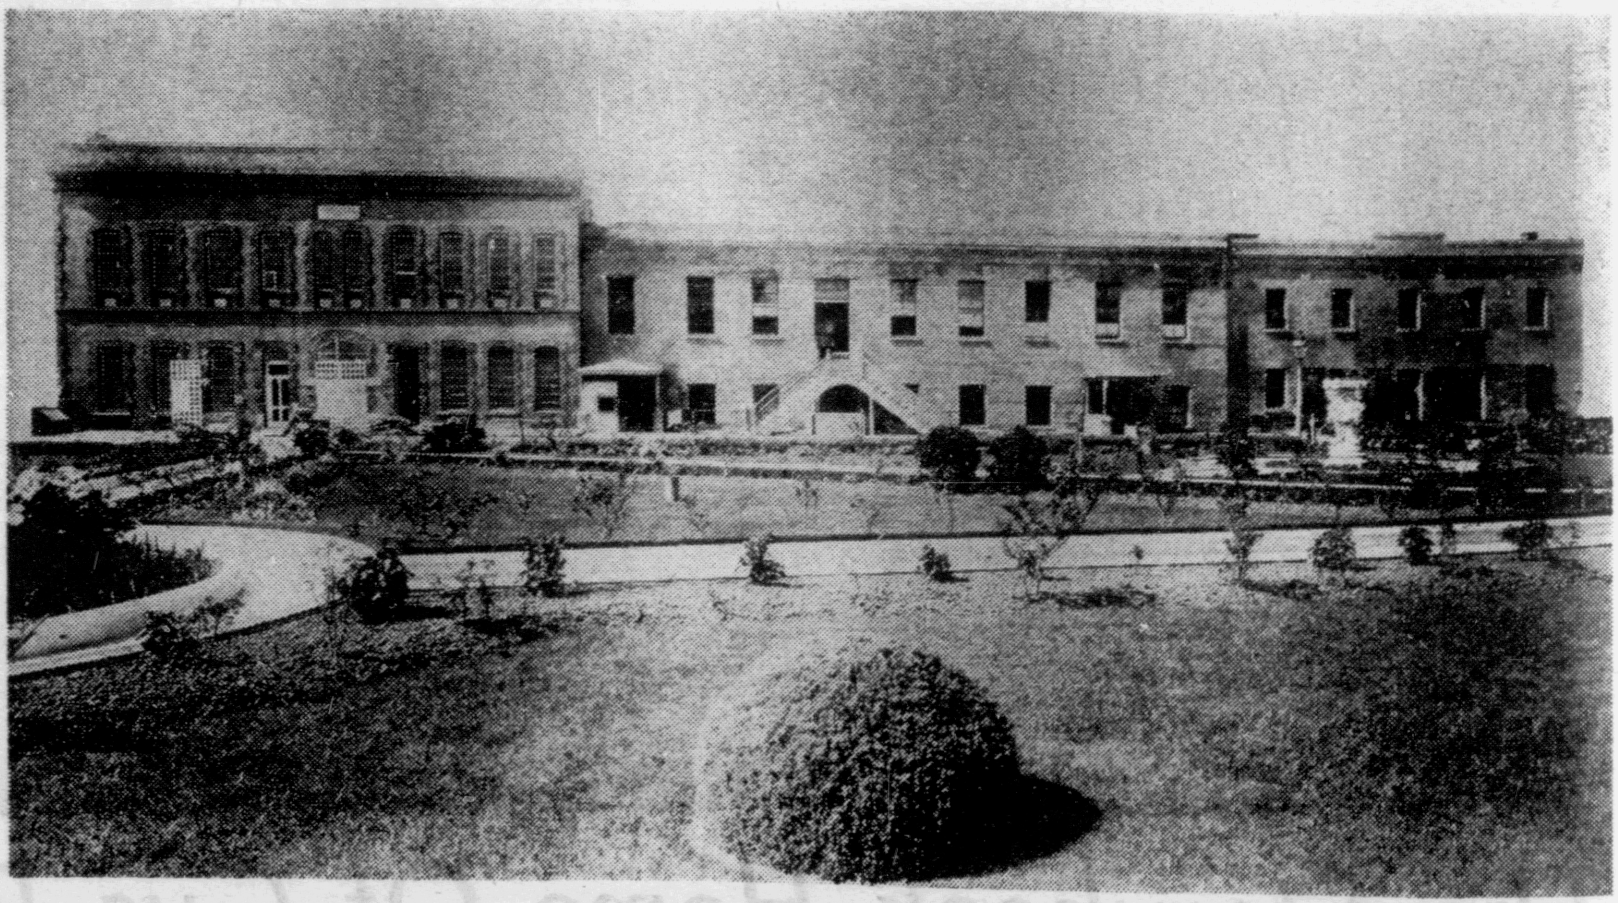
But this year, a week before New Year's Eve, Warden Hoyle had toured the cell blocks. Greeting him were a number of empty stockings protruding from the wickets of nearly every cell. It was the inmates' ironical way of calling his attention to Christmas Eve.

They had intended it as a joke. But Warden Hoyle took the hint. He sent an officer to San Quentin Point with instructions to purchase all the confections and fruit that could be found in the village. Then the prison staff was put to work stuffing these treats into the Christmas stockings.

NEXT MORNING when the prisoners awoke, they found that Santa Claus had indeed visited San Quentin Prison.

These hardened men were deeply touched. And out of appreciation for a warden who had shown both a humane spirit and a sense of humor, there was no New Year's Eve demonstration that year.



WITHIN MONTHS after reporting to work at San Quentin Prison, Dr. Leo L. Stanley, a young recent medical school graduate, had been promoted by Warden John E. Hoyle to head of the medical department and placed in charge of the hospital building that appears at left. Dr. Stanley promptly initiated an improvement program for the hospital that had been built in 1886 and had fallen into sad neglect.

Built Of Packed Earth With Loving Care

By C. B. GEARHART

On one of the shelves of a terraced slope in the beautiful tree-covered ridge area near Inverness known as Silver Hills sits what must be one of Marin County's most unusual homes.

It is the dwelling of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Rohmann. And it is unusual in several respects.

It is unusual in that it was built by the residents, themselves.

It is unusual in its principal material — pounded earth.

And it is unusual in its appearance.

From the outside it looks very much like a quaint and beautiful "Hansel and Gretel" storybook gingerbread house.

Inside, it has many equally distinctive features.

IN AN AREA of holly groves and stately giant Siamese pine trees, the Rohmanns began building their house in 1950. It was substantially, though not finally, completed several years later.

"Actually," says Rohmann, "we are still working on it from time to time."

For their building material, the Rohmanns looked to the decomposed granite that surrounded their construction site.

Landscaping and interior decorating have also commanded the attention of the Rohmanns.

THE ENTRANCE gate sets the artistic tone for the entire place with its floral decoration. There is a large decorative sculpture at the entry to the garden. There are flowers and shrubs, growing lushly, thanks to the plastic pipe irrigation system. The outside patio is moss covered, and large sweeps of discarded marble have been worked into beautiful designs. The house is embellished by carefully carved gingerbread trim.

Inside the house, the kitchen rates as a focal point with its large windows that virtually bring the outdoors inside. There's a large wood-burning oven as well as a gas range. And there's an old-fashioned harvest table.

The living room, too, has a huge window that opens up the vistas of trees and hills.

But perhaps the most eye-catching facet of the interior is the decorated ceiling, done by the artistically talented Mrs. Rohmann, a beautician by profession. Mrs. Rohmann achieved her unusual effect by the

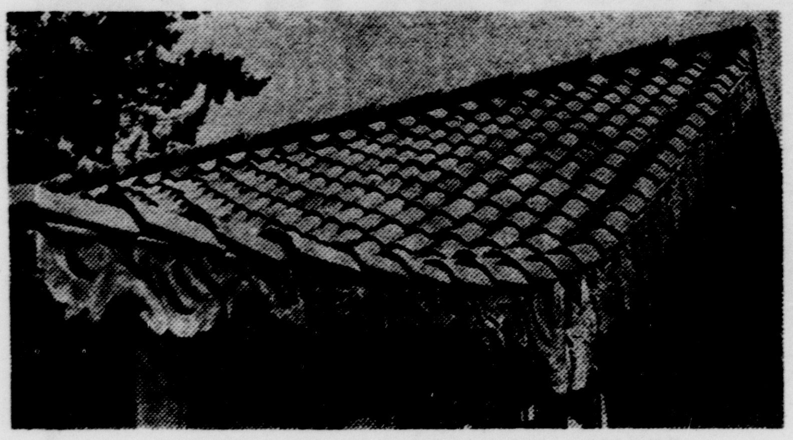
THE INTRICATELY carved oaken door leading into the Gus Rohmann home catches the eye of the visitor immediately and sets the tone for the further evidence of the creativity, ingenuity and industry of the occupants that he will encounter inside.



THE GINGERBREAD trim along the roofline of the Rohmann house is further evidence of the artistic tastes and talents of the owner-builders. Mrs. Rohmann did the carving which contributes to the Hansel and Gretel cottage effect that the Rohmanns have created in their home.

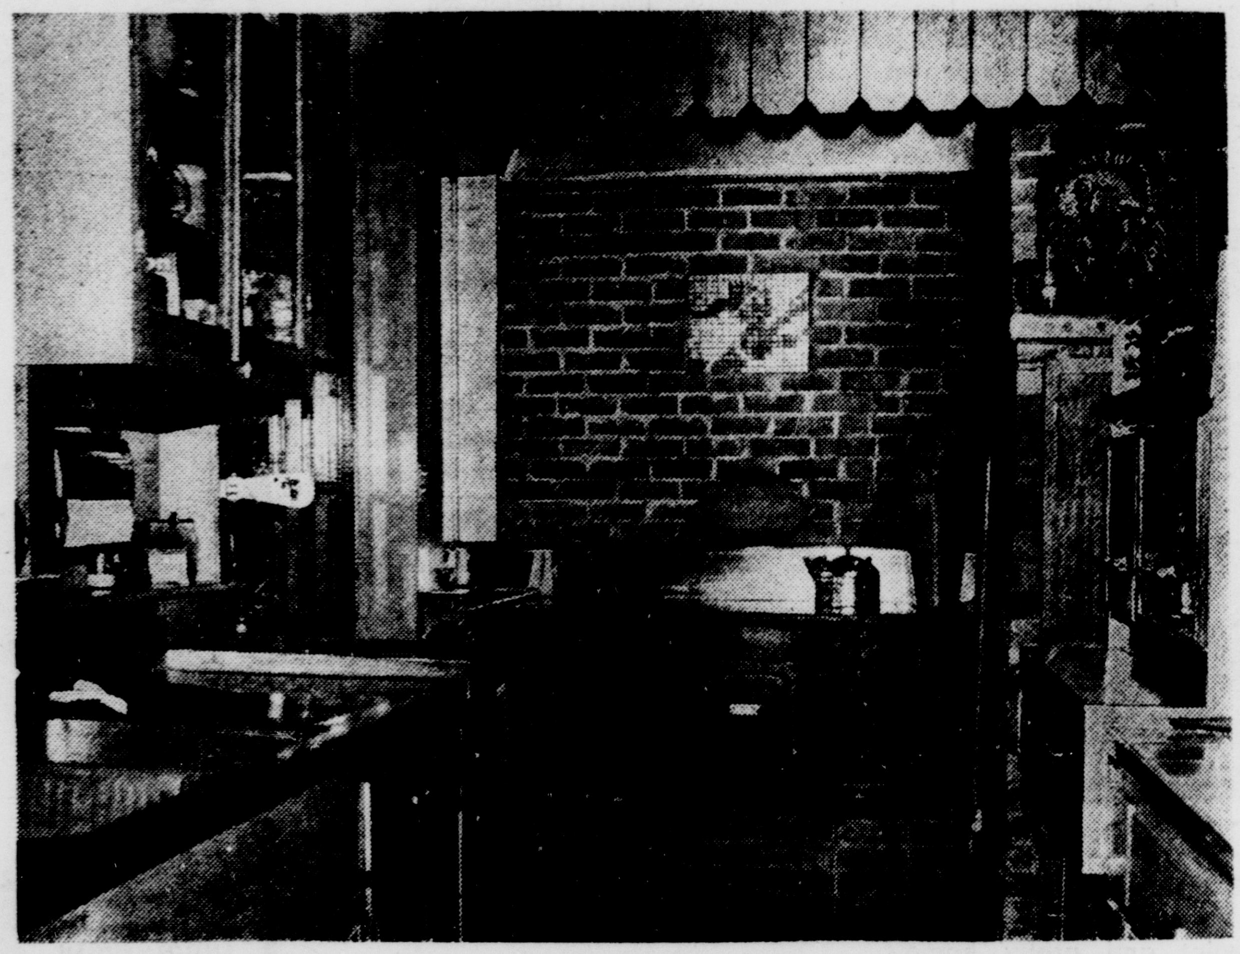
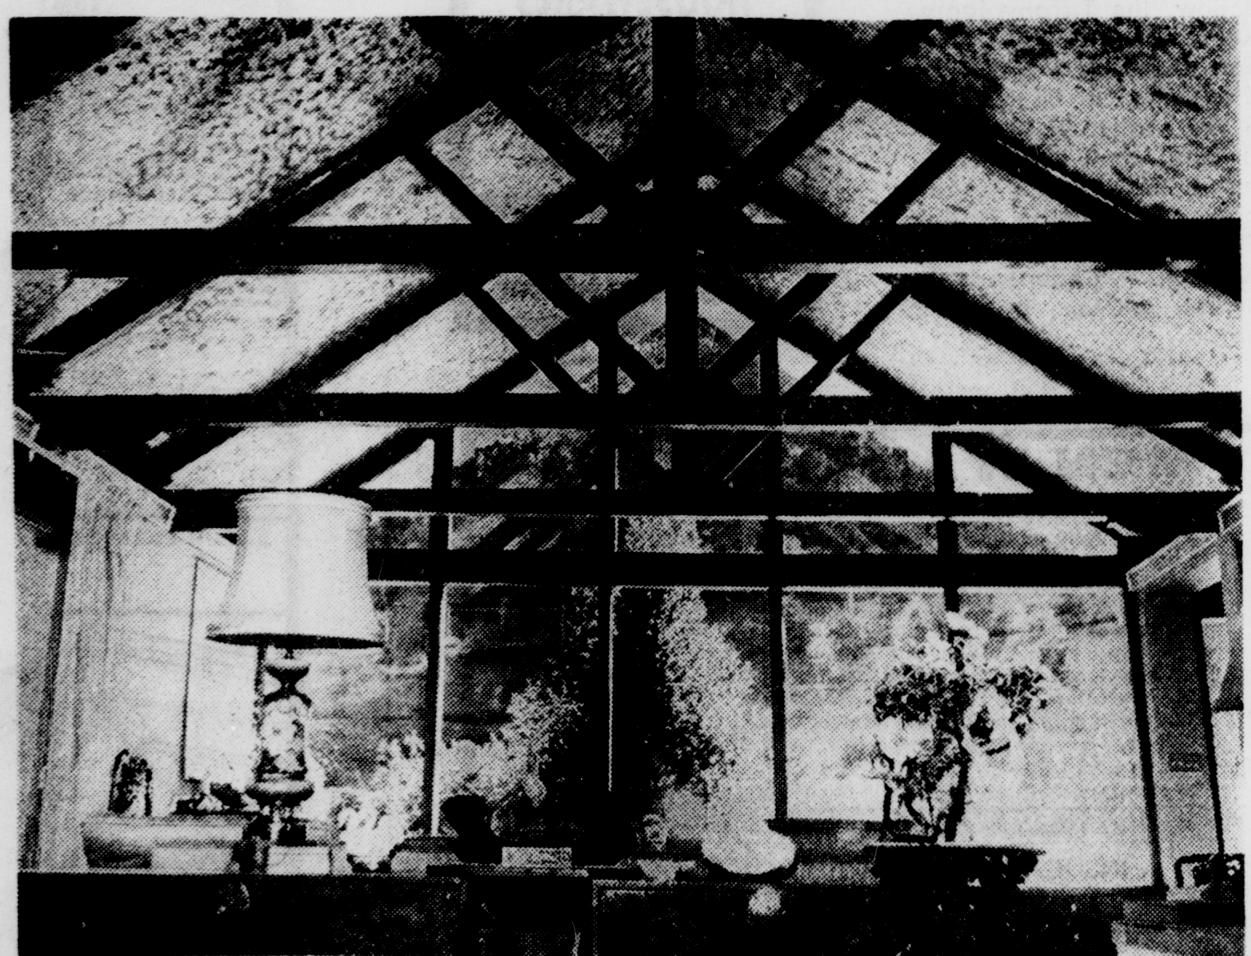
THIS EXTERIOR VIEW of the Gus Rohmann home looks into the courtyard and shows the "pounded earth" taken from the area around the building site that makes up the principal construction material used in the house. The roof is a red tile.



THE GUS ROHMANN kitchen features a wood-burning oven, at center, that is in use frequently for both cooking and heating, although there is a gas oven at right. The Rohmann flair for artistic touches shows up here, too.



THE LIVING ROOM of the Rohmann home, like the kitchen, has a huge view window. The painted ceiling, stained wooden beams and Oriental furnishings are other features of the room.

Finishing metalwork in the home, including that for the fireplace, is copper.

THE HOME throughout reflects the creative tastes of the Rohmanns as well as their ingenuity. It is a home that functions in perfect harmony with its spacious, natural surroundings — cozily warm in winter, pleasantly cool in summer, always bright and cheerful.

Rohmann, now retired, is an expert in plastic extrusion processes, and a skilled tool and die maker. For many years he commuted between West Marin and his work in the East Bay.

Now handicapped by arthritis, he was once an expert alpinist and an ardent hiker.

With the finding of Silver Hills, Rohmann says, his urge for roaming and for outside adventure faded.

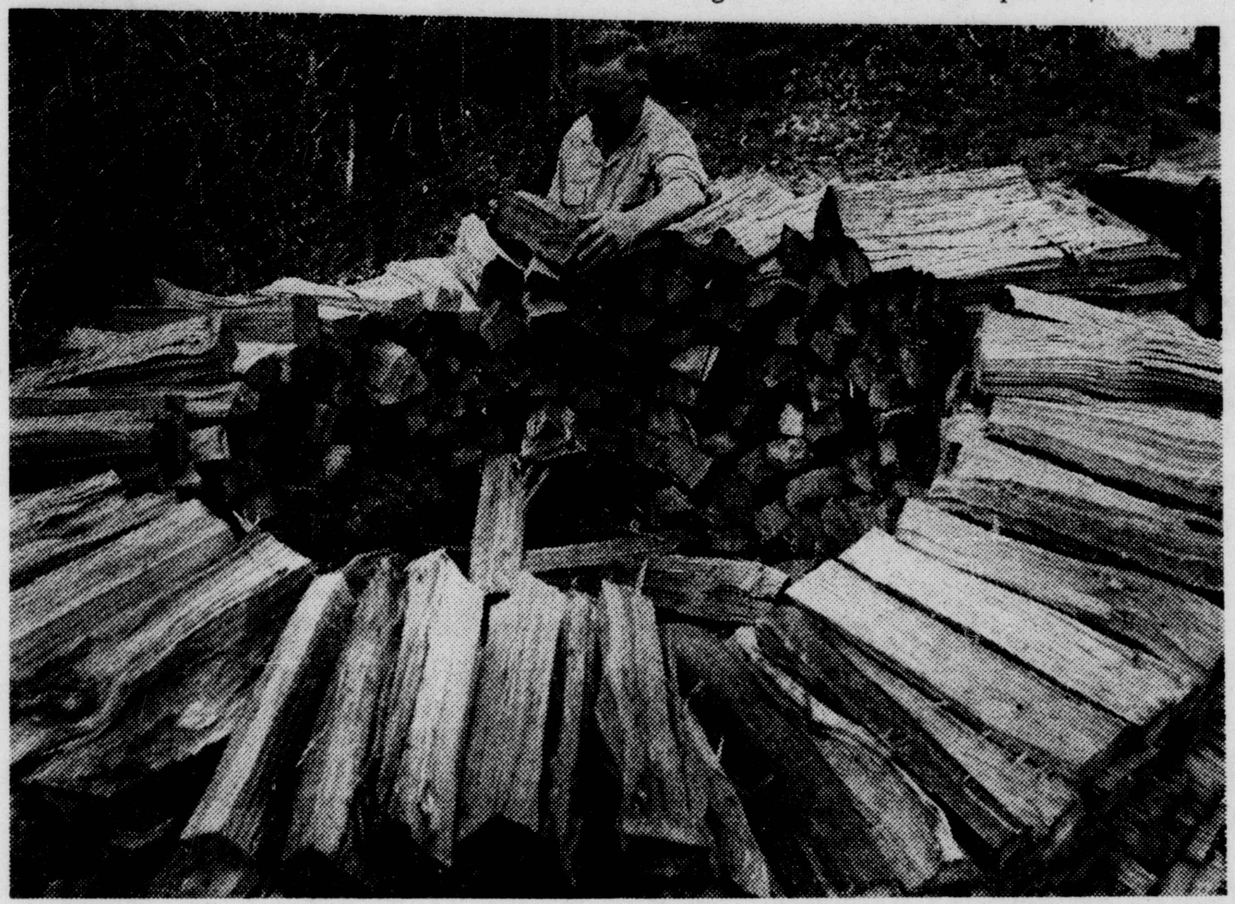
He and Mrs. Rohmann, he believes, have built with their own hands something that will endure. It brings them joy and comfort. And it brings pleasure, too, to visitors and passers-by who invariably are enchanted by the fairytale cottage of Silver Hills.



ARTHRITIS HASN'T made Gus Rohmann inactive. For instance, he cuts huge quantities of wood. And he stacks the sticks in the fashion of his native Germany, in a circular pattern that when completed will be more than head high, with the center filled in.

"What Can I Do About A Plastic Stain on My Dress?"

The increased use of plastic bags is making this stain more common that it used to be. Plastic, as you know, melts when it touches hot surfaces. Even in a closed automobile in the hot sun, plastic has been known to fuse onto a garment. Hot radiators in the home or closet also melt plastic bags.

Don't become disheartened when you find a plastic bag has melted onto one of your garments. Take it to your drycleaner. He should be able to help. Then, in the future, be careful not to permit the plastic bag to come in contact with heat, especially when it covers a garment.

Speaking of plastic bags, remember, too, that they should be kept away from babies and children. Do not use them in cribs, carriages or play pens. The tragedies which have resulted from suffocation could have been prevented if plastic bags, like household poisons, had been kept out of reach of children and babies.

Pencil Has Power In The Hands Of Artist

By GIL PEARSON

A century ago in his play, "Richelieu," Edward Bulwer Lytton wrote: "The pen is mightier than the sword."

Today the Marin scenes sketched by Tiburon's Willard Roswell Cox seem to call for an extension of the remark — that the pencil can be greater than the pen, or for that matter, the brush.

For, while Cox is gifted with pen and brush, it is his delicate touch with the simple pencil which is netting him the sound recognition implied in a rash of purchases of his blacklead scenographic renderings. People are buying these works in the form of cards for mailing, matted and framed in original size (16 inches by 20 inches), and as enormously blown-up murals.

AS A MARINITE for the past 28 years, this artist became increasingly disturbed by the encroachment of civilization upon the county's hills, dales and waterways. There grew in him an urge to capture for posterity the virgin quality of the local countryside by recording on paper the way it still sometimes is these fleeting days — before the bulldozers churn too much of it away.

Over the past three years he has turned out 30 Marin scenes.

However, Cox is more artist than businessman. His efforts in reproducing these exquisite pencilings for the market are scant. His quantities available for mailing, for framing and for murals fall far short of production sufficient to meet the demands of tourists, new homeowners and furnishers of commercial buildings.

"I need an organized distribution," he admits. And he would like to produce his work in book form. For this he needs a writer and a publisher.

ON HIS OWN, Cox has distributed his cards for mailing and his matted full-size sketches for public buying at the Fairmont and St. Francis hotels, the San Francisco Maritime Museum, the Decor Art Gallery, the Village Fair, Varney's in Mill Valley, the Tiburon Lodge, La Botique and a few other places.

He has pencil murals in the Lobster Trap at Foster City and at the Moulin Studios in San Francisco.

His Marin subjects include Mount Tamalpais as seen from Sausalito. He selected late afternoon for this work so as to catch the deep shadows and at the same time allow for good lighting for the terraced homes.

HIS SKETCH OF the entrance to Marin over the

His San Francisco skyline was drafted up from Fort Baker at the northern end of the Golden Gate Bridge. Because of the rapid building construction going on in the city, Cox had to change the skyline several times before completing his drawing.

HIS OTHER scenes include Tiburon Vintners as a hangover of architecture of the 1880s; the San Rafael mission, one of the last of the chain of Franciscan missions; the Corinthian Yacht Harbor with Angel Island in the background as seen from the waterfront restaurants; the Point Bonita Lighthouse perched on the northern headlands entrance to the Golden Gate.

And there are many others.

Willard Cox and his wife, Gladys, live on a Tiburon slope with a view toward San Francisco. Their home is hidden among trees which provide shade over their two patios which are obviously magnificently appointed for outdoor doings.

"Yes," Cox concedes, "there have been a few parties here."

IF THIS ARTIST needs help in promoting markets for his Marin-promoting sketches — and he does — it is because he has always been an artist, with little time to get involved with distribution business.

Most of his life has been spent in the advertising illustration field. He has handled oil, watercolor and black and white media on accounts for Standard Oil and Olympia Brewing among many others. He exhibits his fine arts at the Bohemian Club each year.

On eight occasions Cox made the list for the best hundred posters, as judged by a selection of major national advertising agencies. He has taken a first prize in watercolor at the Museum of Fine Arts in Seattle, and he has exhibited works in various media in galleries on a wide front.

"My word for aspiring artists," Willard Roswell Cox says, "is to attend art schools to learn the basics." He himself studied at the California School of Fine Arts and the Frank Van Sloun School in San Francisco.

WHILE IT IS true that this artist made it his career policy to accept all the challenges the competitive field of commercial art taunts creative people with, still there were at least two occasions in his youth when Cox ran away from terrifying adversity.

He quit San Francisco's Polytechnic High School in his third year because of a stern admonition he got for not having an ROTC uniform.

Later on, after he had taken a few art lessons and a couple of little art shop jobs, he and a friend boldly decided to tackle the tremendous art opportunities in Hollywood. They called on one art director after another and on each occasion built themselves up as skilled artisans of the brush. Finally one director said, "OK, show up tomorrow for scheduled paintings of our stars. You'll have one hour with each."

But when Cox and his friend saw the list of stars they wilted.

"They were people like Rudolph Valentino, Wally Beery, Marie Dressler and Mary Pickford," Cox recalls.

And adds, "We chickened out that very night and ran away to Seattle."

Pencil Has Power In The Hands Of Artist

By GIL PEARSON

Today the Marin scenes sketched by Tiburon's Willard Roswell Cox seem to call for an extension of the remark — that the pencil can be greater than the pen, or for that matter, the brush.

For, while Cox is gifted with pen and brush, it is his delicate touch with the simple pencil which is netting him the sound recognition implied in a rash of purchases of his blacklead scenographic renderings. People are buying these works in the form of cards for mailing, matted and framed in original size (16 inches by 20 inches), and as enormously blown-up murals.

AS A MARINITE for the past 28 years, this artist became increasingly disturbed by the encroachment of civilization upon the county's hills, dales and waterways. There grew in him an urge to capture for posterity the virgin quality of the local countryside by recording on paper the way it still sometimes is these fleeting days — before the bulldozers churn too much of it away.

Over the past three years he has turned out 30 Marin scenes.

However, Cox is more artist than businessman. His efforts in reproducing these exquisite pencilings for the market are scant. His quantities available for mailing, for framing and for murals fall far short of production sufficient to meet the demands of tourists, new homeowners and furnishers of commercial buildings.

"I need an organized distribution," he admits. And he would like to produce his work in book form. For this he needs a writer and a publisher.

ON HIS OWN, Cox has distributed his cards for mailing and his matted full-size sketches for public buying at the Fairmont and St. Francis hotels, the San Francisco Maritime Museum, the Decor Art Gallery, the Village Fair, Varney's in Mill Valley, the Tiburon Lodge, La Botique and a few other places.

He has pencil murals in the Lobster Trap at Foster City and at the Moulin Studios in San Francisco.

His Marin subjects include Mount Tamalpais as seen from Sausalito. He selected late afternoon for this work so as to catch the deep shadows and at the same time allow for good lighting for the terraced homes.

Sardinia Beckons Tourists

Island Offers Both History And Scenery

By ELIZABETH VON KAHL

Like the postman on a bike, a travel agent often spends his holidays taking trips — to check out new or revised travel facilities.

When 20 American Society of Travel Agents members were invited recently to visit little know Sardinia, Bert Talbot of Tiburon went along as the agent from Marin.

Following the standard procedure for their clients, the agents gathered before takeoff for a get-acquainted cocktail party at the Golden Door Restaurant, at New York's Kennedy Airport.

"After counting noses and exchanging notes on other trips, we boarded an Alitalia flight to Milan," Talbot recalls. "A variety of wines and a delicious steak dinner helped make the trip a pleasant one. Although, because of the five-hour change in time, we barely squeezed in three hours of sleep before arrival."

IN MILAN, they visited Duomo Square and the cathedral before continuing on to Genoa. In Italian style, they enjoyed there a typical seven-course lunch at a charming waterfront restaurant called I Sette Nase (The Seven Noses). The hearty lunch included antipasto, soup, a paste course, entree, salad, dessert and/or cheese and fruit, and coffee.

ON SARDINIA, even the new hotels try to look antique to please the newly promoted tourist trade. Hotel Cervo is located on one of the Mediterreans's finest harbors.

"The restaurant was so named because its proprietor had a family of seven little noses at home," Talbot explained.

"Later than day we boarded a Tyrrenia steamship for the overnight voyage to Porto Torres. The 200-passenger ship is thoroughly modern and operates daily between the mainland and Sardinia."

"ON ARRIVAL at the host island, we observed the solemnity of the ritual-loving Sardinians toward their dead. Aboard ship were a hearse, flowers and the deceased. As the crane lifted the hearse in a huge sling to the wharf, the mourners formed a procession. Sailors and dockhands stopped work to stand at attention, hats in hand, until the funeral celebrants passed by."

An hour's limousine ride took them through the country to Algehro, third largest city in Sardinia.

"Built around the site of an ancient Catalan fortress, the city offers visitors a great deal of history. We toured its narrow streets, fortressed dating back 500 years to the Spanish occupation, its old section and its historic churches."

"AT THE FISH market, we learned that sardines are also past history. They have been fished out or disappeared, as was the case of the sardines we formerly had on the Pacific Coast."

A major industry in modern Sardinia is wine-making. More than 200 varieties of wine are produced from grape orchards all over the island. Sardinia started opening its shores to tourists only within the last 10 years.

On the itinerary was the Bay of Caccia (Capo Caccia) with its Grottoes of Neptune.

"Capo Caccia is a magnificent bay, surrounded by perpendicular cliffs from 200 to 300 feet high," according to Talbot. "Here the aqua blue Mediterranean is contrasted by the starkness of the rugged coast line, with alternating beaches of pure white sand.

"NESTLED IN the horseshoe-shaped shoreline of the bay are two hotels, Capa Cacci and El Faro, both modern in every respect but native in furnishings.

"Our next stop was the fabled Costa Emeralda, a beautiful stretch of coast owned by the Aga Khan and his associates. The area is as picturesque as the many stories told about it, with its wandering coastline and many inlets opening into miles of sandy beaches."

"It is an orderly development, with no sign of the small, under-financed tourist shops that can become shoddy. In the planned development of the Emeral Coast, the emphasis is on preservation of natural beauty. It is a credit to the Aga Khan's corporation, or consorium to use the European term."

FIVE HOTELS have been completed on the Emeral Coast, two deluxe, two first class and one tourist class. The luxurious Cala di Volpe was originally built as a residence for the Aga Khan. Its rooms are decorated with handwoven Sardinian fabrics and antique furniture.

The group stayed at the Hotel Cervo, a sprawling 62-room Mediterranean structure that appeared to blend into the Sardinian village.

"Located on a magnificent harbor, reported to be one of the finest in the Mediterranean, it was constructed to appear antique but it represents the ultimate in luxury," Talbot said.

"Sardinian hotels are small in the number of their rooms," he added. "During July and August, European society gathers along the coast and then accommodations become difficult to get."

THE GROUP'S itinerary took it next to the island's capital, Cagliara, a busy, commercial city. "Our tour included a visit to a hunting lodge in the mountains east of the city where the villagers were holding a boar feast. In Sardinian costumes, a group of about 30 boys and girls played and sang native music and danced."

In the few days remaining, the agents visited the archeologically interesting city of Nora and the historic Nuraghic village of Marumini.

"We were impressed by the contrasts of Sardinia and its development," Talbot reflected. "We agreed that a visit to Sardinia with its natural beauty and history would be well worth the time and expense for American tourists. It's a lovely and unusual spot to 'get away from it all.' "

Cream Of The Sports Crop

OLYMPIC CHAMPIONS by Carli Laklan; Funk & Wagnalls, 163 pages, $4.95.

HIGH ON THE WILD WITH HEMINGWAY by Lloyd R. Arnold; Caxton Printers, 343 pages, $9.95.

By DON KEOWN

The Olympic Games unquestionably provide a showcase for the sports world at its finest.

Compared to the international amateur spectacle, the professional extravaganzas, the World Series, the Rose Bowl, the Wembley Cup, et al, seem almost grimy in their commercialism and hysteria.

The Olympics achieve this pinnacle despite a tendency by its bureaucratic officialdom to bumble, despite the jarring habit of some coaches to complain and carp, and despite the persistent efforts of the news media to inject jingoism where none belongs, and to inflate minor incidents into crisis proportions.

The reasons why the Olympics have survived these drawbacks and generally achieved their primary purpose of creating goodwill that transcends national boundaries can be found in the special qualities of the men and women who compete. They have truly been plucked from the flower of humanity.

This is borne out by Carli Laklan's new book, "Olympic Champions: Why They Win." It may well be a book intended principally for teen-agers, but it speaks to all ages.

In a time when youth, especially, is searching for meaning in life, we are told that many before them have found it in athletic endeavors. But they have found it in a special kind of sports, not so much concerned with defeating another person or with achieving personal glory or enriching their purses as with realizing that inner satisfaction that comes from knowing one has performed to his utmost capacity. They compete less against their fellow man than against their own personal limitations — and against time, distance and standards of perfection.

This challenge seems to bring out the very best in man and woman.

Miss Laklan recites case after case in which this has proven true. She tells of athletes like Wilma Rudolph, Al Oerter, Babe Didriksen, Glenn Cunningham, Jean-Claude Killy, Eugenio Monti, Bob Richards, Hal Connolly, Vladimir Kuts, Sonja Henie, who surmounted great handicaps through sheer grit, determination and application.

To the author's credit, she does not dwell solely upon Americans (many nationalities are included among her heroes and heroines) nor does she focus entirely upon gold medal winners. That rarity, a woman sportswriter, she writes very well. She could have used an assist from a veteran sports editor to eliminate such flubs as Tulare, Okla., as Californian Bob Mathias' hometown and an American team affiliation for Austrian Toni Sailer. But her stories read easily and hang together nicely.

WILMA RUDOLPH
Success despite adversity

There's a point that shines through for both parents and youngsters. Those who succeeded in the Olympics have been dedicated and inspired young people who have sacrificed hundreds of hours from the usual child and teen-age interests for their training. But, for them, it has all been a source of enjoyment. Without that spirit, it would have been a mistake for them to have set their sights upon Olympic medals. And it would have been a more grievous error for parents to have forced them into such a grueling program.

Like show business and the arts, sports have had too many parents who have attempted to make their own unrealized dreams come true at the expense of their off-spring's childhood. The urge to compete — and to prepare adequately — should spring naturally from the child himself. It was thus with the Olympic stars whose ordeals and triumphs have been recorded by Miss Laklan.

IN 1939 Ernest Hemingway came for a stay at the Lodge in Sun Valley, Idaho, to work at writing "For Whom the Bell Tolls," and to enjoy the rugged outdoors of the primitive country around.

There he began a relationship with Lloyd (Pappy) Arnold, Sun Valley public relations man and photographer, that was to ripen into friendship and to continue through the years.

In the course of that comraderie, sometimes in his professional capacity, sometimes as a friend, Arnold was to snap hundreds of pictures of the famed writer.

Now, in "High on the Wild With Hemingway," published appropriately by the small but energetic Caldwell, Idaho, firm of Caxton Printers Ltd., Arnold shares with other Hemingway admirers 160 of his pictures — of the Idaho country, of its people, but mostly of Hemingway. Too often, the photographs lack the real candid quality that might best reflect the character of their subject. We find the targets obviously posed and staring at the camera lens. But there are exceptions. And a Hemingway picture remains a Hemingway picture, whatever its faults, charged with the dynamism and the complexity of the man. So we have Hemingway hunting, partying, working, relaxing, exploring. And showing up quite frequently with Hemingway is actor Gary Cooper, whom the novelist first met at Sun Valley and with whom a close friendship developed.

Arnold has accompanied his photos with a text recalling the Sun Valley of that time and his association with Hemingway. It is a frankly admiring, noncritical view of the writer that seems to miss some facets of the Hemingway character others have found both fascinating and bewildering. But perhaps, as Arnold insists, Hemingway among the Sawtooth and Pioneer mountains was a different man than Hemingway in Paris, in Spain, in New York, or elsewhere.

As John H. Hemingway puts it in a brief forward: "The author was a good and true friend of Papa's over a span of 22 years. He has remained my friend and my family's for that long and more. . . . This book is Lloyd's sympathetic and evocative testimony to an important facet of my father's life."

Hemingway fans will find the well-written, well-designed and well-printed book a thoroughly pleasurable experience — and an escape from the controversy and complexities that usually enter into any discussion of their favorite author.

AN ARABIAN view of the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy is offered by M. T. Mehdi in a $1.95 paperback, "Kennedy and Sirhan: Why?," published by New World Press of New York.

The writer, secretary-general of the Action Committee on American-Arab Relations and a bitter critic of Israel in earlier books, decries the slaying, but maintains Sirhan Sirhan was driven to murder by disillusionment with American politics and particularly the "pro-Zionist" positions of President Lyndon B. Johnson. Unable to reach Johnson, Mehdi says, Sirhan shot Kennedy instead.

Had the American people brought pressure upon the politicians to alter their pro-Israel course, he argues, the murder would never have occurred. Therefore they must shoulder major blame. And because of pro-Jewish, pro-Kennedy bias, he claims, Sirhan will be unable to receive a fair trial from Americans.

Like so much of the pro-Arab propaganda, the Mehdi argument is too shrilly and hysterically pitched, too obviously biased to be persuasive. His application of the "preventive war" theory to Sirhan's action is typically tasteless and ill-conceived.

A note from the publisher says the author is contributing profits from the book's sales "to prevent the sale of phantom jets to Israel so that Mr. Kennedy's death will not be a wasted tragedy.'

DOVER PUBLICATIONS has begun a project of reprinting in its distinctive quality paperback format "The Fairytale Collections of Joseph Jacobs."

The first three volumes are "English Fairy Tales," "More English Fairy Tales" and "Celtic Fairy Tales," priced at $1.75 each. Two more books to appear later will complete the series.

Jacobs was something of a Hans Christian Andersen, Australian-born, residing and studying in England and dying in the United States in 1916. He was a brilliant folklorist and storyteller with British culture as his specialty. The first three reprints include such all-time favorites as "Jack and the Beanstalk," "Dick Whittington and His Cat," "King O'Toole and His Goose," etc. Some youngsters will miss the elaborate color illustrations expected in today's reprints of such classics, but John D. Batten's original drawings have been included and have a charm of their own.

It is the kind of thing that may have as strong or stronger appeal for adult students of folklore as for children.

"THE AMERICAN Civil War" from Sir Winston Churchill's classic "History of the English-Speaking Peoples" has been reprinted as a $1.95 Apollo Editions paperback, complete with 64 historic photographs from the Library of Congress collection.

APOLLO EDITIONS has also issued as a $1.95 paperback, Joseph Wood Krutch's "Grand Canyon: Today and All Its Yesterdays,'' which in hardcover a decade ago caused James Ramsey Ullman to say: "Rarely have I found so beautiful a blend of book and subject. Reading Mr. Krutch's pages, one not only sees and feels the Grand Canyon — but understands it."

SWEDENBORG Foundation Inc. of New York has reprinted George Trobridge's "Swedenborg: Life and Teachings," as a $1 paperback or $1.95 clothbound book. It is a biography of the theologian, Emanuel Swedenborg.

Sleuths & Suspense

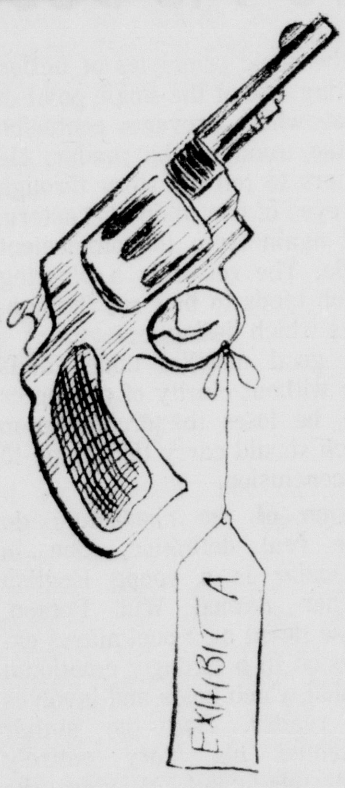
On a bright clear morning following several days of torrential rains, with pools of water dotting the English countryside, a farmer and his dog crossed the Ashmead road and discovered a skeleton where a mound of grass had washed away.

The gory find was announced by the CID to be the bodies of two unknown small children, aged about 7, buried many years before. The news was carried by even the London papers and read by John Morton, a successful architect and native of Ashmead. Morton felt that he should tell the police about his childhood memory of when, as a 7-year-old, he had climbed the forbidden wall around the Maulden estate, near the gravesite, and had secretly played with a boy and girl his age.

Frustrated by lack of clues and a non-cooperative silence on the part of the villagers, Chief Inspector Derwent prevailed upon Morton to come to Ashmead. The villagers, he felt, might talk to a native returning on a visit. So together they saw the investigation through to its surprise ending.



This is a superior Crime Club suspense story. The author, a Welshman, has both mysteries and science fiction novels to his credit, including "The Reluctant Medium."

OLD ST. HILARY'S CHURCH, TIBURON LANDMARK

Life's Mysteries And Death's Certainty

ANTI-MEMOIRS by Andre Malraux; Holt, Rinehart & Winston, 420 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by Laurel Shapiro.

With the appearance of these unique memoirs, an almost legendary hero-novelist has come back from history, so to speak.

Andre Malraux never wrote from the sidelines. He was persistently in the thick of great events: the Spanish Civil War, the Chinese Revolution, the French Resistance. Between wars he explored the exotic hinterlands of Asia and Africa. Rarely have the roles of political activist, adventurer and artist been so fused in one individual.

It is to his great credit that it is not only the memories of the glamorous soldier-explorer that hold us enthralled; the thoughts of the mature Malraux, De Gaulle's minister of culture, dominate the book.

Readers hoping for the story of his life will be disappointed. Even though his own past is his material, these are not, in the usual sense, memoirs of that past. On a long vacation cruise to the East he found that certain persisting memories of previous visits, of portions of his novels, juxtaposed with his present observations, compelled the book to be written and so titled because . . . "it answers questions which memories do not pose and does not answer those which they do."

In a prose often of Proustian majesty, spreading wider and wider nets of allusions, he develops from the intermingling of experiences, observations and fiction, a pattern that always circles back, sooner or later, to the great mysteries of life in relation to certain death, mysteries he has found repeated down the decades, in peace and in war, reverberating from one civilization to another. "I have always been fascinated by the human condition."

And: ". . . to reflect upon life, life in relation to death, is perhaps no more than to intensify one's questions." In a sense, the presence of death has permeated all of Malraux's serious writing. In this book he has intensified his questions.

He probes the meaning of imminent death as it has come to him; as a resistance officer in the hands of the Germans, in a hurricane-tossed airplane (returning from a search for the lost city of the Queen of Sheba), as a soldier caught in a German tank trap.

These tense sections, in contrast to the reflective passages, are written as stark reporting and are painfully vivid, probably unsurpassed in contemporary literature for bare, brute suspense.

But there is never enough evidence. Malraux has interviewed many others, men and women, who have also come back from the edge of death. For all the 25 years of horror stories that have dulled our nerves, he brings us up against the concentration camps as if for the first time.

ANDRE MALRAUX
In the thick of things

As a world figure himself, and as a minister of France, he has met with the great men of today, and it is the reader's great good luck that interviews with Nehru, Mao and De Gaulle are included here.

Malraux met with the Asians in his official capacity, and from this vantage point, with his astonishing knowledge of their cultures, and his novelist's intuition, we are shown these men in the round, as we have never seen them before. Only De Gaulle, to whom Malraux is intensely loyal, comes through flat, a remote (though theatrical) demigod.

Perhaps Malraux's answer in this monumental search for the meaning of life in relation to death, "the light out of darkness," is his assumption that "man is only fully alive when he is fully aware of death."

But this answer, if that is what it is, becomes insignificant lifted out of the vast pageantry woven as he asked it. It is the many-leveled pattern of his questions, not his conclusion, that make this a book that towers above the customary literary categories.

The University: For Education Or For Money-Making?

THE CLOSED CORPORATION by James Ridgeway; Random House, 220 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

"In all likelihood," begins this book, "most Americans believe . . . that universities are places where professors teach students. They are wrong. In fact, the university looks more like a center for industrial activity than a community of scholars."

This is the theme of "The Closed Corporation," by James Ridgeway, which is sub-titled (for obscure reasons) "American Universities in Crisis."

Far from being in crisis, according to Ridgeway, most of the universities are making money hand over fist in secret research, defense contracts, real estate speculation and sundry investments, besides enabling many members of their faculties to enrich themselves in various ways aside from their salaries. It would appear to be the students who are in crisis.

"The undergraduate students," writes Ridgeway, "lie in campus holding pens, while graduate apprentices read them stories. The stories are boring, and students turn to making their own 'free universities' or spend their time hatching political revolutions on the outside."

Ridgeway, an upstate New York native who cut his journalistic teeth on the Wall Street Journal, free-lanced in England and is now on the staff of the New Republic, presents no balanced appraisal of the non-academic and often-questionable activities of universities in his volume. He is a pamphleteer, in the old tradition. He aims to stir things up, and this book should do it.

The uses of universities as fronts and handmaidens for entrenched interests — and particularly for the Department of Defense — is quite thoroughly explored, with an appendix listing the 100 chief university beneficiaries of defense contracts.

The exposure pretty thoroughly peels away the pretense of disinterested public service behind which university administrators are fond of concealing their money-making manipulations. Some of the ways used by these institutions of higher learning and their "research institutes" would bring down conflict-of-interest prosecutions on anyone else on the public payroll. But then, as Ridgeway emphasizes, the universities' decisions are made in secret and their books never opened to the public.

Ridgeway has some solutions, foremost of which is this:

"Since educational institutions are generally regarded as serving a public function, and financed to a large extent by the general citizenry, they ought to be responsible to the public."

His book, one-sided though it is, presents rather convincing evidence that they are not.

THE DEPRESSED

Ex-Marinite Wesley Baker On Souring Of The Spirit

BELIEVER IN HELL by Rev. Wesley C. Baker; Westminster, 144 pages, $4.75. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Former Marin pastor Rev. Wesley C. Baker, now an executive with the Commission on Ecumenical Mission and Relations of the Presbyterian Church, has selected the depression that sometimes afflicts the human being and sours his spirit as his subject for his fourth book.

His commentary is based partially upon his Biblical background, partially upon his contacts as a counselor, and partially upon personal experience.

He begins with an exploration of depression and its destructive elements — the brooding, self-deception, defeat and insulation of the sufferer. He moves on then to a study of the Bible and the light it can provide for the depressed mind. Then he closes with a classic case history of a final triumph of inspiration over despair.

As always, Reverend Baker writes cogently and on a contemporary plane, his reports and observations always relative to the conditions and the problems of today. It is Biblically rooted counseling, yet more truly in tune with 1968 realities than all the flippant advice of the quick and easy decision Dear Abbys and Ann Landers.

The Professors As Just People

THE HORSES OF INSTRUCTION by Hazard Adams; Harcourt, Brace & World, 305 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Elizabeth Rogers.

Intelligence and talent are quite different attributes in the human animal. They are not necessarily antithetical nor unrelated. They are just simply different.

A clear example of this can be seen in the novel, "The Horses of Instruction," by Hazard Adams, who is a professor and chairman of the department of English at the University of California's Irvine campus.

Adams tries to show his readers that college professors and their associates are just people, like everyone else. They have their hopes and disappointments, their governable and ungovernable emotions, their small successes and their monumental failures. He tells you these things in clear and expressive language — you can't quarrel with his syntax.

The trouble is that you can't remember who said what, and why.

This is because he ignores one of the basic principles of fiction writing, use of the single point of view, which prevents confusion in the mind of the reader. He prefers to tell his story through the eyes of two main characters, and again from the omniscient angle. The result is a blurring which tends to blot out the conflicts which define a story.

A good novelist understands that without clarity of character line, he loses the orchestration which should carry the theme to its conclusion.

Some of the characters do have real definition. One in particular is a young English teacher named Will Person, whose talent as a poet allows expression in a strongly emotional fashion which holds and involves the reader. Had the author presented his story entirely from this point of view, he might very well have produced a successful novel.

Even so, it will probably be appreciated by many college instructors who have felt the blows of academic in-fighting, and by many more who are spending their lives trying to teach the "unteachable subject."

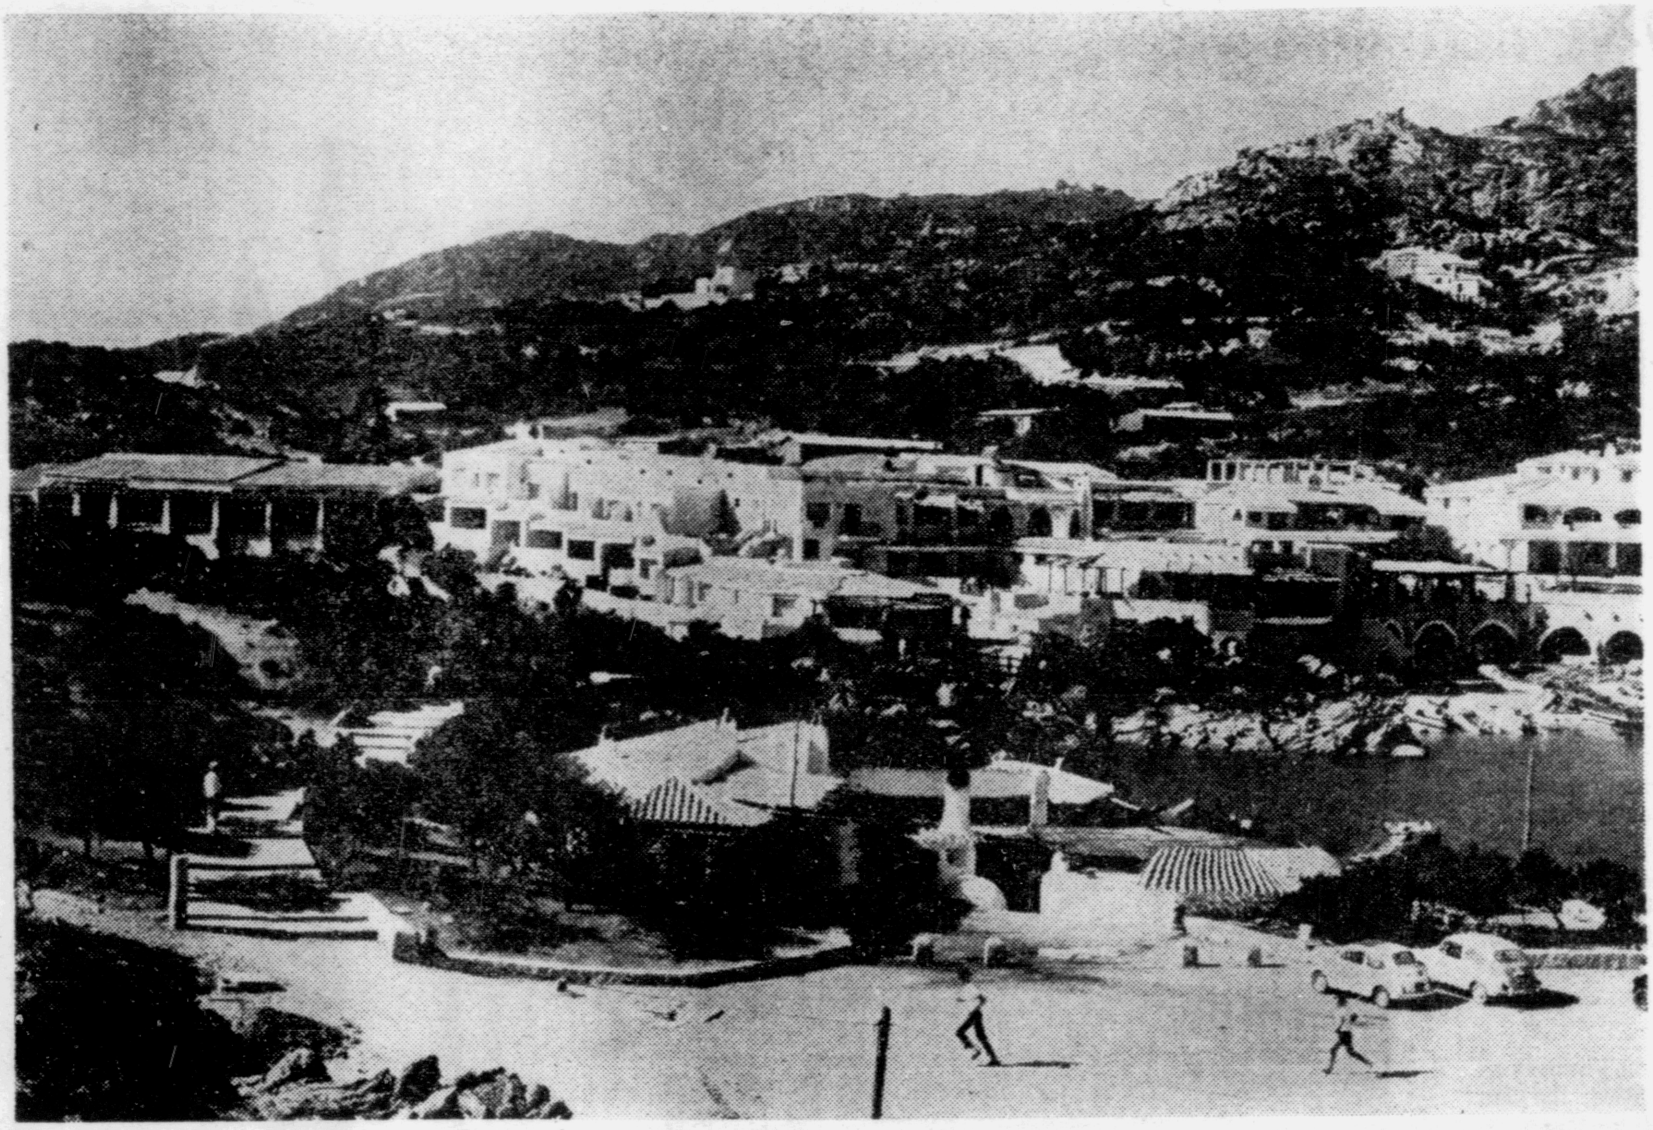
HAZARD ADAMS
On academic in-fighting

The average reader will react in one of two ways — with indifference or revulsion toward these baffling intellectuals, whom he considers snobs and impractical visionaries. It is most unlikely that he will ever take the time to pursue their acquaintanceship.

Sardinia Beckons Tourists

Island Offers Both History And Scenery

By ELIZABETH VON KAHL



ON SARDINIA, even the new hotels try to look antique to please the newly promoted tourist trade. Hotel Cervo is located on one of the Mediterreans's finest harbors.

Like the postman on a bike, a travel agent often spends his holidays taking trips — to check out new or revised travel facilities.

When 20 American Society of Travel Agents members were invited recently to visit little know Sardinia, Bert Talbot of Tiburon went along as the agent from Marin.

Following the standard procedure for their clients, the agents gathered before takeoff for a get-acquainted cocktail party at the Golden Door Restaurant, at New York's Kennedy Airport.

"After counting noses and exchanging notes on other trips, we boarded an Alitalia flight to Milan," Talbot recalls. "A variety of wines and a delicious steak dinner helped make the trip a pleasant one. Although, because of the five-hour change in time, we barely squeezed in three hours of sleep before arrival."

IN MILAN, they visited Duomo Square and the cathedral before continuing on to Genoa. In Italian style, they enjoyed there a typical seven-course lunch at a charming waterfront restaurant called I Sette Nase (The Seven Noses). The hearty lunch included antipasto, soup, a paste course, entree, salad, dessert and/or cheese and fruit, and coffee.

"The restaurant was so named because its proprietor had a family of seven little noses at home," Talbot explained.

"Later than day we boarded a Tyrrenia steamship for the overnight voyage to Porto Torres. The 200-passenger ship is thoroughly modern and operates daily between the mainland and Sardinia."

"ON ARRIVAL at the host island, we observed the solemnity of the ritual-loving Sardinians toward their dead. Aboard ship were a hearse, flowers and the deceased. As the crane lifted the hearse in a huge sling to the wharf, the mourners formed a procession. Sailors and dockhands stopped work to stand at attention, hats in hand, until the funeral celebrants passed by."

An hour's limousine ride took them through the country to Algehro, third largest city in Sardinia.

"Built around the site of an ancient Catalan fortress, the city offers visitors a great deal of history. We toured its narrow streets, fortressed dating back 500 years to the Spanish occupation, its old section and its historic churches."

"AT THE FISH market, we learned that sardines are also past history. They have been fished out or disappeared, as was the case of the sardines we formerly had on the Pacific Coast."

A major industry in modern Sardinia is wine-making. More than 200 varieties of wine are produced from grape orchards all over the island. Sardinia started opening its shores to tourists only within the last 10 years.

On the itinerary was the Bay of Caccia (Capo Caccia) with its Grottoes of Neptune.

"Capo Caccia is a magnificent bay, surrounded by perpendicular cliffs from 200 to 300 feet high," according to Talbot. "Here the aqua blue Mediterranean is contrasted by the starkness of the rugged coast line, with alternating beaches of pure white sand.

"NESTLED IN the horseshoe-shaped shoreline of the bay are two hotels, Capa Cacci and El Faro, both modern in every respect but native in furnishings.

"Our next stop was the fabled Costa Emeralda, a beautiful stretch of coast owned by the Aga Khan and his associates. The area is as picturesque as the many stories told about it, with its wandering coastline and many inlets opening into miles of sandy beaches."

"It is an orderly development, with no sign of the small, underfinanced tourist shops that can become shoddy. In the planned development of the Emeral Coast, the emphasis is on preservation of natural beauty. It is a credit to the Aga Khan's corporation, or consorium to use the European term."

FIVE HOTELS have been completed on the Emeral Coast, two deluxe, two first class and one tourist class. The luxurious Cala di Volpe was originally built as a residence for the Aga Khan. Its rooms are decorated with handwoven Sardinian fabrics and antique furniture.

The group stayed at the Hotel Cervo, a sprawling 62-room Mediterranean structure that appeared to blend into the Sardinian village.

"Located on a magnificent harbor, reported to be one of the finest in the Mediterranean, it was constructed to appear antique but it represents the ultimate in luxury," Talbot said.

"Sardinian hotels are small in the number of their rooms," he added. "During July and August, European society gathers along the coast and then accommodations become difficult to get."

THE GROUP'S itinerary took it next to the island's capital, Cagliara, a busy, commercial city. "Our tour included a visit to a hunting lodge in the mountains east of the city where the villagers were holding a boar feast. In Sardinian costumes, a group of about 30 boys and girls played and sang native music and danced."

In the few days remaining, the agents visited the archeologically interesting city of Nora and the historic Nuraghic village of Marumini.

"We were impressed by the contrasts of Sardinia and its development," Talbot reflected. "We agreed that a visit to Sardinia with its natural beauty and history would be well worth the time and expense for American tourists. It's a lovely and unusual spot to 'get away from it all.' "

SOME NEW BOOKS FOR THE JUNIORS

It's time to consider the Christmas books, always an enjoyable assignment, with the anthologies, of course, deserving first attention.

"The Christmas Book" (Dutton, $4.95) was compiled by James Reeves and illustrated by Raymond Briggs, both English, and has the special fine, warm feeling of the yule season in that country.

The selections include such perennials as Charles Dickens' description of Christmas at the Cratchits and Dylan Thomas' memories of a boyhood holiday in Wales. William Shakespeare, Thomas Hardy, Samuel Pepys, Eugene Field, Robert Herrick, Walter de la Mare, Kenneth Grahame and Alfred Tennyson are among the many others represented in the short stories, excerpts, essays, remembrances, poems and carols that make up the collection. Yes, "The Twelve Days of Christmas" and Clement Moore's "The Night Before Christmas" are there, as well.

"Happy Christmas" (Westminster, $5.95) is also the work of English anthologizers, William Kean Seymour and John Smith, and a British illustrator, Beryl Sanders. It is a larger book. Dickens, Thomas, Pepys, Hardy, Grahame and Herrick appear in it, too, along with the likes of J. B. Priestley, Dorothy Wordsworth, Winifred Holtby, Hilaire Belloc, Samuel Coleridge, Boris Pasternak, S. J. Perelman, William Carlos Williams, C. Day Lewis, John Aubrey, Ogden Nash, George Eliot, Louisa Mae Alcott, Joseph Conrad, Horace Walpole, Charles Lamb, Charlotte Bronte and William Makepeace Thackeray.

The prose pieces in this one tend to be somewhat shorter, and it has a more international flavor. Both books are nicely illustrated, "Happy Christmas" the more profusely. And either book is the kind that will bring the true holiday spirit into the home when read aloud around the family circle, perhaps a few stories, poems and pieces per evening as the November and December days tick off and Christiandom's most wondrous celebration draws near.

The Clement C. Moore classic, "A Visit From St. Nicholas" or " 'Twas the Night Before Christmas," has been given a new printing by McGraw-Hill ($2.95), this time with illustrations by talented Paul Galdone. One hundred and sixty-five years after the poem was first published, it still retains its delightful charm. And Galdone's lively, merry color illustrations enhance that appeal.

Two new books deal with rural American Christmases where the observances are simpler, but all the more enjoyable and meaningful.

"A Long Ago Christmas" (Putnam, $3.50) by Patricia Miles Martin, with illustrations by Albert Orbaan, tells the story of a prairie farm family where young Darius awaits anxiously the arrival of Christmas, hoping for snow and sled. The non-commercial spirit of the holidays of that time is splendidly portrayed, and there is a warmly nostalgic quality to the story.

"Renfro's Christmas" (Viking, $3.50) is more contemporary, but its rural location also lends it a nostalgic quality. Renfroe is 8, and as he goes through the excitement of the pre-Christmas days, and finally the Christmas Eve community party at the schoolhouse, he learns a lesson on giving. Author Robert Burch has done an unusually good job of storytelling in this cheerful, humorous tale. Rocco Negri is the illustrator.

"First Carols" (Walck, $1.95) is an exquisite little book, jewel-like in size and design, assembling such beloved Christmas songs as "O Little Town of Bethlehem" and "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear," with delicate artwork by Brenda Meredith Seymour. The tiny book was lovingly printed in Holland.

"Oliver and His Friends" (Random House, $1.95) by Mary Hastings qualifies as a Christmas book because of its association with Charles Dickens who was Mr. Christmas to so many of us. The book is adapted from the screenplay which in turn was adapted from Lionel Bart's stage hit, "Oliver!" which in turn was adapted from Dickens' immortal "Oliver Twist." The illustrations are color and black and white photographs taken from the motion picture. It makes for a lively and entertaining package, full of life, zest, color and tradition.

Some other new books for the juniors:

Vinson Brown, a Healdsburg resident, is one of our most competent and most effective writers of nature books for youngsters at the upper primary - junior high school level. "How to Follow the Adventures of Insects" (Little, Brown, $4.50) is demonstrative of Brown's special ability. He begins with a discussion of just what insects are, and goes on to describe their habits and habitats, the scientist's approach to them, and such special subjects as collecting, preserving, mounting, studying, tracing and understanding them. There are drawings by Julia Iltis. It is an excellent guide for the child seriously interested in the fascinating "bug world."

ABC books continue to rate high in popularity with the tykes. "The Alphabet Book" (Four Winds, $3.72) by Rodney Peppe assigns a familiar noun for each of the 26 letters, and uses it in a sentence. Accompanying each statement is a humor-filled illustration in color. And there is a tie-in between each pair of facing pages. It's a book with a catchy lilt and fun-appeal.

Women are sometimes overlooked in our listings of heroic Americans. Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, long on courage herself, and H. Paul Jeffers set out to remedy that oversight in "Gallant Women" (McGraw-Hill, $4.75). It tells for young readers the stories of such outstanding U.S. women as Dolly Madison, Harriet Tubman, Harriet Beecher Stowe, Clara Barton, Annie Sullivan, Amelia Earhart, Althea Gibson and Eleanor Roosevelt. Jeffers previously collaborated with Sen. Everett Dirksen on "Gallant Men."

Part of Random House's Landmark Giant series is "The Landmark History of the American People From Plymouth to Appomattox" ($3.95) by Daniel J. Boorstin. It is a generously illustrated and generally successful attempt to point out the impact upon American culture and character of the exciting events of our earlier, formative years. It is good history, and easy reading.

"What Do You Get?" (Random House, $1.95) is another of those entertaining pop-up books that have resulted in a new title in publishing — paper engineering. This time the credit goes to Tor Lokvig, while Jack Hanrahan and Phil Hahn are listed as the authors. It's a sort of riddle book for youngsters, with the answers jumping out from the pages in the animated pop-up format. For instance: "What do you get when you cross an alligator with a head of lettuce?" Answer: "A big green salad that eats you!" And the toothy three-dimensional illustration looks like it is capable of doing exactly that.

Young people can have a lot of fun and fool their friends while at the same time following scientific principles in "Fun and Tricks for Young Scientists," by George Barr, illustrated by Mildred Waltrip (McGraw-Hill, $4.50). There are many riddles, jokes and puzzles — how to dissolve coins in water etc. This is one of the Young Scientists series.

Lowly Legume Deserves Greater Consideration

THE SOYBEAN COOKBOOK by Dorothea Van Gundy Jones; Arco, 240 pages, paperback, $1.45. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

It is Americans' own loss that they have adopted an attitude of snobbish disinterest toward one of nature's most wholesome and most plentiful foods, the soybean.

Nutritionists have been attempting to counteract that foolish neglect by pointing out that the soybean, while low in calories, is wonderfully rich in essential nutrients and reasonable in cost. Their biggest obstacle seems to be convincing the public that this legume need not be tasteless, but can be transformed into appetizing dishes.

Books such as this (first published in 1963 and now reissued) and earlier ones by Mildred Lager have done much to combat American indifference toward the soybean.

"The Soybean Cookbook" contains some 350 recipes using the beans and bean products — soybean flour, soy milk — in creative ways that range from soups to desserts.

In an era of growing concern over the world food supply picture, the soybean offers one bright ray of hope. It deserves this kind of attention.

Cream Of The Sports Crop

By DON KEOWN

OLYMPIC CHAMPIONS by Carli Laklan; Funk & Wagnalls, 163 pages, $4.95.

HIGH ON THE WILD WITH HEMINGWAY by Lloyd R. Arnold; Caxton Printers, 343 pages, $9.95.

Compared to the international amateur spectacle, the professional extravaganzas, the World Series, the Rose Bowl, the Wembley Cup, et al, seem almost grimy in their commercialism and hysteria.

The Olympics achieve this pinnacle despite a tendency by its bureaucratic officialdom to bumble, despite the jarring habit of some coaches to complain and carp, and despite the persistent efforts of the news media to inject jingoism where none belongs, and to inflate minor incidents into crisis proportions.

The reasons why the Olympics have survived these drawbacks and generally achieved their primary purpose of creating goodwill that transcends national boundaries can be found in the special qualities of the men and women who compete. They have truly been plucked from the flower of humanity.

This is borne out by Carli Laklan's new book, "Olympic Champions: Why They Win." It may well be a book intended principally for teen-agers, but it speaks to all ages.

In a time when youth, especially, is searching for meaning in life, we are told that many before them have found it in athletic endeavors. But they have found it in a special kind of sports, not so much concerned with defeating another person or with achieving personal glory or enriching their purses as with realizing that inner satisfaction that comes from knowing one has performed to his utmost capacity. They compete less against their fellow man than against their own personal limitations — and against time, distance and standards of perfection.

This challenge seems to bring out the very best in man and woman.

Miss Laklan recites case after case in which this has proven true. She tells of athletes like Wilma Rudolph, Al Oerter, Babe Didriksen, Glenn Cunningham, Jean-Claude Killy, Eugenio Monti, Bob Richards, Hal Connolly, Vladimir Kuts, Sonja Henie, who surmounted great handicaps through sheer grit, determination and application.

To the author's credit, she does not dwell solely upon Americans (many nationalities are included among her heroes and heroines) nor does she focus entirely upon gold medal winners. That rarity, a woman sportswriter, she writes very well. She could have used an assist from a veteran sports editor to eliminate such flubs as Tulare, Okla., as Californian Bob Mathias' hometown and an American team affiliation for Austrian Toni Sailer. But her stories read easily and hang together nicely.

WILMA RUDOLPH

There's a point that shines through for both parents and youngsters. Those who succeeded in the Olympics have been dedicated and inspired young people who have sacrificed hundreds of hours from the usual child and teen-age interests for their training. But, for them, it has all been a source of enjoyment. Without that spirit, it would have been a mistake for them to have set their sights upon Olympic medals. And it would have been a more grievous error for parents to have forced them into such a grueling program.

Like show business and the arts, sports have had too many parents who have attempted to make their own unrealized dreams come true at the expense of their off-spring's childhood. The urge to compete — and to prepare adequately — should spring naturally from the child himself. It was thus with the Olympic stars whose ordeals and triumphs have been recorded by Miss Laklan.

IN 1939 Ernest Hemingway came for a stay at the Lodge in Sun Valley, Idaho, to work at writing "For Whom the Bell Tolls," and to enjoy the rugged outdoors of the primitive country around.

There he began a relationship with Lloyd (Pappy) Arnold, Sun Valley public relations man and photographer, that was to ripen into friendship and to continue through the years.

In the course of that comraderie, sometimes in his professional capacity, sometimes as a friend, Arnold was to snap hundreds of pictures of the famed writer.

Now, in "High on the Wild With Hemingway," published appropriately by the small but energetic Caldwell, Idaho, firm of Caxton Printers Ltd., Arnold shares with other Hemingway admirers 160 of his pictures — of the Idaho country, of its people, but mostly of Hemingway. Too often, the photographs lack the real candid quality that might best reflect the character of their subject. We find the targets obviously posed and staring at the camera lens. But there are exceptions. And a Hemingway picture remains a Hemingway picture, whatever its faults, charged with the dynamism and the complexity of the man. So we have Hemingway hunting, partying, working, relaxing, exploring. And showing up quite frequently with Hemingway is actor Gary Cooper, whom the novelist first met at Sun Valley and with whom a close friendship developed.

Arnold has accompanied his photos with a text recalling the Sun Valley of that time and his association with Hemingway. It is a frankly admiring, non-critical view of the writer that seems to miss some facets of the Hemingway character others have found both fascinating and bewildering. But perhaps, as Arnold insists, Hemingway among the Sawtooth and Pioneer mountains was a different man than Hemingway in Paris, in Spain, in New York, or elsewhere.

As John H. Hemingway puts it in a brief forward: "The author was a good and true friend of Papa's over a span of 22 years. He has remained my friend and my family's for that long and more. . . . This book is Lloyd's sympathetic and evocative testimony to an important facet of my father's life."

Hemingway fans will find the well-written, well-designed and well-printed book a thoroughly pleasurable experience — and an escape from the controversy and complexities that usually enter into any discussion of their favorite author.

AN ARABIAN view of the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy is offered by M. T. Mehdi in a $1.95 paperback, "Kennedy and Sirhan: Why?," published by New World Press of New York.

The writer, secretary-general of the Action Committee on American-Arab Relations and a bitter critic of Israel in earlier books, decries the slaying, but maintains Sirhan Sirhan was driven to murder by disillusionment with American politics and particularly the "pro-Zionist" positions of President Lyndon B. Johnson. Unable to reach Johnson, Mehdi says, Sirhan shot Kennedy instead.

Had the American people brought pressure upon the politicians to alter their pro-Israel course, he argues, the murder would never have occurred. Therefore they must shoulder major blame. And because of pro-Jewish, pro-Kennedy bias, he claims, Sirhan will be unable to receive a fair trial from Americans.

Like so much of the pro-Arab propaganda, the Mehdi argument is too shrilly and hysterically pitched, too obviously biased to be persuasive. His application of the "preventive war" theory to Sirhan's action is typically tasteless and ill-conceived.

A note from the publisher says the author is contributing profits from the book's sales "to prevent the sale of phantom jets to Israel so that Mr. Kennedy's death will not be a wasted tragedy."

DOVER PUBLICATIONS has begun a project of reprinting in its distinctive quality paperback format "The Fairytale Collections of Joseph Jacobs."

The first three volumes are "English Fairy Tales," "More English Fairy Tales" and "Celtic Fairy Tales," priced at $1.75 each. Two more books to appear later will complete the series.

Jacobs was something of a Hans Christian Andersen, Australian-born, residing and studying in England and dying in the United States in 1916. He was a brilliant folklorist and storyteller with British culture as his specialty. The first three reprints include such all-time favorites as "Jack and the Beanstalk," "Dick Whittington and His Cat," "King O'Toole and His Goose," etc. Some youngsters will miss the elaborate color illustrations expected in today's reprints of such classics, but John D. Batten's original drawings have been included and have a charm of their own.

It is the kind of thing that may have as strong or stronger appeal for adult students of folklore as for children.

"THE AMERICAN Civil War" from Sir Winston Churchill's classic "History of the English-Speaking Peoples" has been reprinted as a $1.95 Apollo Editions paperback, complete with 64 historic photographs from the Library of Congress collection.

APOLLO EDITIONS has also issued as a $1.95 paperback, Joseph Wood Krutch's "Grand Canyon: Today and All Its Yesterdays," which in hardcover a decade ago caused James Ramsey Ullman to say: "Rarely have I found so beautiful a blend of book and subject. Reading Mr. Krutch's pages, one not only sees and feels the Grand Canyon — but understands it."

SWEDENBORG Foundation Inc. of New York has reprinted George Trobridge's "Swedenborg: Life and Teachings," as a $1 paperback or $1.95 clothbound book. It is a biography of the theologian, Emanuel Swedenborg.

Sleuths & Suspense

On a bright clear morning following several days of torrential rains, with pools of water dotting the English countryside, a farmer and his dog crossed the Ashmead road and discovered a skeleton where a mound of grass had washed away.

The gory find was announced by the CID to be the bodies of two unknown small children, aged about 7, buried many years before. The news was carried by even the London papers and read by John Morton, a successful architect and native of Ashmead. Morton felt that he should tell the police about his childhood memory of when, as a 7-year-old, he had climbed the forbidden wall around the Maulden estate, near the gravesite, and had secretly played with a boy and girl his age.

Frustrated by lack of clues and a non-cooperative silence on the part of the villagers, Chief Inspector Derwent prevailed upon Morton to come to Ashmead. The villagers, he felt, might talk to a native returning on a visit. So together they saw the investigation through to its surprise ending.

This is a superior Crime Club suspense story. The author, a Welshman, has both mysteries and science fiction novels to his credit, including "The Reluctant Medium."

STEREO HI-FI

By C. J. Catania

BACKGROUND NOISE ON FM — When an FM tuner or receiver is not tuned to a station, an annoying hissing and frying sound can be heard. Since there is no FM program signal at the antenna of the set, the static type noise that is picked up is allowed to pass through as is the background noise generated by the tubes or transistors of the tuning sections. When an FM station is properly tuned in, this background hissing and frying drops down in level. The stronger the signal from the station the lower will be the background noise level. Weak stations, FM stations that are not received with very much signal at the antenna terminals of the set, do not reduce the noise level very much; therefore, the hissing and frying may be quite noticeable in the background.

The sensitivity of FM tuners and receivers is specified as so many microvolts for 30 db of quieting — IHF standards. A typical specification for a component type receiver is 2 microvolts for 30 db, IHFM. This means that a signal level as low as 2 millionths of a volt at the antenna terminals of the receiver will reduce the noise hum and distortion to 30 decibels below the average program sound coming from the set. The db is a unit of level, and a reduction of 30 db in noise provides a satisfactory signal in accordance with the Institute of High Fidelity Manufacturers, IHFM standards. If more than 2 microvolts is present at the antenna terminals of the set, the noise level will be reduced more than 30 db and thus the program sound will be clearer. The specification states that any signal less than 2 microvolts will not provide enough noise reduction for good listening.

Most listeners that complain of hissing and frying noise on FM do not have a proper antenna. Except for some good signal locations, indoor FM antennas do not provide enough reception. The signal is weak and contains noise pickup from nearby power cords to lamps, lighting, etc. The indoor antenna is not very directive so it may be picking up additional signals that bounce from nearby hills. To insure that sufficient signal arrives at the antenna terminals of the receiver, an outside FM antenna should be used. This should be one with several elements to provide directional characteristics; thus allowing a strong signal to be received from the station. Visit us and ask about our Finco FM antennas.

What's New From Dot — Move To 'Chicken Rock'

By JOHN SUNIER

Some records bearing the Dot imprint:

"PAUL SIMON INTERPRETED" — The Sound Symposium — Dot DLP 25871:

These are the first recordings from this label I have ever reviewed, because most of their previous releases have been in a hackneyed area of pop music that I have no interest in covering. Lately, Dot has branched out into an area some refer to as "chicken rock," and this is one of the better examples: a light and tasteful concert of a dozen or so compositions of Paul Simon, better known as half of Simon and Garfunkel.

Hearing the straight instrumental treatments (with lots of harpsichord which always turns me on) of tunes like "Sounds of Silence," "Mrs. Robinson," and "Homeward Bound" makes one want to place Simon very close to Lennon and McCartney in the creation of really fine contemporary song.

Very good stereo and quiet surfaces.

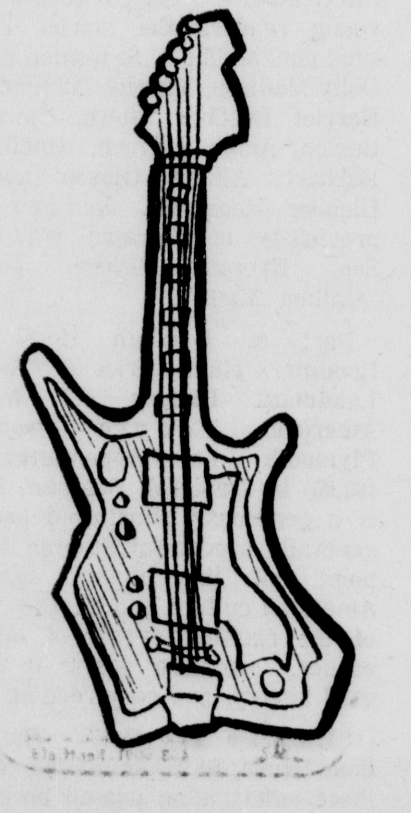
A chillingly well-done film by Roman Polanski, "Rosemary's Baby" has been as much a subject of heated debate among even casual movie-goers as the brilliant "2001: Space Odyssey."

While this score is very good with the film and for those who have seen the film, I doubt if it would stand up for the uninitiated. There are lots of electronic distortions of the basically conservative score, plus some interesting electronic harpsichord solos. The main theme sounds alone more like it belongs with a sad Italian film than a witch story in a New York setting.

Surprisingly, with all the classics (Mozart, Strauss, etc.) being popularized via film soundtracks recently, the Beethoven piano piece heard in this film was not included on the LP.



"THE WICHITA TRAIN WHISTLE SINGS" — Presented by Mike Nesmith — Dot DLP 25861:

Mike Nesmith is one of the Monkees. He had this idea, see, that a big, big band swinging in a sort of rock idiom and playing all his own tunes would be a Great New Sound. So he contacted a big bunch of musician friends, led by the erstwhile jazz trumpeter Shorty Rogers. They assembled in a Sunset Boulevard studio on a Sunday afternoon, when everybody got double time, they all brought their girls, and a caterer brought in booze and snacks.

The result? A smashing party, and the worst pop record I've ever heard. The tunes are corny and all sound alike, the drummer is worse than Ringo Starr was when he started with the Beatles, and the arrangements throw in bits of Tiajuana Brass, Sousa, Flatt & Scruggs, Stravinsky in such a disorganized fashion that it frequently sounds as though music from two different studios got channeled somehow onto the same final tape. After two complete breakdowns during the music, with general pandemonium in the studio demonstrating clearly that everybody is zonked out of their minds, someone yells a final "Let's Eat!"

A short, sweet and simple humor production based on the increasingly witty and sophisticated writings-on-the-wall which someone has collected around the country. Places such as ad agency restrooms, car bumpers and the Haight - Ashbury were scoured for this collection, arranged in categories such as Sex, Hippies, Advertising, Religion, etc. Example: "Support the War on Poverty — Kill a Pauper."

While these would be as funny to read as to hear, the LP is worth hearing at least once.

"HERE COMES THE BIRD" — Written and Performed by Kenny Somls and Gail Parent — Atlantic SD 8159:

This is a bit late to be reviewing a take-off on the Lynda Bird wedding, but I just received it. Besides the happy pair, the voices of Ladybird, LBJ, Luci and George Hamilton are heard. Some very funny bits, especially Lynda's "last phone call" to George.

THE FALLEN LEADER

The drums beat on like the march of years,
Pounding and never stopping —
The heartbeat of a nation's fears,
Like teardrops gently dropping.

The horse's saddle empty and bare,
He'll never ride again —
For though the leader once rode there
Our President was slain.

Beside his grave the lasting flame
Will burn forever on,
And like his ever spreading fame
Grows brighter with each dawn.

Poor and the wealthy
Proud and the lowly,
Merge into oneness,

Life's Mysteries And Death's Certainty

ANTI-MEMOIRS by Andre Malraux; Holt, Rinehart & Winston, 420 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by Laurel Shapiro.

With the appearance of these unique memoirs, an almost legendary hero-novelist has come back from history, so to speak.

Andre Malraux never wrote from the sidelines. He was persistently in the thick of great events: the Spanish Civil War, the Chinese Revolution, the French Resistance. Between wars he explored the exotic hinterlands of Asia and Africa. Rarely have the roles of political activist, adventurer and artist been so fused in one individual.

It is to his great credit that it is not only the memories of the glamorous soldier-explorer that hold us enthralled; the thoughts of the mature Malraux, De Gaulle's minister of culture, dominate the book.

Readers hoping for the story of his life will be disappointed. Even though his own past is his material, these are not, in the usual sense, memoirs of that past. On a long vacation cruise to the East he found that certain persisting memories of previous visits, of portions of his novels, juxtaposed with his present observations, compelled the book to be written and so titled because . . . "it answers questions which memories do not pose and does not answer those which they do."

In a prose often of Proustian majesty, spreading wider and wider nets of allusions, he develops from the intermingling of experiences, observations and fiction, a pattern that always circles back, sooner or later, to the great mysteries of life in relation to certain death, mysteries he has found repeated down the decades, in peace and in war, reverberating from one civilization to another. "I have always been fascinated by the human condition."

And: ". . . to reflect upon life, life in relation to death, is perhaps no more than to intensify one's questions." In a sense, the presence of death has permeated all of Malraux's serious writing. In this book he has intensified his questions.

He probes the meaning of imminent death as it has come to him; as a resistance officer in the hands of the Germans, in a hurricane-tossed airplane (returning from a search for the lost city of the Queen of Sheba), as a soldier caught in a German tank trap.

These tense sections, in contrast to the reflective passages, are written as stark reporting and are painfully vivid, probably unsurpassed in contemporary literature for bare, brute suspense.

But there is never enough evidence. Malraux has interviewed many others, men and women, who have also come back from the edge of death. For all the 25 years of horror stories that have dulled our nerves, he brings us up against the concentration camps as if for the first time.

ANDRE MALRAUX
In the thick of things

As a world figure himself, and as a minister of France, he has met with the great men of today, and it is the reader's great good luck that interviews with Nehru, Mao and De Gaulle are included here.

Malraux met with the Asians in his official capacity, and from this vantage point, with his astonishing knowledge of their cultures, and his novelist's intuition, we are shown these men in the round, as we have never seen them before. Only De Gaulle, to whom Malraux is intensely loyal, comes through flat, a remote (though theatrical) demigod.

Perhaps Malraux's answer in this monumental search for the meaning of life in relation to death, "the light out of darkness," is his assumption that "man is only fully alive when he is fully aware of death."

But this answer, if that is what it is, becomes insignificant lifted out of the vast pageantry woven as he asked it. It is the many-leveled pattern of his questions, not his conclusion, that make this a book that towers above the customary literary categories.

The University: For Education Or For Money-Making?

THE CLOSED CORPORATION by James Ridgeway; Random House, 220 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

"In all likelihood," begins this book, "most Americans believe . . . that universities are places where professors teach students. They are wrong. In fact, the university looks more like a center for industrial activity than a community of scholars."

This is the theme of "The Closed Corporation," by James Ridgeway, which is sub-titled (for obscure reasons) "American Universities in Crisis."

Far from being in crisis, according to Ridgeway, most of the universities are making money hand over fist in secret research, defense contracts, real estate speculation and sundry investments, besides enabling many members of their faculties to enrich themselves in various ways aside from their salaries. It would appear to be the students who are in crisis.

"The undergraduate students," writes Ridgeway, "lie in campus holding pens, while graduate apprentices read them stories. The stories are boring, and students turn to making their own 'free universities' or spend their time hatching political revolutions on the outside."

Ridgeway, an upstate New York native who cut his journalistic teeth on the Wall Street Journal, free-lanced in England and is now on the staff of the New Republic, presents no balanced appraisal of the non-academic and often-questionable activities of universities in his volume. He is a pamphleteer, in the old tradition. He aims to stir things up, and this book should do it.

The uses of universities as fronts and handmaidens for entrenched interests — and particularly for the Department of Defense — is quite thoroughly explored, with an appendix listing the 100 chief university beneficiaries of defense contracts.

The exposure pretty thoroughly peels away the pretense of disinterested public service behind which university administrators are fond of concealing their money-making manipulations. Some of the ways used by these institutions of higher learning and their "research institutes" would bring down conflict-of-interest prosecutions on anyone else on the public payroll. But then, as Ridgeway emphasizes, the universities' decisions are made in secret and their books never opened to the public.

Ridgeway has some solutions, foremost of which is this:

"Since educational institutions are generally regarded as serving a public function, and financed to a large extent by the general citizenry, they ought to be responsible to the public."

His book, one-sided though it is, presents rather convincing evidence that they are not.

THE DEPRESSED

Ex-Marinite Wesley Baker On Souring Of The Spirit

BELIEVER IN HELL by Rev. Wesley C. Baker; Westminster, 144 pages, $4.75. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Former Marin pastor Rev. Wesley C. Baker, now an executive with the Commission on Ecumenical Mission and Relations of the Presbyterian Church, has selected the depression that sometimes afflicts the human being and sours his spirit as his subject for his fourth book.

His commentary is based partially upon his Biblical background, partially upon his contacts as a counselor, and partially upon personal experience.

He begins with an exploration of depression and its destructive elements — the brooding, self-deception, defeat and insulation of the sufferer. He moves on then to a study of the Bible and the light it can provide for the depressed mind. Then he closes with a classic case history of a final triumph of inspiration over despair.

As always, Reverend Baker writes cogently and on a contemporary plane, his reports and observations always relative to the conditions and the problems of today. It is Biblically rooted counseling, yet more truly in tune with 1968 realities than all the flippant advice of the quick and easy decision Dear Abbys and Ann Landers.

The Professors As Just People

Intelligence and talent are quite different attributes in the human animal. They are not necessarily antithetical nor unrelated. They are just simply different.

A clear example of this can be seen in the novel, "The Horses of Instruction," by Hazard Adams, who is a professor and chairman of the department of English at the University of California's Irvine campus.

Adams tries to show his readers that college professors and their associates are just people, like everyone else. They have their hopes and disappointments, their governable and ungovernable emotions, their small successes and their monumental failures. He tells you these things in clear and expressive language — you can't quarrel with his syntax.

The trouble is that you can't remember who said what, and why.

This is because he ignores one of the basic principles of fiction writing, use of the single point of view, which prevents confusion in the mind of the reader. He prefers to tell his story through the eyes of two main characters, and again from the omniscient angle. The result is a blurring which tends to blot out the conflicts which define a story.

A good novelist understands that without clarity of character line, he loses the orchestration which should carry the theme to its conclusion.

Some of the characters do have real definition. One in particular is a young English teacher named Will Person, whose talent as a poet allows expression in a strongly emotional fashion which holds and involves the reader. Had the author presented his story entirely from this point of view, he might very well have produced a successful novel.

Even so, it will probably be appreciated by many college instructors who have felt the blows of academic in-fighting, and by many more who are spending their lives trying to teach the "unteachable subject."

HAZARD ADAMS
On academic in-fighting

The average reader will react in one of two ways — with indifference or revulsion toward these baffling intellectuals, whom he considers snobs and impractical visionaries. It is most unlikely that he will ever take the time to pursue their acquaintanceship.

SOME NEW BOOKS FOR THE JUNIORS

It's time to consider the Christmas books, always an enjoyable assignment, with the anthologies, of course, deserving first attention.

"The Christmas Book" (Dutton, $4.95) was compiled by James Reeves and illustrated by Raymond Briggs, both English, and has the special fine, warm feeling of the yule season in that country.

The selections include such perennials as Charles Dickens' description of Christmas at the Cratchits and Dylan Thomas' memories of a boyhood holiday in Wales. William Shakespeare, Thomas Hardy, Samuel Pepys, Eugene Field, Robert Herrick, Walter de la Mare, Kenneth Grahame and Alfred Tennyson are among the many others represented in the short stories, excerpts, essays, remembrances, poems and carols that make up the collection. Yes, "The Twelve Days of Christmas" and Clement Moore's "The Night Before Christmas" are there, as well.

"Happy Christmas" (Westminster, $5.95) is also the work of English anthologizers, William Kean Seymour and John Smith, and a British illustrator, Beryl Sanders. It is a larger book. Dickens, Thomas, Pepys, Hardy, Grahame and Herrick appear in it, too, along with the likes of J. B. Priestley, Dorothy Wordsworth, Winifred Holtby, Hilaire Belloc, Samuel Coleridge, Boris Pasternak, S. J. Perelman, William Carlos Williams, C. Day Lewis, John Aubrey, Ogden Nash, George Eliot, Louisa Mae Alcott, Joseph Conrad, Horace Walpole, Charles Lamb, Charlotte Bronte and William Makepeace Thackeray.

The prose pieces in this one tend to be somewhat shorter, and it has a more international flavor. Both books are nicely illustrated, "Happy Christmas" the more profusely. And either book is the kind that will bring the true holiday spirit into the home when read aloud around the family circle, perhaps a few stories, poems and pieces per evening as the November and December days tick off and Christiandom's most wondrous celebration draws near.

The Clement C. Moore classic, "A Visit From St. Nicholas" or " 'Twas the Night Before Christmas," has been given a new printing by McGraw-Hill ($2.95), this time with illustrations by talented Paul Galdone. One hundred and sixty-five years after the poem was first published, it still retains its delightful charm. And Galdone's lively, merry color illustrations enhance that appeal.

Two new books deal with rural American Christmases where the observances are simpler, but all the more enjoyable and meaningful.

"A Long Ago Christmas" (Putnam, $3.50) by Patricia Miles Martin, with illustrations by Albert Orbaan, tells the story of a prairie farm family where young Darius awaits anxiously the arrival of Christmas, hoping for snow and sled. The non-commercial spirit of the holidays of that time is splendidly portrayed, and there is a warmly nostalgic quality to the story.

"Renfro's Christmas" (Viking, $3.50) is more contemporary, but its rural location also lends it a nostalgic quality. Renfroe is 8, and as he goes through the excitement of the pre-Christmas days, and finally the Christmas Eve community party at the schoolhouse, he learns a lesson on giving. Author Robert Burch has done an unusually good job of storytelling in this cheerful, humorous tale. Rocco Negri is the illustrator.

"First Carols" (Walck, $1.95) is an exquisite little book, jewel-like in size and design, assembling such beloved Christmas songs as "O Little Town of Bethlehem" and "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear," with delicate artwork by Brenda Meredith Seymour. The tiny book was lovingly printed in Holland.

"Oliver and His Friends" (Random House, $1.95) by Mary Hastings qualifies as a Christmas book because of its association with Charles Dickens who was Mr. Christmas to so many of us. The book is adapted from the screenplay which in turn was adapted from Lionel Bart's stage hit, "Oliver!" which in turn was adapted from Dickens' immortal "Oliver Twist." The illustrations are color and black and white photographs taken from the motion picture. It makes for a lively and entertaining package, full of life, zest, color and tradition.

Some other new books for the juniors:

Vinson Brown, a Healdsburg resident, is one of our most competent and most effective writers of nature books for youngsters at the upper primary - junior high school level. "How to Follow the Adventures of Insects" (Little, Brown, $4.50) is demonstrative of Brown's special ability. He begins with a discussion of just what insects are, and goes on to describe their habits and habitats, the scientist's approach to them, and such special subjects as collecting, preserving, mounting, studying, tracing and understanding them. There are drawings by Julia Iltis. It is an excellent guide for the child seriously interested in the fascinating "bug world."

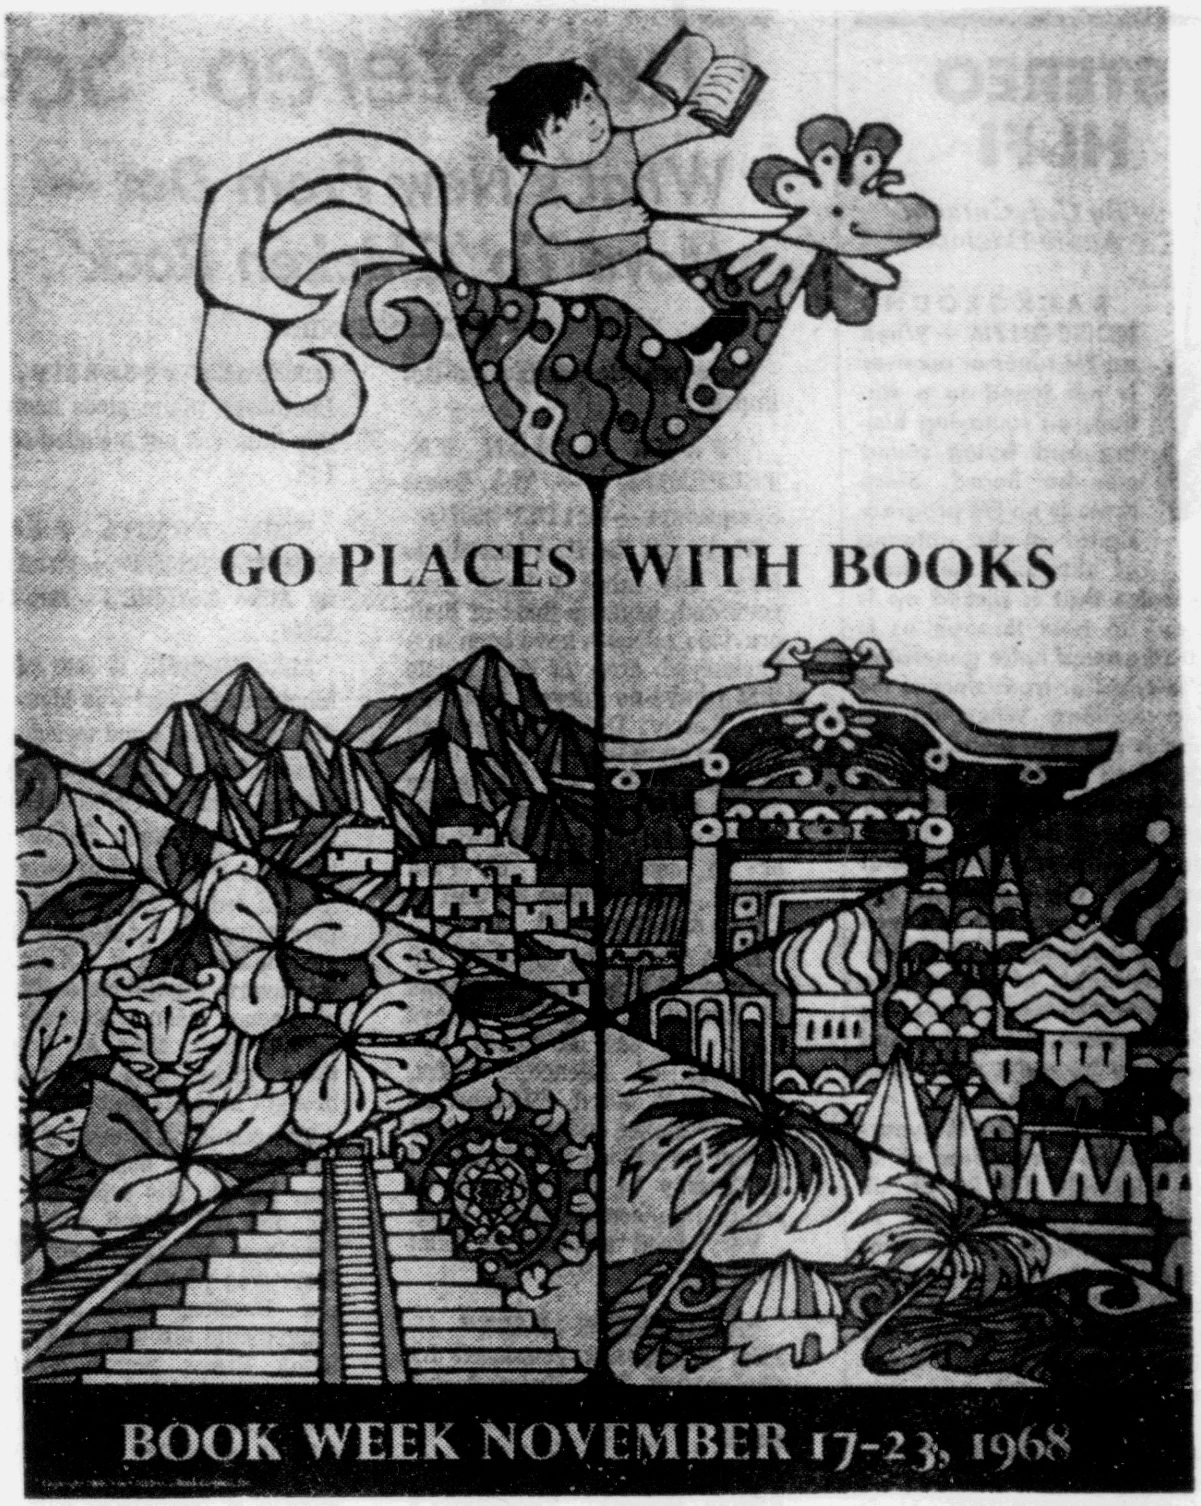
ABC books continue to rate high in popularity with the tykes. "The Alphabet Book" (Four Winds, $3.72) by Rodney Peppe assigns a familiar noun for each of the 26 letters, and uses it in a sentence. Accompanying each statement is a humor-filled illustration in color. And there is a tie-in between each pair of facing pages. It's a book with a catchy lilt and fun-appeal.

Women are sometimes overlooked in our listings of heroic Americans. Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, long on courage herself, and H. Paul Jeffers set out to remedy that oversight in "Gallant Women" (McGraw-Hill, $4.75). It tells for young readers the stories of such outstanding U.S. women as Dolly Madison, Harriet Tubman, Harriet Beecher Stowe, Clara Barton, Annie Sullivan, Amelia Earhart, Althea Gibson and Eleanor Roosevelt. Jeffers previously collaborated with Sen. Everett Dirksen on "Gallant Men."

Part of Random House's Landmark Giant series is "The Landmark History of the American People From Plymouth to Appomattox" ($3.95) by Daniel J. Boorstin. It is a generously illustrated and generally successful attempt to point out the impact upon American culture and character of the exciting events of our earlier, formative years. It is good history, and easy reading.

"What Do You Get?" (Random House, $1.95) is another of those entertaining pop-up books that have resulted in a new title in publishing — paper engineering. This time the credit goes to Tor Lokvig, while Jack Hanrahan and Phil Hahn are listed as the authors. It's a sort of riddle book for youngsters, with the answers jumping out from the pages in the animated pop-up format. For instance: "What do you get when you cross an alligator with a head of lettuce?" Answer: "A big green salad that eats you!" And the toothy three-dimensional illustration looks like it is capable of doing exactly that.

Young people can have a lot of fun and fool their friends while at the same time following scientific principles in "Fun and Tricks for Young Scientists," by George Barr, illustrated by Mildred Waltrip (McGraw-Hill, $4.50). There are many riddles, jokes and puzzles — how to dissolve coins in water etc. This is one of the Young Scientists series.



CHILDREN'S BOOK Week is being observed next week with the theme "Go Places With Books." The poster above was designed by Ellen Raskin for the Children's Book Council which sponsors the observance.

FOR THE WOMEN

Lowly Legume Deserves Greater Consideration

THE SOYBEAN COOKBOOK by Dorothea Van Gundy Jones; Arco, 240 pages, paperback, $1.45. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

It is Americans' own loss that they have adopted an attitude of snobbish disinterest toward one of nature's most wholesome and most plentiful foods, the soybean.

Nutritionists have been attempting to counteract that foolish neglect by pointing out that the soybean, while low in calories, is wonderfully rich in essential nutrients and reasonable in cost. Their biggest obstacle seems to be convincing the public that this legume need not be tasteless, but can be transformed into appetizing dishes.

Books such as this (first published in 1963 and now reissued) and earlier ones by Mildred Lager have done much to combat American indifference toward the soybean.

"The Soybean Cookbook" contains some 350 recipes using the beans and bean products — soybean flour, soy milk — in creative ways that range from soups to desserts.

In an era of growing concern over the world food supply picture, the soybean offers one bright ray of hope. It deserves this kind of attention.

It's Tulip-Planting Time In Marin, So Get Out The Bulbs

Garden Page

Fortunate is he who has already purchased his tulip bulbs for fall planting.

Nurserymen in Marin report that they are now in very short supply. There has been an unprecedented demand for them this autumn.

Nevertheless, if you failed to buy them earlier, you might still find some, even though it may take a bit of hunting.

Acquired earlier or now, this is the time for planting tulip bulbs.

SOME TIPS FOR planting-time:

Too often gardeners make the mistake of planting their tulips in rows, like so many wooden soldiers, or too sparsely, so that the blooms do not really have an opportunity to show off their full glory. For the best effect, mass them heavily.

Because they are the very essence of formality, tulips are best given whole beds to themselves and not mixed with other flowers.

If it's not too late, select the large-size bulbs when you make your purchases. They give better results.

Many Californians are beginning to plant their tulip bulbs deeper than in former years — sometimes eight or nine inches deep. They claim this pays off with stouter root systems to support the tall-stemmed, heavily-bloomed beauties.

The bottom of the refrigerator (but not the freezer) makes an ideal storage place for tulip bulbs while awaiting planting.

Watering is very important for tulips. See that the bulbs get plenty of water from planting time through their blooming period.

THE BEST-KNOWN types are the Cottage and Darwin tulips. But a wide variety of forms is available.

The shaggy Parrot with its fringed petals and streaked coloration has zoomed in popularity in Marin County. Less frequently seen species all have their special attributes and attractions. As a result, the tulip grower has at his disposal an endless array of colors, sizes and forms. The two things they all have in common are dignity and beauty.

TULIPS LEND a special touch of formality and elegance to the garden. They are planted somewhat later in the fall than most other bulbs. But that time has arrived.

Be Prepared: Schedule Pre-Winter Work Day Soon In Your Yard

With mid-November showing on the calendar, a pre-winter work day might well be in order for Marinites this weekend.

Here are some of the chores that should be taken care of before the worst winter storms come roaring in off the Pacific:

FIRST LOOK AT the trees and shrubs that might suffer from high winds. Have they been properly staked? And are the stakes in good repair? Restraining wires might be advisable for some trees. But also check to make sure that trees are not being girdled and damaged by ties and wires applied in earlier years.

Long canes from climbing roses should be firmly anchored.

Look over the yard for drainage trouble spots. Nothing good will come of it if water stands in low spots on the lawn. Fill in these holes gradually with loam and peat moss, steer manure or other planter mix.

FLOWER BEDS that remain soggy can be improved by raising them. Simply build a brick or redwood border around the beds, then add new soil to old.

An over-seeding of Bermuda grass lawns with annual rye grass is a wise late autumn project if you want a green lawn through the winter. Also apply soil conditioners and lawn food.

Last but not least, now's the time for a general clean-up — removing faded annuals, lifting spent dahlias and gladioli, raking leaves from flower beds and lawn, picking up fallen twigs, etc.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

✓Azaleas are to be found in bloom in the nurseries now, and thus can be selected by the gardener in the exact color he desires.

✓Pay particular attention when you visit your nursery to the newly arrived "balled in burlap" field-grown stock from Oregon — conifers (including living Christmas trees), daphnes, dogwoods and other trees and shrubs — that are ready for planting.

✓You can continue to plant your pansies, violas and a number of other annuals.

✓Delphiniums should be cut back to within a few inches of the ground.

✓Chrysanthemums are in short supply in Marin this year. But if you can find them in full bloom, they make the perfect quick color addition, indoors or outdoors, for the Thanksgiving season.

✓Check the wooden supports for tree roses, young trees, chrysanthemums, etc., to make sure they are in good repair and capable of withstanding strong windstorms.

✓Spring-blooming bulbs are in short supply now in the nurseries. But if you have purchased some and stored them away, now is the time to get them out and plant them. By scrounging around, you may still be able to find some bulbs in the nurseries.

✓The new bareroot roses won't appear in the nurseries before late December. But it is not too early to begin preparing the soil for them.

BACKGROUND NOISE ON FM — When an FM tuner or receiver is not tuned to a station, an annoying hissing and frying sound can be heard. Since there is no FM program signal at the antenna of the set, the static type noise that is picked up is allowed to pass through as is the background noise generated by the tubes or transistors of the tuning sections. When an FM station is properly tuned in, this background hissing and frying drops down in level. The stronger the signal from the station the lower will be the background noise level. Weak stations, FM stations that are not received with very much signal at the antenna terminals of the set, do not reduce the noise level very much; therefore, the hissing and frying may be quite noticeable in the background.

The sensitivity of FM tuners and receivers is specified as so many microvolts for 30 db of quieting — IHF standards. A typical specification for a component type receiver is 2 microvolts for 30 db, IHFM. This means that a signal level as low as 2 millionths of a volt at the antenna terminals of the receiver will reduce the noise hum and distortion to 30 decibels below the average program sound coming from the set. The db is a unit of level, and a reduction of 30 db in noise provides a satisfactory signal in accordance with the Institute of High Fidelity Manufacturers, IHFM standards. If more than 2 microvolts is present at the antenna terminals of the set, the noise level will be reduced more than 30 db and thus the program sound will be clearer. The specification states that any signal less than 2 microvolts will not provide enough noise reduction for good listening.

Most listeners that complain of hissing and frying noise on FM do not have a proper antenna. Except for some good signal locations, indoor FM antennas do not provide enough reception. The signal is weak and contains noise pickup from nearby power cords to lamps, lighting, etc. The indoor antenna is not very directive so it may be picking up additional signals that bounce from nearby hills. To insure that sufficient signal arrives at the antenna terminals of the receiver, an outside FM antenna should be used. This should be one with several elements to provide directional characteristics; thus allowing a strong signal to be received from the station. Visit us and ask about our Finco FM antennas.

What's New From Dot — Move To 'Chicken Rock'

By JOHN SUNIER

Some records bearing the Dot imprint:

"PAUL SIMON INTERPRETED" — The Sound Symposium — Dot DLP 25871:

These are the first recordings from this label I have ever reviewed, because most of their previous releases have been in a hackneyed area of pop music that I have no interest in covering. Lately, Dot has branched out into an area some refer to as "chicken rock," and this is one of the better examples: a light and tasteful concert of a dozen or so compositions of Paul Simon, better known as half of Simon and Garfunkel.

Hearing the straight instrumental treatments (with lots of harpsichord which always turns me on) of tunes like "Sounds of Silence," "Mrs. Robinson," and "Homeward Bound" makes one want to place Simon very close to Lennon and McCartney in the creation of really fine contemporary song.

Very good stereo and quiet surfaces.

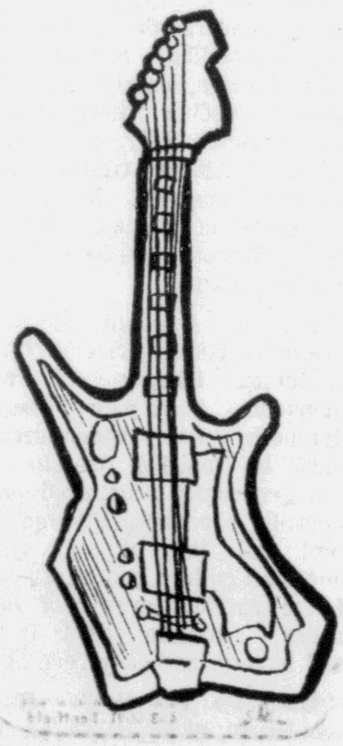
A chillingly well-done film by Roman Polanski, "Rosemary's Baby" has been as much a subject of heated debate among even casual movie-goers as the brilliant "2001: Space Odyssey."

While this score is very good with the film and for those who have seen the film, I doubt if it would stand up for the uninitiated. There are lots of electronic distortions of the basically conservative score, plus some interesting electronic harpsichord solos. The main theme sounds alone more like it belongs with a sad Italian film than a witch story in a New York setting.

Surprisingly, with all the classics (Mozart, Strauss, etc.) being popularized via film soundtracks recently, the Beethoven piano piece heard in this film was not included on the LP.



"THE WICHITA TRAIN WHISTLE SINGS" — Presented by Mike Nesmith — Dot DLP 25861:

Mike Nesmith is one of the Monkees. He had this idea, see, that a big, big band swinging in a sort of rock idiom and playing all his own tunes would be a Great New Sound. So he contacted a big bunch of musician friends, led by the erstwhile jazz trumpeter Shorty Rogers. They assembled in a Sunset Boulevard studio on a Sunday afternoon, when everybody got double time, they all brought their girls, and a caterer brought in booze and snacks.

The result? A smashing party, and the worst pop record I've ever heard. The tunes are corny and all sound alike, the drummer is worse than Ringo Starr was when he started with the Beatles, and the arrangements throw in bits of Tiajuana Brass, Sousa, Flatt & Scruggs, Stravinsky in such a disorganized fashion that it frequently sounds as though music from two different studios got channeled somehow onto the same final tape. After two complete breakdowns during the music, with general pandemonium in the studio demonstrating clearly that everybody is zonked out of their minds, someone yells a final "Let's Eat!"

A short, sweet and simple humor production based on the increasingly witty and sophisticated writings-on-the-wall which someone has collected around the country. Places such as ad agency restrooms, car bumpers and the Haight - Ashbury were scoured for this collection, arranged in categories such as Sex, Hippies, Advertising, Religion, etc. Example: "Support the War on Poverty — Kill a Pauper."

While these would be as funny to read as to hear, the LP is worth hearing at least once.

"HERE COMES THE BIRD" — Written and Performed by Kenny Somls and Gail Parent — Atlantic SD 8159:

This is a bit late to be reviewing a take-off on the Lynda Bird wedding, but I just received it. Besides the happy pair, the voices of Ladybird, LBJ, Luci and George Hamilton are heard. Some very funny bits, especially Lynda's "last phone call" to George.

THE FALLEN LEADER

The drums beat on like the march of years,
Pounding and never stopping —
The heartbeat of a nation's fears,
Like teardrops gently dropping.

The horse's saddle empty and bare,
He'll never ride again —
For though the leader once rode there
Our President was slain.

Beside his grave the lasting flame
Will burn forever on,
And like his ever spreading fame
Grows brighter with each dawn.

FOR A CHEERFUL Christmas touch, there's nothing like jolly old Santa himself. Add his reindeer and sleigh, and you have an outdoor decoration, for lawn or rooftop, that is sure to catch the eyes of passers-by throughout the holiday season. The projects are relatively simple ones, but do not delay too long if you want to have your decoration done and in place for the entire holiday season.

A Confusing World Of Clear Finishes

The newcomer who ventures into the intriguing world of clear wood finishing quickly discovers that the guidelines are flexible indeed.

Having already decided that he wishes to preserve and enhance the natural characteristics of wood, he finds that there not only is a wide variety of types of finishes, but a large number of choices within each group. Even more confusing are the seemingly countless techniques of application, with both experts and amateurs offering sure-fire procedures for successful results.

THE STATE OF bewilderment will dissolve quickly if he decides at the outset that every finish has something to recommend it and that it's all a matter of personal preference. The same goes, of course, for favorite mixtures of different products and methods of application.

What remains, then, is the matter of experimenting to discover which materials and procedures best suit the tyro's own needs and preferences. Before very long, he, too, will be strongly advocating certain kinds of finishes and application systems, thus inferentially placing himself into the expert category.

There are certain basic types of clear wood finishes, the best-known being varnish, shellac, lacquer and the penetrants, the latter having the characteristic of sinking into the wood rather than remaining on the surface. Included among the many other finishes are synthetics, each brand of which says that its own chemical formulations give it superior qualities, especially in the area of durability.

VARNISHES GENERALLY are resistant to water, heat, alcohol and most other liquids; are reasonably easy to use but must be applied in a nearly dust-free atmosphere; most are glossy but can be obtained in duller finishes, and are thinned with turpentine or mineral spirits.

Shellacs are very easy to apply; dry fast; can be touched up quickly; require waxing to prevent stains from liquids; must not be applied during a period of high humidity, and are thinned with denatured alcohol.

Lacquers produce a high gloss; are durable and resistant to liquids; dry even faster than shellacs; usually are sprayed on but can be applied with a brush, especially to small surfaces; and are thinned with a lacquer thinner.

PENETRATING finishes actually are sealers; usually must be waxed to provide protection against wear; are very easy to touch up without the appearance of patching, and require very little skill for application.

Oil finishes, such as linseed oil and/or turpentine, provide a mellow look but must be rubbed in thoroughly and at least once or twice a year.

All synthetic and special types of finishes must be used according to the directions on the containers.

It's Tulip-Planting Time In Marin, So Get Out The Bulbs

Garden Page

Fortunate is he who has already purchased his tulip bulbs for fall planting.

Nurserymen in Marin report that they are now in very short supply. There has been an unprecedented demand for them this autumn.

Nevertheless, if you failed to buy them earlier, you might still find some, even though it may take a bit of hunting.

Acquired earlier or now, this is the time for planting tulip bulbs.

SOME TIPS FOR planting-time:

Too often gardeners make the mistake of planting their tulips in rows, like so many wooden soldiers, or too sparsely, so that the blooms do not really have an opportunity to show off their full glory. For the best effect, mass them heavily.

Because they are the very essence of formality, tulips are best given whole beds to themselves and not mixed with other flowers.

If it's not too late, select the large-size bulbs when you make your purchases. They give better results.

Many Californians are beginning to plant their tulip bulbs deeper than in former years — sometimes eight or nine inches deep. They claim this pays off with stouter root systems to support the tall-stemmed, heavily-bloomed beauties.

The bottom of the refrigerator (but not the freezer) makes an ideal storage place for tulip bulbs while awaiting planting.

Watering is very important for tulips. See that the bulbs get plenty of water from planting time through their blooming period.

THE BEST-KNOWN types are the Cottage and Darwin tulips. But a wide variety of forms is available.

The shaggy Parrot with its fringed petals and streaked coloration has zoomed in popularity in Marin County. Less frequently seen species all have their special attributes and attractions. As a result, the tulip grower has at his disposal an endless array of colors, sizes and forms. The two things they all have in common are dignity and beauty.

TULIPS LEND a special touch of formality and elegance to the garden. They are planted somewhat later in the fall than most other bulbs. But that time has arrived.

Be Prepared: Schedule Pre-Winter Work Day Soon In Your Yard

With mid-November showing on the calendar, a pre-winter work day might well be in order for Marinites this weekend.

Here are some of the chores that should be taken care of before the worst winter storms come roaring in off the Pacific:

FIRST LOOK AT the trees and shrubs that might suffer from high winds. Have they been properly staked? And are the stakes in good repair? Restraining wires might be advisable for some trees. But also check to make sure that trees are not being girdled and damaged by ties and wires applied in earlier years.

Long canes from climbing roses should be firmly anchored.

Look over the yard for drainage trouble spots. Nothing good will come of it if water stands in low spots on the lawn. Fill in these holes gradually with loam and peat moss, steer manure or other planter mix.

FLOWER BEDS that remain soggy can be improved by raising them. Simply build a brick or redwood border around the beds, then add new soil to old.

An over-seeding of Bermuda grass lawns with annual rye grass is a wise late autumn project if you want a green lawn through the winter. Also apply soil conditioners and lawn food.

Last but not least, now's the time for a general clean-up — removing faded annuals, lifting spent dahlias and gladioli, raking leaves from flower beds and lawn, picking up fallen twigs, etc.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

✓ Azaleas are to be found in bloom in the nurseries now, and thus can be selected by the gardener in the exact color he desires.

✓ Pay particular attention when you visit your nursery to the newly arrived "balled in burlap" field-grown stock from Oregon — conifers (including living Christmas trees), daphnes, dogwoods and other trees and shrubs — that are ready for planting.

✓ You can continue to plant your pansies, violas and a number of other annuals.

✓ Delphiniums should be cut back to within a few inches of the ground.

✓ Chrysanthemums are in short supply in Marin this year. But if you can find them in full bloom, they make the perfect quick color addition, indoors or outdoors, for the Thanksgiving season.

✓ Check the wooden supports for tree roses, young trees, chrysanthemums, etc., to make sure they are in good repair and capable of withstanding strong windstorms.

✓ Spring-blooming bulbs are in short supply now in the nurseries. But if you have purchased some and stored them away, now is the time to get them out and plant them. By scrounging around, you may still be able to find some bulbs in the nurseries.

Narcotics Lab Raid Hits Marin House

Agents Believe Suspects Linked To Haight Traffic

Four young men and two girls were arrested yesterday in a drug and marijuana raid on an expensive San Anselmo house which officers said held a chemistry laboratory capable of producing LSD.

State narcotics agents said the raid, which netted LSD and marijuana worth about $35,000, is believed to be a link with heavy drug traffic in San Francisco's Haight-Ashbury district.

Twenty-one persons were arrested earlier this week in a Haight-Ashbury roundup and since then agents have been seeking the supply source. They said they have been aware of the San Anselmo group since Oct. 14 arrests at an Oak Street house in San Francisco which netted 7,000 LSD tablets and over four pounds of marijuana.

EVIDENCE SEIZED

Confiscated during the San Anselmo arrests at about 4:30 p.m. were an estimated 30 pounds of marijuana and a pound of LSD tablets.

Booked into Marin County jail after being arrested at the plush residence at 156 Crescent Road were Hamilton Bassett Henry, Peter Russell Robbins and David Charles Hoye, all 21, Christine Jane Henry, 18 ,and Mary T. Rosenbaum, 20, all for investigation of marijuana possession and having dangerous drugs for sale; and Andrew Samuel Perri, 19, for investigation of offering dangerous drugs for sale, and possession of marijuana and having dangerous drugs for sale.

All but Perri, of San Francisco, gave the Crescent Road house as their address.

WHOLESALE TRADE

A state narcotics bureau agent, said the six reportedly have been running a good-sized wholesale LSD market from the home and that they all have been on the Bay Area hippie scene for a short time. They rented the five-bedroom home, with swimming pool and dressing cabana, for $325 a month about three months ago, he reported.

He said the action began at noon yesterday in San Francisco when Perri allegedly offered to sell LSD wholesale to a San Francisco police undercover agent. The officer agreed and made arrangements with federal and state narcotics agents to follow him and Perri to San Anselmo, the agent added.

He said two more stops were made in San Francisco to make further arrangements, then the officer and Perri went to the San Anselmo house. The officer was told in the house the LSD would cost $4,000, according to the report. He declared he had only $1,500 in his pocket, but

Nixon Starts Work On Text For Inaugural

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — President-elect Richard M. Nixon, relaxing alone on a porch overlooking placid Biscayne Bay, began work today on his inaugural address and on budget problems.

He also named two of his top speech writers as White House special assistants.

With his family in Pennsylvania for the wedding of Barbara Eisenhower, Nixon spent the day at the waterfront home rented from Sen. George A. Smathers, D-Fla. Aides were stationed in a nearby hotel.

The two assistants, press aide Ron Ziegler said Nixon planned to name, are Raymond K. Price Jr., 38, and Patrick J. Buchanan Jr., 30.

BOTH NEWSPAPERMEN

Price, former chief editorial writer for the New York Herald-Tribune, and Buchanan, a former editorial writer for the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, have been on Nixon's staff since last year.

In outlining their White House roles Ziegler said the two will be "generalists in the truest sense," active in "development of programs and policy statements."

Asked if he was named to give a liberal viewpoint and Buchanan a conservative one, Price said, "Together we provide a pretty good balance." Buchanan said the two have been able "to give Mr. Nixon the benefit of two viewpoints."

NIXON'S PLANS

The President-elect plans to stay here at least through Tuesday, returning Wednesday to New York.

There were no plans for Nixon's family to join him after attending the wedding of former

NATO Pens Firm Warning To Russ

BRUSSELS (AP) — The North Atlantic Treaty Organization set up a new zone of security interest in southeast Europe and the Mediterranean today and posted a warning to the Russians.

"Clearly any Soviet intervention, directly or indirectly, affecting the situation in Europe or in the Mediterranean would create an international crisis with grave consequences," the 15 members of the alliance proclaimed in a communique.

BUILDUP ORDERED

Western statesmen led by Secretary of State Dean Rusk at the same time ordered a power buildup in case they have to meet a Soviet attack on their newly conceived security zone, which includes both Communist and neutral lands.

In a parallel action, NATO strategic experts pushed ahead with emergency plans for the defense of such countries as Yugoslavia, Austria and Albania in the event a need should arise to rush to their aid.

The proclamation of shared security interests, issued at the end of a meeting of the council of the alliance, was a direct response to the Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia Aug. 20-21.

FRANCE SIGNS

The communique, with lone-wolf France among the signers, recalled how the Russians sought to justify the invasion.

"The contention of the Soviet leadership that there exists a right of intervention in the af-

Air Cavalry Hurls Back Red Attack

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. Army troops today hurled back an assault by about 200 Communist troops on an outpost near the Cambodian border and chased survivors into the jungles 70 miles north of Saigon.

U.S. spokesmen said the Communists hit the outpost manned by U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division troops at about 6:30 a.m. with rocket grenades, grenades and automatic weapons fire.

The Americans called in helicopter gunships and jet fighter strikes in a 90-minute fight and then chased the fleeing Reds into nearby jungles where the Communists tried to pick them off from sniper posts in trees.

At least 36 Communists were known killed in the fighting. U.S. casualties were reported as 11 wounded and no known dead, the spokesmen said.

Woman Tells Of Episode With Guns

By ALAN JONES

A redheaded prosecution witness gave testimony damaging to both sides yesterday in the murder trial of John Arceo and Dennis C. Novotny.

Arceo and Novotny are on trial in Marin Superior Court for the murder of San Rafael gun collector Wesley L. Marshall, who died Jan. 6, a month after he was beaten and robbed of his guns at his home.

A third man, Claude (Frenchy) LeBas, has pleaded guilty to the crime and is serving a life sentence.

Yesterday Connie Rosser, former friend of LeBas, said she heard the three and Mrs. Arceo in a clandestine conference at Arceo's house. She was sent to the bedroom, she said, and could not hear what they discussed.

Next night, she said, Novotny and LeBas left for a time and came back late at night with five or six guns which they piled on the kitchen table.

The defense scored a point when Miss Rosser insisted on cross examination that the kitchen conference took place two days before she read of the Marshall robbery in the newspapers.

Marshall lay unfound for four days, and the first story

Larkspur Man, East Bay Trucker Killed

An East Bay truck driver and another motorist, who was not immediately identified, today became the 31st and 32nd traffic fatalities in Marin this year.

The trucker died when his vehicle crashed into a tree north of Novato at 5:40 a.m. as he tried to avoid hitting a horse which ran across the highway.

A few hours later a Larkspur man — not otherwise identified — was killed when his car ran off the highway late this morning at Waldo Grade above Martin Luther King School in Sausalito.

The victim in the first accident was Andre Charles Siedentopf, 29, of Union City, a driver for Systems 99 Trucking Co. of Emeryville.

The Larkspur man's name has not been released by the California Highway Patrol pending notification of next-of-kin.

The truck accident happened near Rancho Olompali, from which officers said the horse possibly came.

According to officers, Siedentopf, who was driving a large trailer truck, was unable to avoid hitting the horse, which was killed, in a southbound lane. He swerved off the road, crashed into a tree and was thrown from the cab.

Siedentopf was pronounced dead at Marin General Hospital.

He is survived by his wife, Sharon.

Funeral arrangements are pending at Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael.

There had been 30 traffic deaths at this time in Marin last year.

Pumpkin Center Bank Robber Gets $49,120

The bank reported $44,000 in cash was taken along with $5,120 in travelers checks yesterday.

Russ Orbit 17 Tons

MOSCOW (AP) — A powerful Soviet rocket hurled into orbit today a 17-ton sputnik, the world's biggest unmanned scientific spaceship, an official announcement said.

The spacecraft, Proton-4, began circling the earth on a scientific mission to study high-energy cosmic rays and electrons.

The announcement did not specify what equipment was aboard or indicate whether Proton-4 had any other mission than the space studies mentioned.

It came amid a series of recent Soviet space shots which Western scientists say could be building up to a Soviet attempt to send men around the moon before America's Apollo 8 attempt at Christmas time.

U.S. officials expressed belief the rocket which threw Proton-4 into orbit had about the same weight-lifting capacity as the U.S. Saturn 1B, which lofted the 33,389-pound Apollo 7 manned spacecraft into orbit in October.

The most powerful American rocket, Saturn 5, can put 280,000 pounds into earth orbit or throw the complete 101,000-pound Apollo spaceship to the moon.

The announcement on Proton-4 said 12.5 tons of the approximately 17-ton payload was made up of scientific equipment. Radio reports from the craft indicated the equipment was working normally, it added.

Ukiah Fire Kills Marin Business Executive Russell Campbell Mills

RUSSELL C. MILLS
Was visiting wife

I-J Special Report

UKIAH — Russell Campbell Mills, 61, of Mill Valley, vice president and treasurer of the E. D. Bullard Co. in Sausalito, died today in a fire in a motel here.

Firemen said Mills died from smoke inhalation casued by a smouldering mattress in his room in a Travelodge motel.

Firemen said the mattress apparently had been smouldering for some time when they were called at 2:25 a.m. today. The only damage in the room was to the mattress, the bedding and the rug.

Mills was found dead on the floor and had apparently tried to escape from the room, firemen said. He had been carried out before firemen arrived and was taken to a Ukiah hospital where attempts to revive him failed.

Firemen said the blaze may have been started by a cigarette.

Mills, of 160 Eldridge Avenue, was in Ukiah to visit his wife, Katharine Erskine Mills, a patient at Mendocino State Hospital.

He had been with E. D. Bullard since 1934 and had lived in Mill Valley all his life.

Mills had served on the Mill Valley School District board and was a member of the Mill Valley Tennis Club.

Survivors, besides his wife, are two sons, Melville E. (Scotty) and Russell C. Jr., both of Mill Valley.

A Confusing World Of Clear Finishes

The newcomer who ventures into the intriguing world of clear wood finishing quickly discovers that the guidelines are flexible indeed.

Having already decided that he wishes to preserve and enhance the natural characteristics of wood, he finds that there not only is a wide variety of types of finishes, but a large number of choices within each group. Even more confusing are the seemingly countless techniques of application, with both experts and amateurs offering sure-fire procedures for successful results.

THE STATE OF bewilderment will dissolve quickly if he decides at the outset that every finish has something to recommend it and that it's all a matter of personal preference. The same goes, of course, for favorite mixtures of different products and methods of application.

What remains, then, is the matter of experimenting to discover which materials and procedures best suit the tyro's own needs and preferences. Before very long, he, too, will be strongly advocating certain kinds of finishes and application systems, thus inferentially placing himself into the expert category.

There are certain basic types of clear wood finishes, the best-known being varnish, shellac, lacquer and the penetrants, the latter having the characteristic of sinking into the wood rather than remaining on the surface. Included among the many other finishes are synthetics, each brand of which says that its own chemical formulations give it superior qualities, especially in the area of durability.

VARNISHES GENERALLY are resistant to water, heat, alcohol and most other liquids; are reasonably easy to use but must be applied in a nearly dust-free atmosphere; most are glossy but can be obtained in duller finishes, and are thinned with turpentine or mineral spirits.

Shellacs are very easy to apply; dry fast; can be touched up quickly; require waxing to prevent stains from liquids; must not be applied during a period of high humidity, and are thinned with denatured alcohol.

Lacquers produce a high gloss; are durable and resistant to liquids; dry even faster than shellacs; usually are sprayed on but can be applied with a brush, especially to small surfaces; and are thinned with a lacquer thinner.

PENETRATING finishes actually are sealers; usually must be waxed to provide protection against wear; are very easy to touch up without the appearance of patching, and require very little skill for application.

Oil finishes, such as linseed oil and/or turpentine, provide a mellow look but must be rubbed in thoroughly and at least once or twice a year.

All synthetic and special types of finishes must be used according to the directions on the containers.

Strikes Intensify Crisis In Prague

PRAGUE (AP) — Protest strikes were reported in suburban Prague and in Olomouc, central Moravia, as Czechoslovakia's Communist leaders waged a power struggle with pro-Soviet hardliners behind closed doors.

It was not immediately learned what action, if any authorities planned to take. The government has banned demonstrations to try and maintain calm during a crucial party Central Committee meeting, now in its second day.

Czechoslovak military policemen with submarchine guns patrolled Prague streets and informants said the Czechoslovak army's 6,000-man Prague garrison was alerted and all leaves canceled.

Armored personnel carriers were noticed at one of the small Soviet military command posts in the city, but there was no confirmation of rumors that some Soviet units had returned to Prague from permanent camps in outlying areas.

Student leaders said the reports of army and police alerts made them realize that demonstrations would be suicide. They announced plans for peaceful sit-ins, starting tomorrow —one for a day to protest the ban on demonstrations, and other for up to three days if the Central Committee decisions are unfavorable.

Snatches of arguments in the 190-member Central Committee, released by radio and television indicated Dubcek's supporters were fighting to defend his reform policies against attacks by Old Guard hard-liners. Some members had angrily demanded to know what leaders had invited the Soviets to invade their country for the purpose of quelling "counterrevolution." Many Czechoslovaks feared they were the dying gasps of free discussion.

Dubcek was reported to have announced new allegiance to "democratic centralism," the orthodox Communist principle that debate stops once the decision is made.

The decision in this case, the final resolution of the Central Committee, is due tomorrow at the earliest.

More than 100 of the 140 members who had asked to speak remained to be heard from in the closed Central Committee meeting at Prague Castle.

Polish Reds Again Pick Gomulka

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Wladyslaw Gomulka was reelected leader of the Polish Communist party today after a secret election which placed four new faces in the top leadership.

The election of a new ruling politburo and central committee, the climaxing event of a week-long quadrennial party congress, denied promotion to former Interior Minister and Secret Police Chief Mieczyslaw Moczar, the symbol of a loosely organized nationalist faction within the party, seeking changes.

MINISTER LOSES

The election confirmed the political demise of Adam Rapacki, the foreign minister, who has withdrawn from the inner circle of leadership after a combination of heart trouble and apparent disagreement over policy. He was not returned as a member of the politburo.

Gomulka announced his own re-election as first secretary of the party, a job he has held since 1956.

He joined in the applause given him by the more than 1,700 party delegates who elected him and who, along with such prominent foreign guests as Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev, filled the congress hall in the skyscraper Palace of Culture.

NEW FACES

Raised to the politburo were Stanislaw Kociolek, party leader of Grdansk Province, purported to be a Gomulka disciple; Jozef Tejchma, 41, the party secretary in charge of agriculture, and Wladyslaw Kruczek, 57, the party leader from Poland's southeastern Rzeszow Province and considered to be a hard-liner.

All three were promoted over the heads of three deputy members of the politburo, Agriculture Minister Mieczyslaw Jagielski, Deputy Premier Piotr Jaroszewicz and Moczar, who retained their deputy status. The number of new members increased to four with the addition of Poznan party chief Jan Szydlak, also considered a hard-liner.

The failure of Moczar to step up to full politburo rank came as a surprise and may be interpreted as Moscow dissatisfaction with his nationalist-leaning posture. Moczar is credited with being one of the leading forces for change in the party, a man reputed to seek the No. 1 position. He is believed also to have been one of the chief engineers of party purges and an "anti-Zionist" campaign during the year.

Less Black Militancy Predicted

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A Negro social researcher at the University of California predicts black militants are on the verge of turning away from violent confrontations and concentrating instead on means for political and economic power.

"Activists are starting to realize that any violent strategy has its limitations and is only effective up to a point," Staten W. Webster, professor of education at U.C.'s Berkeley campus, said yesterday.

The tremendous growth this year in Negro voter registration is an indication of the new strategy, Webster said. More than 7 million black citizens voted in this year's presidential election.

To encourage such constructive efforts, Webster said, the dominant white society should be careful not to "over-react" to talk of violence by black militants.

He said such talk results from frustrations of "years of oppression" and symbolizes the new feeling of "black people not being afraid anymore of whites."

Speaking before the 20th annual Conference on Educational Research, Webster said "much of what seems to be anti-white hostility" is rally an attempt to build the same ethnic pride achieved by other minority groups.

Although militants are starting to realize that violence is not the way to achieve acceptance, Webster said, violence has underlined the "urgency" of the current racial crisis that "results from the fact that Negroes, in particular, have been accorded a status beneath that assigned to any immigrant group."

Auto Agency Wins Paving Approval

Plans for paving 35,000 square feet of parking area for Ted R. Schuman Chevrolet Co. were approved yesterday by the Novato Plan Review Committee, according to secretary Juanita Gibson.

The committee called for addition of some landscaping and fencing around the north end of the lot which is north of the Chevrolet garage west of Highway 101 at Lamont Avenue, she said.

The committee postponed action on a request from Hoytt Enterprise Inc. for a 20,000-square-foot tacos restaurant on the east side of Seventh Street south of Lee Brothers Market, according to Mrs. Gibson, who said the committee will consider them at a special meeting to be called after final plans are submitted.

S.F. State Reopening Date Hinges In Trustee Meeting

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The president of San Francisco State College hopes to open his strife-torn school next Tuesday.

But in making the announcement yesterday, President Robert R. Smith said on final decision would be reached until after a special meeting of state college trustees Monday in Los Angeles.

The president spoke to 600 faculty members yesterday on the otherwise deserted campus. He said the Los Angeles meeting would assess the problem, not order action. It was called Thursday by Trustees President Theodore Meriam and chancellor Glen Dumke of the 19-college system. Both have supported Smith's decision to cancel classes as an effort "to provide for the safety of persons and property."

Smith said he realizes there is "growing public concern" about his order to close the school and is aware of charges of "academic and administrative irresponsibility" in connection with the handling of the dispute.

"There is questioning of who is to blame," Smith said.

"The climate of the state for a year or two has been one in which it is easier to look for simple solutions and placing of blame for the plight we are in than to look for the broad range of problems not resolved."

"It's a question of whether to run a program with dollars and with educational knowledge, or rather to run a program with clubs."

U.S. Thaws Highway Funding

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —California highway officials have been told that the freeze on federal funds for construction of interstate highways will end Dec. 1.

State Business and Transportation Secretary Gordon C. Luce disclosed yesterday he received word from the federal Transportation Agency that it will resume approval of applications by the states for highway funds.

Luce said the action would release more than $316 million in federal money for use in the California construction program during the remaining seven months of the current fiscal year.

The freeze was put into effect in September to reduce federal spending. It was the fourth such ban in a two-year period.

Luce said he was informed of the federal decision in a letter from John Robson, an aide to federal Transportation Secretary Alan Boyd.

State highway officials estimated the freeze caused postponement of bid advertisements for about $150 million worth of highway construction in California. This represented 28 projects.

Luce, a bitter critic of the freeze, said completion of the interstate system has been delayed two years "because of these unwarranted interferences on the part of the Department of Transportation."

Rec Commission Puts Off Its Meeting

The regular meeting of the Novato Parks and Recreation Advisory Commission, scheduled for 8 p.m. Monday at the Novato Community House, has been canceled for lack of business, according to Edward W. Adams, parks and recreation director.

The commission members will meet at 9 a.m. tomorrow at the community house to tour possible park sites in the southern sections of the city, Adams said.

Final Docking

SOUTHAMPTON, England (UPI) — The liner Queen Elizabeth which will soon be moored permanently at Port Everglades, Fla., docked at Southampton yesterday for the last time in her 28-year career, arriving from a cruise to Gibralter and Majorca.

Supervisors Pursue New Tax Sources

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The County Supervisors Association of California has concluded its three-day convention with an appeal to the legislature to give counties an expanded tax base to end their dependence on the "narrow, regressive" property tax.

In a resolution approved at yesterday's final session, the supervisors asked the lawmakers to authorize counties to use "such progressive tax sources" as the sales and income taxes.

Copies of the resolution were ordered sent to Gov. Ronald Reagan, the tax reform commission and to both houses of the legislature.

The supervisors noted that property tax relief would not mitigate the problem of attempting to respond to "the legitimate demands of citizens for increased and improved government services."

Such relief cannot be achieved, the supervisors said, as long as the only source of revenue for counties "continues to be the restrictive and regressive property tax base."

Another resolution approved by the association asked the legislature to "enact legislation which will permit the denial of welfare aid to persons who come to California" only for the purpose of getting such assistance.

Murder Charge Hearing Stopped For Grand Jury

A preliminary hearing for a Tiburon man and his mother indicted for murder has been canceled in San Francisco.

Instead, Daniel Nyhan, 43, and his mother, Mrs. Elsie F. Nyhan, 72, of San Francisco, will be arraigned within two or three weeks under a grond jury indictment for murder.

The Associated Press reported the San Francisco district attorney's office held that the grand jury proceedings took precedence over criminal proceedings already started, and canceled the preliminary hearing set for yesterday.

The Nyhans are charged with the murder of Mrs. Genevieve Dolan, 61, whom Mrs. Nyhan described as "my best friend." Mrs. Dolan was found dead of head injuries Oct. 25 in Mrs. Nyhan's Nob Hill apartment.

The mother and son are being held in San Francisco County Jail without bail.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Wolden Hearing Set

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Superior Court Judge Lewis Drucker has ordered a Nov. 25 hearing to consider the release of ailing San Francisco assessor Russell L. Wolden, serving a prison sentence for bribery.

The chief medical examiner at the California Medical Facility at Vacaville said the heart condition of Wolden, 59, had deteriorated rapidly.

Wolden was one of nine men sent to jail in a series of trials arising from tax assessment scandals in San Francisco in 1965. He is serving a one-to-14-year term.

Bay Bomb Suspects

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The FBI is seeking a couple who moved out of a rented Richmond home Oct. 5, leaving behind a cache of explosives and revolutionary materials.

A federal warrant was issued against Anthony Richard Tankersley, 28, and Susan O'Dell Barber Tankersley, 26, yesterday for unlawful flight to avoid prosecution. They were last reported in Denver.

Contra Costa County Dist. Atty. John Nejedly said the Tankersleys, charged with unlawful possession of explosives, are also wanted for questioning about a series of explosions involving Pacific Gas and Electric Co. installations in the San Francisco East Bay area and police and sheriff's stations in the Bay Area.

Tax Curb Vetoed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Mayor Joseph L. Alioto has vetoed a business tax exemption for newspapers, radio and television which was approved by the board of supervisors by a 6-5 vote.

The business taxes on news media are levied "for the sole purpose of maintaining the municipal government," Alioto said.

He cited court decisions and noted similar taxes are paid by publications and other media outside California.

Onassis Gem Theft

TURVILLE HEATH, England (AP)—Burglars broke into the country mansion home where Mrs. Aristotle Onassis is staying and made off with several thousand dollars worth of jewels, a British newspaper reported today.

Police Inspector John Chamberlain told newsmen: "I've been asked not to say anything."

The Evening Standard said the gems were stolen from the home of Princess Lee Radziwill, sister of Mrs. Onassis, who is spending the weekend there with her multimillionaire Greek husband.

Some of the jewelry stolen is believed to belong to Mrs. Onassis, the former Mrs. John F. Kennedy.

Christmas Chaos?

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — A slowdown ordered today by the German Postal Workers union was expected to result in chaos during the Christmas mail rush.

The union ordered its members to work by the rules—check each item for correct weight and postage and readability of rubber stamps.

It acted after the government decided only a few postal employees will receive Christmas bonuses of 6 per cent. The government said there were not enough funds to increase the bonus to 40 per cent of a month's salary for all employees.

Agnew Skips Golf

Heavy rains in the Puerto Rico-Virgin Islands area were again the cause for putting aside Agnew's planned round of golf with Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and Sen. Edmund Muskie.

Koreans Kill Red

SEOUL, Korea (AP) — South Korean troops pursuing two North Korean guerrilla bands of 60 men killed one more today bringing to 31 the number of Communists killed in two weeks. The army also reported two guerrillas were captured.

Ecumenical Cardinal Bea Dies

ROME (AP) — Augustin Cardinal Bea, the gentle ascetic German Jesuit who led the quest for agreement among the world's major creeds in the Roman Catholic Church, died yesterday in a Rome hospital. He was 87.

Cardinal Bea

Bea was a key figure at the Ecumenical Council Vatican II, where he led the liberal bishops against the entrenched position of the conservative Roman Curia, the church's central administrative body.

Outside the church Bea, who could converse easily in five languages, won support of many Protestant and Orthodox leaders for enunciation of man's right to choose his own religion — or no religion.

His early years at the Vatican were spent as a scholar and Biblical historian. Later he became Pope Pius XII's confessor.

But it was Pope Pius XXIII who made him a cardinal in 1959 and appointed him to head the new Secretariat for the Union of Christians, where he worked to bridge the gaps within the Christian church.

Haircut Cost Cut?

SANTA ANA (AP) — The price of a haircut in California may drop, at least temporarily, union officials said after a judge struck down a 1941 law which sets minimum prices for haircuts.

The law was declared unconstitutional yesterday by Superior Court Judge Ronald M. Crookshank in a suit filed by the state Board of Barber Examiners against Ricky Star, who operates 28 barbershops in Orange County.

The suit was filed because Star charges only $1.75 for haircuts for adults; the state minimum in the county is $1.91. Under the 27-year-old state law, barbers in each county or city can establish a minimum price by majority vote.

Sentence Delayed

SAN JOSE (AP) — Sentence is scheduled next Friday for Leonard E. Maine, convicted of second-degree murder in the 1967 shooting of Timothy Luce of Ukiah.

A report on Maine, 19, of Ritzville, Wash., has not been completed, probation officer Dick Garish told the court yesterday, and a one-week delay was ordered.

New Harbor Chief

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Robert C. Walker, operator of a San Diego public relations firm, was named yesterday by Gov. Ronald Reagan as director of the state Department of Harbors and Watercraft.

Walker, a 42-year-old Republican, will succeed Adm. Ned Sprow who retires Dec. 1 from the $22,575-a-year post.

Multiple Birth?

LAURENCO MARQUES, Mozambique (UPI) — Mrs. Clara Mutangua, 36, who gave birth to quintuplets four years ago, is expecting another multiple birth soon, the Portuguese News Agency ANI said yesterday.

Vote Turnout Low

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's estimated that a lower percentage of eligible voters went to the polls this month than in any presidential election since 1956.

Unofficial tabulations of persons of voting age and total vote by the Associated Press show an estimated 60.8 per cent took part in the election.

Sixty-two per cent voted in 1964, a record 63.8 per cent showed up in 1960, and in 1956—the year of President Eisenhower's landslide triumph over Adlai E. Stevenson — 60.5 per cent voted.

Plot Figure Freed

NEW YORK (AP) — A Yemeni Arab accused of plotting to assassinate President-elect Richard M. Nixon has been released on $25,000 bond.

"I love America — I'm innocent," said Ahmed Rageh Namer, 43, in his lawyer's office yesterday after his release.

Namer's lawyer, Joseph Iovino, said Namer's bond was raised by Namer's friends and neighbors who put up $780 collateral. He said there was insufficient money to cover the $25,000 bail on each of Namer's sons, Hussein, 20, and Abdo, 18, who were indicted with their father Wednesday on charges of criminal conspiracy and illegal possession of weapons.

STUDENT THROWN FROM CAR

A passerby stands over Lawrence H. Gould, 19, of 25 Corona Court, Novato, who was seriously injured when he was thrown from his car on Highway 101 near Terra Linda about 2:45 p.m. yesterday. Gould, a College of Marin student, was reported in poor condition in Marin General Hospital's intensive care unit today after undergoing head surgery last night. California Highway Patrol officers said that Gould started to change lanes, realized a car was in the way and swerved back. The car rolled over, ejecting him. (Independent-Journal photo by Jim Kean) of the crime appeared five days afterward, Dec. 11. That would put the kitchen conference three days after the crime.

TRIAL

Miss Rosser said she became worried over the guns Arceo and LeBas had around the Arceo house and went to Undersheriff Sidney Stinson and told him of their activities.

Police arrested Arceo and Novotny and searched their homes. LeBas, who had returned to Long Beach, was arrested there later and returned to Marin.

A few days after the arrests, Miss Rosser said, Novotny was out on bail and dropped by the Arceo home. She said Novotny told her the police search of his home had missed Marshall's suitcase hidden in a closet and guns hidden behind a dishwasher. Novotny said he had sold the guns after he made bail, she testified.

Stinson and two Fairfax policemen related Arceo's arrest Jan. 12, after Marshall's death. Stinson said he found two pistols earlier in the Arceo house.

Fairfax Patrolman Paul Simpson said Arceo was carrying an overnight bag when arrested as he came home Jan. 12. Inside the bag, he said, were two pistols, ammunition and an airline ticket and receipt indicating a flight to Los Angeles.

San Rafael police told of Novotny's arrest and a search of his home in which an empty holster and bullets for 9 millimeter and .44 Magnum weapons were found. No guns were found, however.

The trial will resume at 9:30 a.m. Monday.

Garbage Contract Is With Bolinas

An Independent-Journal story Thursday incorrectly reported that the Bolinas Community Public Utility District agreed to contract with Henry's Service to handle garbage in Stinson Beach, according to June Lacaze of Henry's Service.

The district contracted for garbage pickup in Bolinas, she said. Henry's Service collects in Stinson Beach, but not under a contract with the Bolinas district, she said.

Bride Is 23

Gloria Jean Fischer of San Rafael, who with Michael Raymond Camgros was issued a marriage license recently, is 23, not 27 as incorrectly reported yesterday in the Independent-Journal.

Housewife Gets Credit In Arrest Of Young Suspect

Sheriff's deputies said Mrs. Carrie Hill of 190 Bayview Drive reported she saw a car enter her driveway about 12:30 p.m. yesterday. A man got out, she said, and rang her doorbell.

Suspicious, Mrs. Hill declined to go to the door, officers said. She said she then saw the doorknob turn, although the door was locked. Mrs. Hill said the man then went around the house, located a ladder in the yard, and climbed to a balcony to enter an unlocked upstairs door.

Mrs. Hill said she started upstairs and met the intruder coming down. She said he fled back to the upstairs door, and she ran down the stairs and outside in time to get the burglar's auto license number as he drove off.

Deputies said they made a registration check of the vehicle, and arrested the owner, Eugene Richard Rudnik, 18, of 103 Greenfield Avenue, San Rafael, at his home. He was booked in Marin County Jail for investigation of burglary. Rudnik is free on $625 bail to appear in Marin Municipal Court at 2 p.m. Monday.

Undergrounding Plans Before Cotati Council

Rohnert Park City Council will consider establishing seven districts for undergrounding of utility lines at 7 p.m. Monday in city hall.

City Mgr. Peter M. Callinan said the districts must be established to assure the city of receiving funds from the state Public Utilities Commission and Pacific Gas and Electric Co. when actual undergrounding work begins.

Districts being considered are Arlen Drive from Commerce Boulevard to Adrian Drive; Southwest Boulevard from Adrian Drive to the railroad crossing; Burton Avenue from Southwest Boulevard to Bernice Avenue; Snyder Lane from East Cotati Avenue to Copeland Creek; East Cotati Avenue from the city limits to Snyder Lane; and Beverly Drive.

The council plans a closed session at 6:55 p.m. to consider the appointment of a new recreation commission chairman to replace Dr. Donald Davis, who resigned Nov. 4.

went back to his car to fetch what he told one of the group would be the remaining money. He signalled the awaiting officers, totaling seven and including a San Anselmo police officer, and the group converged on the house and the arrests were made.

CASH FOUND

Officers said the LSD was found in the bedroom of Hamilton Henry, who was talking on the telephone and allegedly smoking a huge marijuana cigarette. Cash totaling $1,291 was also found in the bedroom and was confiscated, officers added.

Agents said the laboratory, with several chemical containers, was discovered in the basement of the stucco and frame home.

ROCK MUSICIAN

They said Perri is a janitor and musician for the Family Dog, a group which runs the rock and roll shows at the Avalon Ballroom in San Francisco.

An agent said the possibility of filing federal dangerous drug and marijuana charges in connection with the raid will be discussed with the U.S. district attorney's office in San Francisco.

Hoye, who also gave Lama, N.M., as his address, was released on $3,750 bail and is scheduled for appearance in Marin Municipal Court at 2 p.m. Monday. Perri remained in jail in lieu of $5,000 bail, and the other four remained in jail in lieu of $3,750 each.

During booking procedures, officers said, five of the group sat in yoga fashion along a jail corridor wall and made chanting sounds.

fairs of other states deemed to be within a so-called 'socialist commonwealth' runs counter to the basic principles of the United Nations Charter, is dangerous to European security and has inevitably aroused grave anxieties," the communique said. "It gives rise to fears of a further use of force in other cases."

Consequently the allies set out to counter the self-assumed right of the Russians to define a new set of rules for themselves.

At the heart of their message to Moscow was this signal: If this doctrine of intervention in the socialist commonwealth turns out to be an action program—watch out!

Dope Suspect Hitchhikers Chased, Held

A 17-year-old San Francisco youth has been turned over to San Francisco authorities by Marin County Juvenile Hall on suspicion of possession of dangerous drugs, according to police.

The youth was stopped by police while hitchhiking during school hours Wednesday on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in San Anselmo with a 15-year-old youth from Fairfax.

The older boy dropped a plastic bag containing what the police believe to be 34 illegally made pills, according to Sgt. Albert G. Howenstein. The youth then ran through the downtown area of San Anselmo with Sgt. Donald Nelson, who was off-duty and not in uniform, pursuing him.

Nelson caught the youth at Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and Tunstead Avenue, where he was aided in holding the boy by two passersby until Howenstein arrived.

The 15-year-old was taken to juvenile hall on suspicion of being truant and for delaying an officer.

NIXON

Meanwhile, Nixon disclaimed any effort to make himself "co-President" with jurisdiction over foreign policy in advance of his inauguration—but he still maintains that to be valid, any long-term commitments abroad need his approval.

That, in essence, is the position the President-elect took, and made public through a top aide, after President Johnson made clear his determination to remain firmly in command until Jan. 20.

Bryce N. Harlow, an assistant to the President-elect, telephoned Johnson Thursday night, got a call back from the President yesterday. And sources said Harlow had assured Johnson that Nixon was "not attempting to presume upon the constitutional authority of the President."

As for Johnson, a Nixon associate said, "The President tried to make it clear that constitutionally, there is one President of the United States, there are no co-Presidents, with which Mr. Nixon is in perfect agreement."

This statement came after hours of apparent discord between Johnson and his Republican successor over Nixon's immediate role in foreign affairs.

Walter No Longer With Redwood Bank

Dale E. Walter, now president of Lincoln National Bank in San Rafael, is no longer senior vice president of Redwood National Bank as erroneously reported in yesterday's and Thursday's Independent-Journal.

Thursday's article, describing the reorganization of officials at Redwood National during the leave of absence of president Byron W. Leydecker, facing trial on a charge of possessing marijuana, omitted from the list of Redwood directors the name of W. J. Waksvik, now senior vice president and cashier.

DANA BLASINGAME
In Marin County?

Missing Girl Hunt Turns To Marin

A missing 5-year-old girl, Dana Blasingame, may be in Marin in the custody of her mother, Alison Blasingame, the child's father said yesterday.

William O. Blasingame of San Francisco said missing person bulletins have been issued for both his daughter and his wife.

The family lived at 162 Rollingwood Drive, San Rafael, until two months ago, Blasingame said. He said his daughter has waist-length sandy blonde hair and large blue eyes, and was attending kindergarten before she disappeared.

Three Admit Selling Dope To Sleuths

Three San Rafael men pleaded guilty in Marin Superior Court yesterday to charges of selling methamphetamine (speed) to agents of the Marin County Drug Abuse Bureau.

James Dewey Bell, 34, alleged by agents to be the leader of the three, admitted selling a pound of methamphetamine for $600 on Jan. 18. Officers have claimed Bell is one of the largest speed merchants in the Bay Area.

Pleading guilty to a charge that they sold an ounce for $110 Jan. 5 were Robert Drolla and Robert Nelson. Bell reportedly once told agents they worked for him, peddling his methamphetamine.

Deputy Dis. Atty. Ernest C. Zunino, on hearing the guilty pleas, recommended that additional charges of selgling and conspiracy to sell speed lodged against the men be dismissed. Judge Samuel W. Gardiner complied.

The guilty pleas came after Zunino had completed his opening argument in a trial scheduled to last two weeks. It took three days to choose a jury to hear the case.

Zunino said the district attorney's office is not bound by any agreement to recommend a sentence for the three or stand mute in the face of a probation department report.

Selling methamphetamine, a dangerous drug, is punishable by a sentence of one to five years in prison or up to one year in county jail.

Bell, Nelson and Drolla were arrested in February's narcotics roundup in Marin, which netted over 60 suspected pushers of marijuana and dangerous drugs. It climaxed a three-month undercover investigation by drug abuse agents and police.

Bolinas Driver Hurt In Crash

A Bolinas man suffered a cut knee yesterday on Shoreline Highway near Highway 101 when his car was struck from the rear by another auto, the California Highway Patrol said.

Officers said that Max B. Crosley, 32, had stopped in order to make a U-turn back onto Highway 101 when a car driven by Ward J. Kevin, 17, of 25 Matilda Avenue, Mill Valley, hit him.

Crosley's car then smashed into one driven by Gunther H. Brauner, 27, of 18 Heuters Lane, Mill Valley, officers said.

Crosley, treated at Marin General Hospital, was cited for making an unsafe stop in traffic, officers said.

IN MEMORIAM

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of my Dear husband JOHN (JACK) PERRY, who passed away seventeen years ago, tomorrow, November 17th.

There is someone who has missed you sadly,
And finds the time long since you went,
There is someone who thinks of you always,
And tries to be brave and content.
Gone is the face, silent is the voice;
Tis sad, but true, and I wonder why,
As the days, weeks and years go by.
Still sadly missed by your wife

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

George Should Move In And Help His Friends With All Expenses

DEAR HELEN:

Help!

I'm a college student rooming in an apartment building with a friend. Now another guy, George moved in upstairs. He is lonely, so he comes down to our place. He suggested that he eat here and share expenses. Okay. But it hasn't ended there.

He's here 95 per cent of the time when he isn't at classes. He wakes us up by banging on the door. He has very odd hours for sleeping, believe me! He is not a bad kid, but if he's going to live here, why doesn't he move in and share the rent?—HENRY

DEAR HENRY:

That's not a bad idea.

If you can't fight 'em, ask 'em to join you.—H.

DEAR HELEN:

I am a 13-year-old girl and boys like me too much. I'm well developed, and I got started wrong. Now all the boys expect what I have given too freely. I'm getting so I can't stand boys as they are cruel and nasty, but I always think the next one will be different. He never is. I am very frightened that my mother and father will find out about my experiences. They both work long hours and I do about as I please. Girls hate me, and if I give up boys, I won't have anybody.—HATE MYSELF

DEAR H.M.:

If you want to change, you can! All you need is one person on your side. Look for her in your school counselor's office.

And remember:

Help for miserable teens is never as far away as you think. It's there for the asking.—H.

DEAR HELEN:

I'm against marijuana and other illegal drugs. A lot of kids in my town blow pot and take pills, etc. I have been told that if I associate with them I am as bad as they are.

I believe that everyone is entitled to his own values and beliefs, and why should I drop kids I like, just because they try what I don't like?

I'd never "turn on," but I don't want to turn them off.—TROUBLED

DEAR TROUBLED:

"To each his own values" is a worthy thought, but when it involves breaking the law, you must match it with another possibility: "Guilt by association."

If you want more than a very casual friendship with the turned-on crowd, you'd better examine your reason. Perhaps you're not so much loyal as tempted?—H.

Clothing's Trim Varies In Quality

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE,

I am so excited about the beautiful trimmings I see on ready-made dresses and yet I hesitate to buy them at a fabric shop because I am afraid they will not clean well. Does this type of trimming have to be removed before I have my clothes dry cleaned?

MRS. S.H.

DEAR MRS. S. H.:

This is a very difficult question to answer because there are so many inferior types of trimmings available. If you use a trimming of good quality, you would certainly not remove it before dry cleaning. You wouldn't remove the trimming from a ready-made garment before it was cleaned.

A reliable cleaner will check the trimming before he puts it in the cleaning solution to be sure it won't deteriorate. I have learned that if there is any doubt in the minds of the dry cleaners, they will hand clean the dress rather than take a chance.

DEAR EUNICE,

I have just about decided that with your wonderful help and ideas, I simply will never be happy with the kind of clothes I used to buy. They have no originality, and sewing with you is the greatest therapy I have ever found.

You have made me aware of unusual details, and I found one that really intrigued me. There was a very long, unlined stole to wear with a dress or coat in matching fabric. The ends had a type of loop fringe that wasn't cut on the ends and seemed continuous with the stole. How in the world was this accomplished?

MRS. V.M.

DEAR MRS. VM.:

Thanks for your great words; it is fun to be a columnist and get happy letters from readers! The fringe you are asking about isn't really too difficult to achieve and is very effective.

Instead of beginning to fringe the fabric at the very edge, begin about one inch above the cut end of the stole. Fringe out twice the width of the desired fringe. Fold at the center of the area you have fringed and fasten the unfringed end to your stole. Usually, the cut end isn't turned over in a double hem, but simply catch stitched or slip-stitched to the single layer of fabric to keep it from becoming bulky.

This double, uncut fringe is also very attractive when applied as a trim inserted in the edge of collars, cuffs, pocket flaps, yokes or whatever.

TAILOR TRIX WINNER

Mrs. Darrell Van Wyk, Grinnell, Iowa, is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her following sewing suggestion.

"Have you ever tried to fringe a long piece of fabric more than an inch deep? If you have, you know how difficult it is to pull the threads without breaking them. Cut the time down to almost nothing by clipping the fabric to be fringed every few inches the depth of the fringe you desire. This makes short yarns to pull and you'll be finished in a jiffy."

DEAR EUNICE,

When I make a dress or jacket with a pattern that fits otherwise the shoulders are too wide and the sleeves sag. Should I put a dart in the back or can I change the pattern before it has been cut?

MRS. E.R.

DEAR MRS. E. R.:

If you have this difficulty with all patterns, you are probably already aware of the amount you will need to eliminate from the shoulder width. I wouldn't suggest a dart in your garment but rather, altering your pattern before cutting.

Make a fold in the pattern, beginning at the shoulder and tapering gradually to nothing at the bust line. Don't remove all of the ease that is necessary for a comfortable fit. By removing the excess width in this way, you haven't changed the armhole or the sleeves, and it is a very simple alteration.

Create Illusion Of Trim Figure

The best way for a man to look thin is to get thin. But men who can't do that or don't want to can get an assist creating an optical illusion of a trim figure. Through the development of lighter-weight fabrics, lighter clothing construction and especially in newly-constructed models, there isn't a man in the land who cannot look trimmer than he actually is, says the American Institute of Men's and Boys' Wear. Some general tips for the hefty male: two-button, single breasted jackets are flattering; be careful about selecting a model with too much cutaway at the bottom of the jacket.

Zodiac Designs

This fall zodiac designs and bright paisley prints create more fashion interest in the already popular apache scarf for males. Other accessories to strike a man's fancy—enamel cuff links in wrap-around and bar designs; square-faced watches with gold chain bands.

OPERA REVIEW

Three Stellar Performances In 'Turandot'

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

SAN FRANCISCO — Three singers made a tremendous impression last night in the San Francisco Opera revival of Puccini's "Turandot."

In order, they were Romanian tenor Ludovic Spiess in his American debut as Calaf, the unknown prince; Covent Garden star soprano Amy Shuard singing her first Turandot in America, and soprano Jane Marsh, formerly of Mill Valley, singing Liu in her second San Francisco Opera appearance.

Spiess and Miss Shuard were wonderfully well matched in the sheer power of their voices. Neither one showed much freedom of movement — their acting was all in their voices, which were marvelously responsive instruments in expressing emotion.

RINGING TENOR

A young man who has been singing internationally only two years, Spiess has a virile, ringing tenor and imposing presence that should guarantee a brilliant future. At the peak of her career, Miss Shuard had the necessary glittering brilliance called for in the character of the cold, regal Chinese princess who condemns to death by beheading all suitors who fail to guess her three riddles.

Having heard the incomparable Birgit Nilsson in the role several years ago, we did not think anyone could approach her, but Miss Shuard came near it and perhaps showed better the melting of the icy princess by love at the end.

Although it had plenty of power, Jane Marsh's beautifully clear voice also had the warmth necessary for the character of the slave girl Liu, who kills herself rather than reveal the identity of the unknown Prince Calaf, whom she worships. Her major aria, "Tu Che di Gel Sei Cinta," was superb.

SEEMS SMALLER

Since her debut with the San Francisco Opera last year, she has developed a fluid grace and expressiveness of movement that is remarkable for her statuesque stature. This plus the contrast with the very tall Spiess and Ara Berberian in the role of Timur, exiled King of Tartary and father of Calaf, made her seem much smaller.

An interesting achievement of Berberian was his altering of the tonal color of his powerful bass voice to give it the aged sound of the old King Timur.

Of the three philosopher politicians, whose purpose seems to be comic relief, baritone Ingvar Wixell stood out both in acting and singing far above the two tenors, Raymond Manton as Pang and Alan Crofoot as Pong, though both portrayed their roles well.

For some reason, possibly because of sitting on a high throne back stage, Howard Fried sounded rather weak as the Chinese emperor.

SPECTACULAR SETS

Even though we had seen the same sets and most of the costumes in the original San Francisco production, they still seemed spectacular in their stunning use of color.

Giuseppe Patane conducted the orchestra in a way that brought out the strength and excitement in this music that is so much more mature and so much less saccharine than some of Puccini's work. The brasses and percussion were particularly strong, in fact too strong occasionally for the voices.

The chorus was in great form in the massive climaxes, but not so good in the quieter parts, such as in Act I, where unanimity of phrasing was lacking.

DRAMA REVIEW

Novato Again Swept By That Bash Fever

By KARL BARRON

"Bash" time in Novato can roughly be compared to lemming time in the far north. No one knows why the little animals give up everything else and head for the sea, but it happens. And in Novato, normally staid housewives remove their cloths and undulate toward the sea of faces which greets a bash in the Community House.

The Playboy Clubs and their hutch inmates are a natural for a Novato Community Players bash, so last night saw the birth of the "Bunny Bash," written and directed by Scott Wright.

Like its predecessors, this bash is a hodgepodge of popular songs and comedy bits tied together with the barest excuse of a plot and presenting Novato's most shapely ladies as barely as can be managed with a policeman playing a major role in the show.

It's an amusing evening, spotted with some really high moments, and generally well paced, although it dragged a bit at the end last night. Wright keeps his scenery at a minimum, so there are few waits, and he drives his performers at top speed.

Cute local gags help the show, such as the entertainers who have appeared, says emcee Mike Jones, ". . from coast to coast . . . Stinson Beach to China Camp!"

Two entities deserve special mention before we pick the better solo bits in the show: first, the "Bunny Brigade" dancers, eight lovelies who turn out some great precision dancing under Wanda Blackwell's direction; second, the Playboy Chorus.

Out of about 35 songs and production numbers, some stand out more than others, but the overall use of talent is good.

Vivienne Gerry and Don Leaf doing "Baby, It's Cold Outside" is a show-stopper, as is Leaf's "Brush Up Your Shakespeare" with Alex Consagra.

Patti Newman sparks the "Boca Bunnies" showgirl group, and teams up with Marie Consagra and Shirley Lane for a swinging "You've Gotta Have A Gimmick." Lois Wright, a mousey costumer, is transformed by a good fairy, and when she comes out literally roaring "I am GORgeous!" you'll be glad you came.

A smooth and sweet barber shop quartette called The Big Time Operators adds a lot to the show with one number in drag and another straight. Joe and Elaine Jacob do one of those comic ballroom dancing routines that seems so effortless that it's hard to believe the things going wrong are split-second timed.

POLICEMAN STARS

Otto Haiungs (the policeman) plays Hugo Heiferer, owner of the Novato Playboy Club, and does a passable job on "It's A Bore." And there are others — Curley Whisenhunt's "I Would Trust Her," for example. But my big objection to this type of show is that no matter how high the sound system is turned, the audience by act three is juiced enough to think it is a better entertainer than the people knocking themselves out on stage. Result, pandemonium. I don't know what the answer is.

"Bunny Bash" costumes are by Claudia Bliss, who also dances, and they are truly lovely. Musical director Marie Bliss appears singing "Free Again" pleasantly, and Lorayne Crozier does a yoeman's job of accompaniment on piano, with aid from Nick Shaffer at drums, and in one skit a bit of wild trumpet by Art Bliss.

"Bunny Bash" plays tonight and again next Friday and Saturday at 8 :30 p.m. Rumor has it they're almost sold out. Better check first.

CONCERT REVIEW

English Organist Shows Technique, Good Selection

By WILBUR F. RUSSELL

Martin Neary, organist of the parish church of the House of Commons, London, played a recital last night at the First Presbyterian Church, San Anselmo, marked by firm tempo and crisp technique in an admirably chosen program covering four centuries.

It fully revealed the beauty and variety of the organ's tonal resources.

Presented on the organist's first American tour was the premiere of the Kenneth Leighton "Et Resurrexit" (1966). Although in three distinct movements, the form of the piece could be described as continuous variation.

Its purely abstract designs are healthy and fresh, and the composer is not afraid to be tonal. For our taste this composer, born in 1929, has more interesting things to say definitely modern but not forced than many avant-gardists twice his age. The impression one remembers is that of a great rhythmic drive, which even in the slower and quieter sections is not allowed to flag. It was strong and vital all the way.

The opening Toccata and Fugue in CMajor of Bach was an excellent vehicle for Neary's discriminating taste in registration. He brought the toccata off briskly, closing the adagio with subdued registration, which served as a foil for the light organ tone of the fugue. Whether or not one agreed with this presentation, the phrasing was consistent throughout.

MORE BACH

The chorale "When in the Hour of Utmost Need" was followed by Bach Trio Sonata No. 4 in E Minor, treated crisply and with the movements excellently planned and executed as to registration.

Three pieces by John Bull for manuals showed the organist's respect for early music and utilized the contrasting colors of the positive organ well.

Thomas Tomkins' "A Sad Pavane for These Distracted Times" (1649) had a stately subdued theme that might well have been for our own times.

Tomkins encored with the allegro movement of the Bach Concerto in G Major.

Free 'Messiah' Concert Slated

The Oratorio choir of Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary will present excerpts from Handel's "The Messiah" in a free concert at 8 p.m. Dec. 6 in Broadus Chapel on the Strawberry Point campus.

Organist will be Mrs. George Suffern of the music faculty, and piano accompanist will be Mrs. James C. Bradley, wife of seminary religious education professor James C. Bradley.

The group of artists, whose assemblage of pictures is shown, has been several years in forming. It is with inspiration and purpose, that we conceived of this venture in what we prefer to think of as a museum of local contemporary paintings.

If within our group of paintings you find one that causes a pause, and a moment's reflection, then we feel our efforts and our purpose have been fulfilled.

Here's the cleanest, like new 1967 car in the county. Local couple who have always been a Buick owner tried a Chev in '67 and traded on another new Buick.

There isn't a thing wrong with this clean car. It's so new you can't tell it from a new one on our floor. Fully equipped including 327 V-8 engine, GM air conditioning, power steering, custom interior and vinyl landau top.

Unusually low mileage — just broken in.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Young Woman's Cold Hands, Feet Largely Due To Emotion

VAN DELLEN

A 25-year-old woman writes: "Many people share my problem — cold hands and feet. I have tried everything suggested, including two pairs of woolen mittens and socks, galoshes, insulated boots, and plastic liners worn close to the skin. I am not interested in using chemical and battery-operated gadgets. Can you help?"

Our reader has handled her condition well, with one exception—no attempt was made to find out why her hands and feet are cold.

In young adults, coldness usually stems from constriction of the smaller arterioles of the skin. Most sufferers, but not all, are females.

THE SYMPATHETIC nervous system regulates the size of the blood vessels. We have no control over these nerves, which also affect pulse rate, sweat glands, gooseflesh, digestion, and other functions. In individuals with cold limbs, this system is overly active and sensitive.

The sympathetic nervous system connects with the central nervous system and is influenced to a certain degree by stress-producing emotions such as anxiety, anger, and frustration. The skin also may be moist and slightly bluish.

Warmth lessens, but does not abolish, the coldness and skin color. Exposure to severe weather and emotional upheavals intensify sympathetic irritability.

WHEN THE CAUSE is on an emotional basis, it may be difficult to correct unless the person calms down. Tranquilizers may help. Drugs to relax the arterioles are useful, although the slight warming that takes place may not warrant ensuing side reactions.

This woman should learn to live with her problem, because it tends to improve with age and sophistication.

Hardening of the arteries is causative in oldsters with this manifestation.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the I-J.)

WORMS IN APPENDIX

A reader writes: When my appendix was removed, the hospital laboratory found pinworms in it. How did they get there?

REPLY

The appendix is a narrow offshoot of the intestine, which means that food, pits, and even worms can enter the structure. To the pinworms, this dead-end street is an ideal place to set up housekeeping. These intruders may be responsible for some cases of appendicitis.

SMOKING AND DIARRHEA

A reader arites: Does smoking aggravate chronic diarrhea?

REPLY

Tobacco increases the motility of the intestine and may aggravate an existing diarrhea, especially when it is caused by nervousness. Much more important is the question: What is causing the symptom? Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on diarrhea.

REST FOR MOTHER-TO-BE

A reader writes: Is it necessary for a pregnant woman to sleep two hours in the afternoon as well as eight hours at night?

REPLY

No, unless she needs the rest or the physician has prescribed additional sleep for some reason.

CLOSED FALLOPIAN TUBES

Mrs. H. H. writes: Can a woman with closed tubes conceive?

REPLY

No. The fallopian tubes must be open so that the ovum can reach the uterus, where fertilization occurs.

HEART AND COUGHING

D. T. writes: Is there such a thing as cough caused by heart disease?

REPLY

Yes, the dry, hacking type that occurs after exertion and when the victim lies flat in bed.

Today's Health Hint — Allow time for a leisurely lunch.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

The Monstrous Fraud At San Francisco State

San Francisco State College enrolled 18,147 students for the fall term.

Of these, between 800 and 900 were black students.

But because of the demands of this small minority, supported by a minority on the faculty, San Francisco State College is closed. The 18,147 students who enrolled there have all been defrauded.

AS A MATTER of fact, they were being defrauded before the college was closed Wednesday — closed by police at request of the administration to halt spreading destruction that accompanied a student-faculty strike. For days before that, many instructors had been cancelling classes "in support of the strike" by the Black Students Union. Others had called off tests and cut down on classwork because of absenteeism.

The fraud is now complete. The college is closed. President Robert R. Smith has announced it will remain closed "until we can open and operate in a more rational manner."

That may be a long time.

WE FIND IN EVENTS preceding the shutdown no indication that those who brought it about are interested in having the college open and operate in any rational manner. The evidence would indicate they might prefer that it remain closed.

Consider these events:

Last year, nine black students invaded the office of the Daily Gater, the student newspaper, and assaulted its editor, Jim Vaszko, because he had not censored from its columns remarks uncomplimentary to the Black Students Union. One of the nine was George Mason Murray.

However, Murray was employed for this school year as a part-time English instructor.

SCHOOL HAD SCARCELY opened before Murray began appearing on various campuses over the state, making inflammatory speeches which called for revolution and condemned with vile names leaders of the state and nation. These were brought to the attention of the California State Colleges Board of Trustees. The board passed the buck to Glen S. Dumke, chancellor of the state colleges. He requested president Smith of San Francisco State to transfer Murray to non-teaching duties. Smith refused.

Murray, apparently emboldened by this support, appeared at Fresno State the same day the state college board met there last month, and gave a speech to students in which, among other things, he declared: "To hell with the U.S.! To hell with the Bill of Rights! XXXX the Constitution!"

The following week, he told a gathering of San Francisco State students: "Bring your guns to school." (He later claimed he was misquoted, that he had told the students to carry guns "at all times" to protect themselves from "racist administrators.")

That was too much for Dumke. He ordered Murray suspended.

THE BLACK STUDENTS UNION promptly seized on this excuse for demonstrations in behalf of its newest "martyr." And, as always, it received support from some faculty members (doubtless hired, as was Murray according to president Smith, "according to established procedures.")

The Murray demonstrations, however, did not seem to be providing enough enthusiasm to seriously interfere with conduct of the college. So the Black Students Union on Nov. 4 called a press conference at which it announced 10 demands that must be met by the college, else the BSU would close it by a strike.

The demands were directed to president Smith. However, nobody bothered to give them to him until 4 p.m. on the following day — Nov. 5 — when he was told he must agree to them on the spot or the students would strike next day. Naturally, he refused.

For awhile, most classes were held despite the strike. But a growing number of teachers dismissed classes, black students who attended classes were hauled out bodily by BSU members, strikers invaded classrooms to interrupt proceedings. Acts of vandalism and arson began increasing. And 45 faculty members voted to go on strike if George ("To Hell With the Constitution") Murray were not reinstated.

The ridiculousness of the entire situation could not be better illustrated than by a notice which appeared on page 1 of the Daily Gater on Tuesday of this week. It read:

"NOTICE FROM THE DEAN OF STUDENTS OFFICE

"Individuals disrupting classes without the permission of the instructor will be subject to disciplinary action."

Permission of the instructor to disrupt his class apparently was not always lacking.

Thirty members of the San Francisco Police Tactical Squad were stationed on campus for protection. After they had twice been called out on Wednesday, president Smith ordered that the college close.

AND SO, 18,147 San Francisco State College enrollees have been defrauded. Parents of many of them, who scrimped to provide their children an education, have been defrauded. The taxpayers of California have been defrauded.

And worse than all this, another bleeding wound has been opened in the body of Freedom, by people who mouth the word without knowing or caring what it means.

Thank You, We'll Walk

This editorial might be titled "Nature's Revenge." It is written to call attention to the interesting revelation by a Bureau of Census survey made last year that showed people preferring hiking and walking to driving as an outdoor recreation.

It seems as though people are turning against the gas buggy as a means of enjoyment. A generation ago the Sunday drive was an American institution. Today, traffic congestion, the necessity of speed on the freeways, and the growing feeling that we had better enjoy our diminishing wilderness while there is still time, detract from the pleasure of driving.

Marin offers excellent opportunities for strolling and hiking. Few counties in the U.S. offer such a variety of beautiful scenery, flora and fauna.

Bouquets And No Brickbats

BOUQUET to the Tiburon City Council for finally moving to hire a city planning director — and at an $11,000 annual salary, which should assure some qualified applicants.

BOUQUET to Judge Harold Haley for refusing to follow a probation department recommendation that a marijuana seller be given only three days in jail. Such sentences for such crimes merely add to disrespect for law.

BOUQUET to Sing-Out Marin for its highly successful first public concert.

BOUQUETS to all the hardy souls who made the fourth annual Kennedy Memorial Hike on Mount Tamalapis today.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Rubin Appearance Essence Of Education

Thanks to Margaret J. Hammer for her comments ("What Our Readers Say," Nov. 13) on the "Controversy '68" appearance of Jerry Rubin at the College of Marin. I am glad that members of the community are taking the time to come to the college and listen to speakers who represent points of view which may be different from their own. This is the essence of the "Controversy" series and the essence of education itself.

The educational benefit derived from the meeting was that the students of the college (and members of the community) got the chance to hear Mr. Rubin express his own ideas, in his own words, without distortion or sifting or interpretation by the news media or anyone else. Mr. Rubin got the chance to either swell his ranks or expose his absurdity. Whichever he did, I leave up to the discretion of each individual who heard him speak, but the important thing is that each individual was able to hear it "from the horse's mouth." This is the responsibility of the Controversy Series and of education, and that reponsibility is being fulfilled.

Oh, yes, one more point; Jerry Rubin was paid $50, and not $500, as Miss (Mrs.?) Hammer stated in her letter.

Sausalito Teens Plead For Center

For years the youth of Sausalito have been striving for a place to call our own. So many obstacles seem to be in the paths of our efforts.

We, the members of the Sausalito Youth Center, are doing our utmost to be recognized by the city. We have been operating our own small youth center by ourselves. We need a permanent youth center here in Sausalito, but as yet have not found a way to obtain one.

Around 80 of we teen-agers have been working very hard with our own hands to keep this organization together. We need the help of our city government in order to reach our goal.

We are aware that the city is understanding of our goal and problems, but all we hear is "in the future," "we are doing our best," etc., etc . . .

Other cities in Marin County (i.e., San Rafael, Marin City, Mill Valley, Corte Madera, and Novato) have successful youth centers. Why can't Sausalito?

We are asking the people of Sausalito to help us by showing that they're with us . . .

We are capable of doing the work. We need their guidance.

Is it right that we, the teenagers of Sausalito, have to beg and prove ourselves so we can have what we should be offered? Is it right for the teenagers of Sausalito to have nothing to do? We need a youth center. Will our plea be heard?

LINES ON LIVING

By Rabbi HAIM KEMELMAN

There are no quick roads to inner redemption and no short cuts to self-fulfillment. The shackles of a lifetime of bondage are easier to shake off than to take on the disciplines of free men. This age of instantism has shown us this bitter truth. But do we recognize it? We all clamor for something. We all await the wonder of a deliverance that will give promise to our toil and fulfillment to our soul. But somehow, the gifts of heaven seem to elude us, redemption is away from us, rancor plagues us.

Have we made of our goods gods, and the jet that transports us the symbol of oue deliverance? Have we mistaken the ticket for a destination with a certificate for a destiny?

PACKAGED delivery has become the trademark of our rapid existence: a call, an order and a delivery. All you need is money; the rest is instant. The alienated, the disadvantaged, the rich, the poor, the young and old all demand delivery, impatiently, now: instant fulfillment.

It was bound to happen. It was inevitable. Because for too long we have confused speed with advancement, jet transportation with arrival, going places with attaining a goal, success with bliss. We have accelerated in traveling distances and conquered space, but not time. We are impatient with time. Time kills us. Time bedevils us. We are constantly rushing, in business and in leisure, on the job and on vacation, because we are afraid to confront the raw and living element of time. Some are so bored with time that they have a compulsion to "expand" it in liquid chemistry by blowing their minds.

IT WAS BOUND to happen, because when faith is in shortage, patience is a rarity. When power is pressure, faith goes up in bubbles, trust is dissipated and waiting is wanting. And so we are busy and neurotic, even while flying amidst pillars of lights and clouds. We conquer space, but do we conquer time and make it a meaningful element bu investing it with the anticipation and expectation of every minute and every hour as a welcome gift of life? Or do we press forward in irrascible mood, in ruthless pace, in the madness of a civilized rat race?

What we need today, and in great measure, is patience power: the power of plodding patiently, toiling honestly and ference between saint and sinwaiting faithfully. For the difference between saint and sinner, genius and the ordinary, we are told, is not so much in prowess of deed but in perseverence of heart. The first wait patiently and keep trying. The latter cannot endure in their rashness. And many are those who have failed not because they lacked talent or strength, but because they faltered in the disciplines of bearing and forbearing, persisting and persevering.

A CHINESE proverb has it that patience is power and that with time and patience the mulberry leaf becomes silk.

It is the strength that permits the interval between the thought of faith and the act of faith to germinate in a mood of sublime expectation; it is the power that distils impulse into wisdom and instinct into humanity; it is the "rest" signal that transforms the musical sounds in our life into a prearranged pattern of rhythmic beauty and symphonic depth; it is the wonder which gives time a chance, time that "was invented by Almighty God in order to give ideas a chance."

MARQUIS CHILDS

In The Caverns Of Wall Street Bets On Nixon Are Hedged

By MARQUIS CHILDS

NEW YORK — The great Nixon guessing game is being played in Wall Street as well as in Washington. The hints coming from those in the Nixon inner circle are no more than meager hints, since the President-elect is carrying on as he did in the campaign — cool, calm and collected.

No one really knows what his policies will be either at home or abroad. Nor can anyone be sure who will execute those policies. The best guess in the Street is that Richard M. Nixon concentrated so intensely on his campaign that his plans are still to be formulated. His prescriptions for the nation's ills in the campaign speeches were broad generalities. They conveyed no more than a vague sense of direction.

But the Street, which figuratively at least includes the great banking houses and their investment affiliates, is pressing harder for clues than even Washington and the politicians. For Wall Street must find a place to invest the billions of profit that American business rolls up from month to month and year to year. Because the Street is far more sophisticated than it was a generation ago, the simple formula of a fine Republican boom market celebrating a new Republican President (never mind how close it was) is as outdated as the Stanley Steamer.

THE GUESSING turns on computerized projections of earnings and performance, on graphs and charts, on an analysis of tax trends and the men in Congress who will shape tax policy.

Profit margins will be off in the first quartet of 1969. That is the projection of the computers. Therefore, the guess is for a mini-recession by, say, June of Nixon's first year in office. In the bearish view it could be a maxi-recession lasting until Nixon's money men pull the levers of the New Economics and pump some blood into the lagging stream.

Nixon promised tax reduction. He promised, too, to apply the brakes and check inflation. Does this mean holding the annual rate of price increase to three per cent as against the current rate of four per cent or more? And wouldn't that mean unemployment going from 3.7 per cent to 5 per cent or more? The increased load would be, by the rule-of-thumb of last-hired first-fired, in considerable part among Negroes where the rate has held at 10 per cent or higher. New and serious trouble in the core cities?

The 10 per cent federal income tax surcharge automatically expires on June 30 unless Congress acts to retain it. One hint out of the Nixon inner circle is that the new President will move to cut it to 5 or 6 per cent.

AND WILL President Nixon keep William McChesney Martin Jr. as chairman of the board of governors of the Federal Reserve System?

Another fiscal responsibility man, Martin has let it be known he wants to retire. But would Nixon keep him on as a symbol valued by a sizable share of the financial community to show Nixon's intent of maintaining the strength of the dollar and checking inflation?

One thing is certain beyond any doubt — the flood of money pouring into the stock market from pension funds and other institutional sources is creating new, upward pressures. Will economic performance in 1969 justify the rise in the market likely to grow out of these pressures? Here among those clutching at straws in the new winds is a sharp difference. One view is that the Dow-Jones average will break the 1,000 mark (currently 958) and go to 1,020 before the year's end. A doubter looking at the likelihood of lower profit margins says firmly no. probably under the present level.

ALL THIS is nonpolitical, as clinical as a conference of doctors considering a difficult diagnosis. These are men who must back their guesses with bets on how the market will go. They cannot wait until Inauguration Day and after.

To the outsider it has a curious air of unreality. The noon-hour crowds pushing through the sunless caverns, the hushed, almost-sacramen-banking houses in the top echelon, the guessing game over a generous lunch — this is divorced from the behemoth of a city that seems at darker moments to be reeling toward sure disaster.

ART BUCHWALD

Escalate Bombing Of South To Get Thieu To Talk Peace?

WASHINGTON — After five years of doing practically everything, the United States finally got Hanoi to come to the conference table. But the only trouble is that, although Hanoi has agreed to come to the conference table, Saigon is refusing to come. This leaves the United States in one bad spot, because it's always harder to deal with your friends than it is with your enemies.

The problem that everyone is working on now is, how do you get President Thieu to send someone to Paris?

MY FRIEND at the State Department has been working on this tricky problem for three weeks.

"There's a division of opinion on how to deal with South Vietnam," he said. "The Hawks want to bomb Saigon."

"What on earth for?" I asked.

"To save face for the South Vietnamese. If we bomb Saigon, then they can say they won't go to Paris until we stop the bombing. That's how we got the North Vietnamese to agree to talk, so there is no reason why it wouldn't work for the south."

"It makes sense. What's wrong with it?"

"THE DOVES say if you bomb Saigon it will just strengthen the South Vietnamese determination to keep fighting the war. They maintain we've been bombing parts of South Vietnam for years now and it hasn't intimidated President Thieu or Vice President Ky. It's just made Saigon's position tougher."

"What does the Air Force say about that?"

"They say we've been bombing the wrong targets in South Vietnam. If they could bomb the port at Camranh Bay and the city of Hue, then they're sure Thieu would see the light. But since they've only been permitted to bomb selected targets below the DMZ and on the Ho Chi Minh Trail, there is no reason for Theiu and Ky to talk peace."

"THEN THE AMERICAN military are insisting on all-out victory in South Vietnam?" I asked.

"They say we shouldn't have gone into South Vietnam unless we wanted to win."

"Is there any other way of getting the South Vietnamese to come to the conference table?"

"We were considering closing up all the U.S. Army PXs in South Vietnam, but that is a very drastic step and could turn world opinion against us. Without the black market, South Vietnam would not be able to survive."

"It's probably against the Geneva Convention," I said. "Are there any alternative suggestions?"

"We could threaten to de-escalate the war, but that has its drawbacks. If we de-escalate the war, then we'd be dealing with Hanoi from a position of weakness."

"I guess our mistake was assuring South Vietnam they could win the war. Now they believe it."

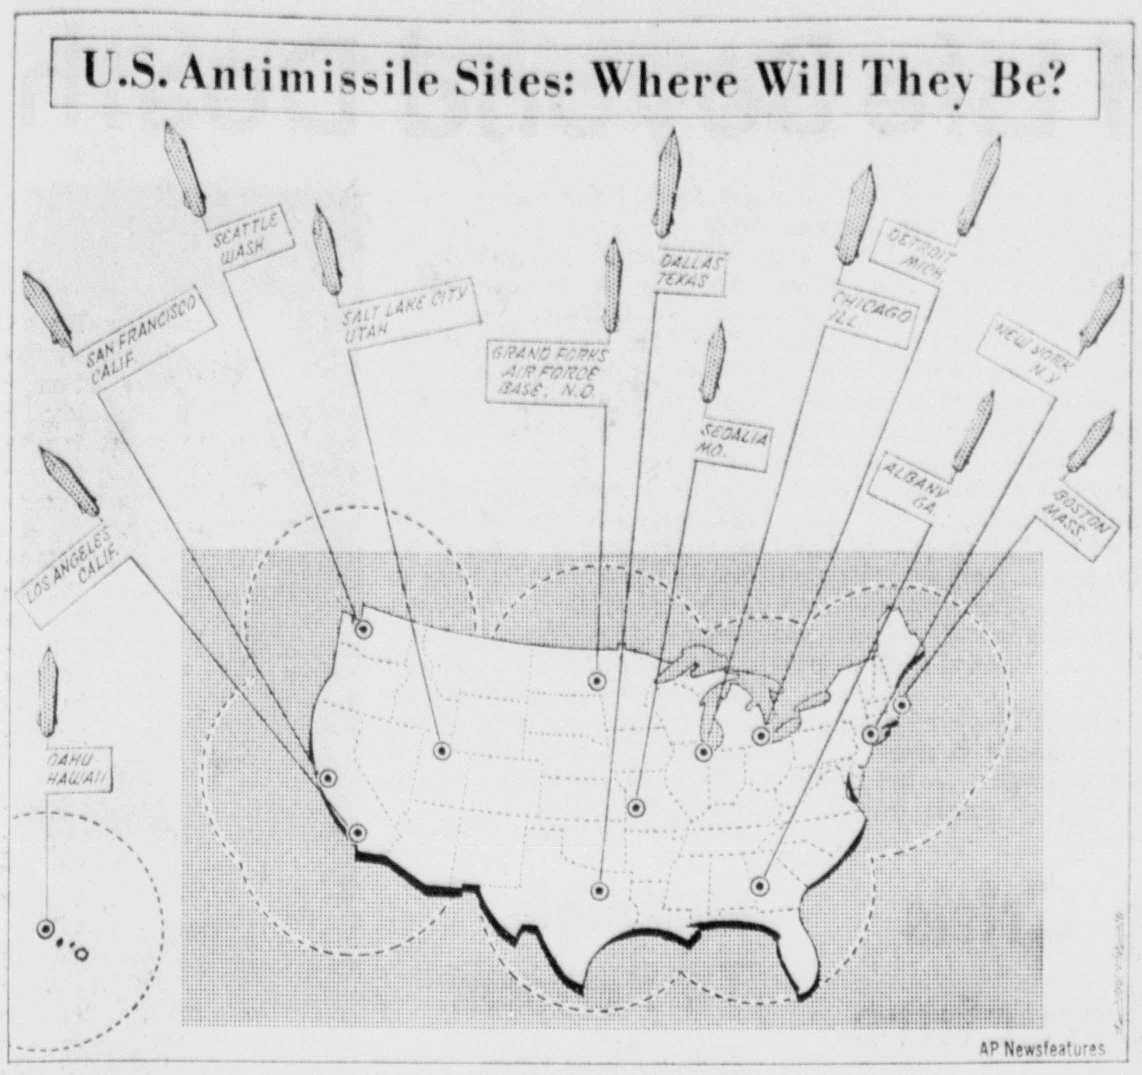
"Couldn't you ask Ho Chi Minh to intervene and use his good offices on our behalf?"

"We have, but he says it's not his problem. We got ourselves into the mess; he claims we have to get out of it."

"A lot of people are wondering why we agreed to the bombing halt when we weren't sure Saigon would come to the peace table."

"It was a calculated risk. We assumed that once Hanoi agreed to peace talks, the Thieu government would agree also. Now it looks as if Hanoi knew Saigon wouldn't, and that's why they did. It shows you what dirty negotiators the North Vietnamese really are."

Sentinel Chief Outlines Plans



U.S. Antimissile Sites: Where Will They Be?

AP Newsfeatures

By BOB HORTON
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U. S. general in charge of missile defense says some Americans don't particularly appreciate having antimissiles near their cities but the Army is determined to win them over peacefully.

Lt. Gen. Alfred D. Starbird says it isn't that people are repulsed by super weapons. Mostly they just don't want to give up choice chunks of land to the government.

"Generally, we haven't found that we are opposed on the basis of 'we don't want a weapons system,' " Starbird said. "There are some that feel this way, but they are in the minority. What we have found is that they wonder why it has to be next to them."

The major resistance, Starbird said, "is quite similar, I think, to the opposition that occurs whenever one takes a sizable piece of land for a purpose foreign to land-use in that particular area."

Or to put it more simply: "Usually there are elements of the city, or of the community who have plans for that acreage."

The tall, graying general, manager of the Sentinel system since 1967, also made these points:

Sentinel is designed against the Communist Chinese nuclear threat of the 1970s and not against the Soviet Union. But the United States may decide later to defend its offensive missile bases against Soviet attack.

The cost of Sentinel is going up. When then Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara approved it in 1967 the price was estimated at $5 billion. Cost refinements and price increases have raised that to $5.5 billion.

Thirteen areas are being studied by the Army for antimissile sites. Boston is a definite choice and will have a radar installation serving as the "eyes of the entire Eastern seaborad" in spotting enemy missiles approaching over the northern horizon.

Eventually the nation will have 15 to 20 Sentinel complexes, each with major missile and radar installations requiring about one-half square mile areas, the general said. Angel Island and Wolfback Ridge above Sausalito, along with San Pablo Ridge in the East Bay are being considered.

In addition to Boston, Detroit will have an antimissile battery, and Army engineers and public relations experts are zeroing in on 11 other locales being eyed for Sentinel equipment.

These include areas near Albany, Ga.; Chicago; Dallas; Grand Forks Air Force Base, N. D.; New York City; Oahu, Hawaii; Salt Lake City, Utah; Seattle, Wash.; San Francisco Bay Area; Los Angeles; and Sedalia, Mo.

In a question-and-answer session with the Associated Press, Starbird had this to say:

Q. General, when will this system initially be operational?

A. We've said in the early 1970s. We haven't, for security reasons, pinned it down any further.

Q. And the explanation is that we're timing it toward the first significant operational capability on the part of the Chinese?

A. It's timed against that threat. I don't want to go into it any further.

Q. Obviously, at some point in time, our cities with antimissile sites would be logical targets for enemy ICBMs. How do they react when your people go in to find ABM sites?

A. This has not been a major factor. It has been raised, but whenever it was raised it became evident to the individuals themselves who raised it that their area was already a target, and that a degree of defense is being added at this particular location which did not otherwise exist.

Q. What is the major opposition to your building antimissile sites?

A. The major opposition is quite similar, I think, to the opposition that occurs whenever one takes a sizable piece of land for a purpose foreign to land-use in a particular area.

What it amounts to is that those sites . . . involve an installation fairly close to a city. If there are already residents there, usually they hope the area would be used for parks or some conservation purpose, or at least, that it would be converted to housing of the same standard as their own. This concern is quite understandable — their worry. The outcome is usually a feeling of 'why can't you go somewhere else.'

However, with Boston as an example, by telling all we could in an unclassified manner as to why a particular location is selected we were finally accepted. Now we do our best to avoid anything that would have an unfavorable impact on any community. Our sites are not to be a group of smokestacks and antenna or industrial looking buildings. They have one large radar building and a small administrative housing area which we intend to be a neat and attractive area. We have certain additional underground facilities with security fences but they are much less industrial looking then many of the military installations that have been constructed next to communities and which have not hurt property values.

Q. Where are your training facilities?

A. Training facilities in embryo form exist now at Fort Bliss, Tex. They will be expanded.

Q. Where do we stand today with Sentinel deployment and production?

A. We have announced a total of 13 site areas. We normally go through with site selection in three phases of activity. And I'll explain this so you know the terms.

Before we publicly announce the location, we go through extensive map studies and system analysis type studies. We try to establish the general locality where a site would be most effective and, without entering any private property, through map studies and riding around the roads, establish that there are feasible Sentinel site locations there.

Then we go through a period of about three months, going on the property, getting necessary right of access, conducting a visual reconnaissance and surface investigation just to satisfy ourselves as well as we can before spending extensive survey and boring money that this probably is a satisfactory site. We usually refer to that effort as 'certifying candidate sites'.

From that we usually will pick one, two or more specific spots for further, more extensive engineering investigation. We call that the 'validation process.' It also takes three to four months. We put the drill rigs in and run boring holes. We may bring in a piece of gear to see what radio frequency activity is in the area.

Now with respect to Boston, all that has been done.

With respect to the other sites, we're still in the valid phase of certifying candidate sites.

REMEMBER TORREY CANYON?

Oil Shipowners Take Steps To Pay For Cleanup Chore

NEW YORK (BW) — Seven major oil companies have announced a proposed voluntary plan under which national governments would be compensated for the cost of containing or cleaning up oil spills that may occur off their coastlines.

The plan, to be incorporated in an agreement known as the Tanker Owners Voluntary Agreement Concerning Liability for Oil Pollution (TOVALOP), would also provide incentive for tanker owners to act promptly in such cases.

In general, it would permit tanker owners and national governments to deal more effectively with both minor spills and major disasters of the Torrey Canyon kind, which coated the beaches of England.

The agreement has been sponsored by British Petroleum Co., Ltd., Gulf Oil Corp., Mobil Oil Corp., Shell International Marine, Ltd., Standard Oil Co. of California, Marine Affiliates of Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey;, and Texaco, Inc.

The plan would be for participation by any other tanker owner, either private company or government, and would become effective when it is joined by companies representing 50 per cent of the world's privately owned tanker tonnage. The present seven sponsors account for approximately 30 per cent.

The companies said the agreement would encourage tanker owners to take immediate remedial action in the event of an oil split, and assure their financial ability to do so.

It would also provide a national government with machinery to make valid claims even when it has no legal obligation under international or local law to remove discharged oil or any legal right to recover removal expenses.

The agreement would also avoid jurisdictional and collection problems existing in present maritime law and practice.

Two organizations would be set up under the plan. One, the International Tanker Owners Pollution Federation, Ltd., in London, would administer the entire plan. Each company would be a member of the federation, which would have a full-time managing director and staff.

The other, the International Tanker Indemnity Association, Ltd., in Bermuda, would insure tanker owners for their liability under the plan.

The agreement would provide that a tanker owner would be responsible for cleaning up any discharge of oil that threatens to pollute or actually does pollute coastlines as a result of a marine incident attributable to the fault of the shipowner.

If the tanker owner is unable to clean up such a spill himself, provision is made for reimbursing the national government for its reasonable costs in the clean-up operation.

In either case, whether the costs are incurred by the tanker owner or a national government, the reimbursement would be limited to a maximum of $100 per gross registered ton of the vessel or $10 million, whichever is less.

Reimbursement would be made by the association to the tanker owner in either event.

In case of dispute as to whether a spill was caused by negligence, the onus would be on the tanker owner to prove he was not negligent rather than on the national government to prove that he was.

The plan, once operative, will remain in force for a minimum of five years, to be followed by successive two-year periods.

However, it will lapse after two years if by that time tanker owners representing 80 per cent of the world's tonnage have not joined.

THE SACRAMENTO WEEK

Political Guessing Games Much In Spotlight: What Of Finch?

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Political appointments continued to be the biggest guessing game in the state capitol with Lt. Gov. Robert Finch as the prime suspect for appointment to a national post. Finch who handled President-elect Richard M. Nixon's California campaign, seemed to be in a position which would give him his choice of the top posts in the Nixon administration.

Finch has indicated he is not interested in being attorney general or an aide to Nixon. He says he would be interested in being a U. S. senator from California, and those in the know claim he is also interested in the governorship.

If Finch should be named to another post, who would get the lieutenant governorship becomes an interesting subject of discussion. Some have pointed the finger at Senate President Pro Tempore Hugh Burns, a Democrat, while others have eyed Speaker-elect Robert Monagan of the lower house.

Either of these choices, however, might tend to upset the balance of power in either house. The 20-20 count in the Senate has worked well for Gov. Ronald Reagan because Burns has voted his conscience and not on a partisan basis. The 41-39 Republican majority in the assembly could be upset if Monagan left and the Democrats were successful in replacing him with one of their own men.

Conservative Reagan might even look to his defeated senatorial candidate, Dr. Max Rafferty, as a replacement for Finch. Thus Rafferty's political value would not suffer as much as being a defeated senatorial candidate and continued conservative backing is guaranteed.

Cash grants for assistance from the state department of social welfare increased by $1 million from August to September bringing to statewide total to more than $89 million, more than $9 million higher than for the same month a year ago. Also increasing was the number of cases, which reached 1,301,024 for September. The number of persons receiving medical assistance only or general home relief declined.

Total civilian population was set at 19,785,000, up from the 19,304,000 a year ago.

Allocations by the state allocation board totaled $5,512,627 for state school building aid. They were approved for the planning of schools, the purchase of sites, or the construction of full school plants throughout the state.

Appointments by Gov. Ronald Reagan this week included the naming of George R. Johnson, Long Beach attorney, to the state coordinating council for higher education. He also reappointed Lorenzo N. Hoopes of Oakland and William C. Bark of Stanford to posts on the same council.

A new law which became effective Wednesday requires all buildings which are built with city, county or state funds to have architectural barriers eliminated and to be readily accessible to and usable by disabled persons. The state announced its two new 17-story office buildings in downtown Sacramento, expected to be opened in February, 1969, will be among the first to be constructed with the needs of the disabled in mind.

Special ramps and automatic doors and other features will permit easy access for persons in wheelchairs, on crutches or suffering from other physical handicaps.

After 118 years, the Office of the Adjutant General of the been replaced by the new Office of the Commanding General, State Military Forces. Originated in 1850, the office has now been changed and Maj. Gen. Glenn C. Ames, who was appointed adjutant general by Governor Reagan in 1967, will became the first man to hold office under the new title. The military department consists of the office of the commanding general of the state military forces, the national guard, the California Cadet Corps, the state military reserve and the naval militia.

Speaker of the 1969 state assembly apparently will be Assemblyman Robert Monagan, minority floor leader during the 1968 session, who is unchallenged for that post now that the Republicans have a bare 41-39 majority in the lower house.

A battle over the speaker pro tempore post seems to be developing between Assemblyman Robert Badham, R-Orange, and Charles J. Conrad, R-Los Angeles. Badham says he has the votes to get the post while Conrad cites his previous experience as speaker pro tem in 1957-58 during the previous Republican administration. Badham is the leader of the conservative faction in the lower house.

Behind The News

This Week In The World

By U. P. International

In a sweltering courtroom in the Bible Belt town of Dayton, Tenn., 43 years ago, two of the foremost lawyers of the day clashed in a legal battle over a state law that forbid the teaching of Darwin's theory of evolution in public schools.

The climax of the "Monkey Trial" came when Clarence Darrow in the defense of John Scopes, a 25-year-old biology teacher who had deliberately broken the law to test its constitutionality, put prosecuting lawyer William Jennings Bryan on the stand.

In a hammering cross examination, Darrow challenged the fundamentalist Biblical beliefs of Bryan, who said everything in the Bible meant just what it said. Bryan's verbal attack was so blistering that some contended it was the cause of Bryan's death. He died within the week.

Although Scopes was convicted and fined $100, the case was never decided on the legal merits of the anti-evolution law. The state supreme court overturned Scopes' conviction on technical grounds.

The U.S. Supreme Court this week ruled on the merits of the law challenged by Scopes. The court decided unanimously the state laws prohibiting the teaching of evolution in public schools are unconstitutional.

The decision was the result of a second "monkey trial," this one held in Arkansas, one of the two states that still have anti-evolution laws. The other is Mississippi. The Tennessee legislature repealed the state's anti-evolution law last year.

Of the Arkansas statute that forbade the teaching that "mankind ascended or descended from a lower order of animals," Justice Abe Fortas said: "Plainly the law is contrary to the mandate of the 1st and in violation of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution."

The 1st Amendment guarantees freedom of religion and the 14th makes it binding on the states.

Around The World; Around The Clock:

WASHINGTON—In a meeting between the two and in contacts between their representatives, President-elect Richard M. Nixon and President Johnson were working in closer concert in the field of foreign affairs than would have been believed possible during the heat of the presidential campaign.

PARIS—The United States said North Vietnam was endangering the agreed upon expanded peace talks when it allowed its troops to violate Vietnam's Demilitarized Zone (DMZ). North Vietnam replied the charge was made "to hide American policy of aggression" and accused the United States of breaking a pledge that North Vietnam and the Viet Cong would have separate delegations at the talks.

WASHINGTON—The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) announced that three astronauts in an Apollo flight scheduled for Dec. 21 would orbit the moon 10 times at an altitude of 70 miles if all signals are "go" at an early stage of the flight.

VICKSBURG, Miss.—In the first ruling of its kind, a federal court jury decided that the White Knights of the Ku Klux Klan and three Natchez white men should pay $1,021,500 to the relatives of Ben Chester White, a 67-year-old Negro slain in 1966. The assessment of punitive damages in such cases would "serve as a deterrent" to similar acts, the judge said.

TRANSPLANT ORGANS NEEDED

Most Donors' Survivors Feel Proud Of Kin's Role

By UP INTERNATIONAL

Dorothy Haupt, whose husband Clive's heart beats in the body of Dr. Philip Blaiberg, sorrows, but still feels that Clive is with her even today.

"It's a wonderful feeling," Mrs. Haupt said from her South African home. "I suppose this is one of the compensations of being the wife of a heart donor —the feeling someone who was very dear to me is still taking part in life."

The majority of relatives of heart donors have indicated they would, if they had their way, make sure there was never a shortage of donors for future transplant patients, a United Press International survey shows.

But there is a shortage.

St. Luke's Hospital in Houston has more than 25 potential recipients, Stanford University medical center at Palo Alto, Calif., lists a dozen, and other transplant hospitals around the world say they also have recipients waiting.

BELIEF UNCHANGED

Mrs. Haupt said months of thinking she has done since her husband died of a stroke Jan. 1, when he was only 24 years old, has not changed her belief that heart transplants should continue.

"It's wonderful to know that lives which would otherwise have been lost can now be saved through the magnificent pioneering work of professor (Christiaan) Barnard. I am very proud to know that through my late husband, I am associated with this great work," Mrs. Haupt said.

Blaiberg, 58, a retired dentist who received Haupt's heart Jan. 2 at Groote Schuur Hospital in Capetown, is the world's longest living heart transplant recipient.

Eddie Darvall, 65, also of South Africa, father of the world's first heart donor, Denise Darvall, 25, said he is "very proud" his daughter's heart was used in the Dec. 3, 1967, transplant to Louis Washkansky.

FATHER PROUD

"Knowing her heart was used to further medical science, I have the satisfaction at least of knowing she did not die for nothing," said Darvall. "Even though the recipient, Mr. Washkansky, died, I am proud to know a member of my family contributed to a major breakthrough in transplant surgery."

Gabriel Veliz, father of the 20-year-old butcher's apprentice who donated his heart June 28 to Maria Elena Penaloza, said, "If Christ died on the cross giving his heart to save mankind why deny the heart of my son if it can save someone?"

Veliz, who owns a tire vulcanizing shop in Valparaiso, Chile, said he, his wife and his surviving nine children would all give their hearts to save someone.

Carmen Cuello, mother of the 35-year-old man who donated his heart in Argentina's second unsuccessful transplant attempt, said both she and her grandchildren should be proud their father had helped prolong the life of another.

Mrs. Cuello said that "without a doubt" she would give her own heart for a transplant.

There has been some objection to the donation of hearts, but most of this has come when the heart was taken before permission could be obtained from relatives.

Pedro Contreras, 43, of Valparaiso, Chile, whose son Pedro Jr.'s heart was given to Nelson Orellano Sanchez, Oct. 1, accepted doctors' explanation that his son's clinical death had been confirmed and that the 17-year-old boy's heart had saved Orellana, who was dying of a distended heart.

A suit was threatened in Capetown after the heart of an unidentified woman was transplanted into Petrus Smith without permission being obtained from the woman's relatives.

RELATIVES UNAVAILABLE

Evidence points strongly to the donor being Evelyn Jacobs, a South African servant who died Sept. 7 of brain hemorrhage at Groote Schuur Hospital. The hospital confirmed the heart was removed from the woman following special health department permission when the donor's relatives could not be found in time to give consent.

While controversy over the identity of the donor grew, Miss Jacobs' cousin Benjamin Tsindi told reporters he was taken to the Groote Schuur mortuary and shown the face of a dead woman he identified as Miss Jacobs. He said he was not shown the rest of the body, which was wrapped in a sheet.

Tsindi said he and members of the family were dissatisfied about the removal of Miss Jacobs' heart and threatened to demand its return.

TICKLISH QUESTION — Dr. Christiaan Barnard, pioneer heart transplant surgeon, discusses with Columbia Broadcasting newsman Walter Cronkite (left) the problem of securing donor organs for the life-saving operations which are being performed in South Africa, Palo Alto, Houston, Tex., and elsewhere in the world. Survivors of some heart donors are proud, others disturbed over the operations.

Bishop Pike Becomes Supporter Of Life Beyond Death

NEW YORK (AP) — Episcopal Bishop James A. Pike, often criticized for discounting some aspects of Christian doctrine, has become a firm and outspoken advocate of its primary belief—life beyond death.

"It's indifated by the empirical data," he remarked in an interview. "It's the most plausible conclusion."

For more than two years, the bishop has been probing psychic phenomena, along with numerous sessions in which he reports apparent communication with various deceased persons, including his son, James Jr., who killed himself Feb. 4, 1966, at the age of 20.

After examining critically other possible alternatives, he says the most reasonable explanation is "the affirmation of life after death."

Now a staff member of the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions, of Santa Barbara, Bishop Pike details his case in a new book, published by Doubleday, called "The Other Side."

Asked what that other realm is like on the basis of what the bishop said was apparent messages from it, he replied, "It seems hard to describe in our terms, just as it's hard for us to tell what vichyssoise tastes like. You say it's salty. But what's salt?

"It's a whole different plane of existence. It seems to be a kind of a growth from 'strength to strength,' much as the prayerbook puts it. But it's not all heaven or hell, but a growing, or else a shriveling."

In his clinically analytical account, the bishop, a one-time attorney and Navy Intelligence officer, subjects his experiences to rigorous questioning, seeking natural explanations when possible, but often finding none.

The result, he says, "enables me to affirm life after death as the natural thing to expect of the human psyche, which already seems to be in eternal life."

His investigations were triggered by a series of strange occurrences—objects moving, clocks stopping at the time his son died—which took place in an apartment in Cambridge, England, shortly after his son's death in New York.

Two assistants witnessed the phenomena. Baffled, finally assuming his son was trying to communicate with him, the bishop consulted a British clergyman, who suggested he see a London spiritual medium, Emma Twigg.

Along with that first meeting with her, on March 2, 1966, the bishop describes a dozen sessions with various mediums, both in this country and in England, continuing up to June of this year.

In most cases, he had other witnesses with him, present stenographic notes or excerpts from tape recordings of many sessions.

The bishop reports apparent messages from several persons who have died besides his son, including the late great theologian, Paul Tillich, a long-time friend and mentor of Bishop Pike.

At first, the bishop's son seems in a disturbed state, and purportedly says that "nothing I've seen over here makes me any more inclined to believe in God."

Later, in June, 1968, the son supposedly reports that his companions "talk about" Jesus. "Oh, but dad, they don't talk about him as a savior. As an example, you see? . . . I don't understand it yet. I may, sometime, I may . . . it's exciting, exciting . . . we are not the dead ones, you are the dead ones."

In the succeeding messages, the son seems gradually to progress from a rather uncertain condition to increasing awareness and activity.

At first, he reports, "I failed the test . . . I am not in purgatory, but something like hell, here. Yet nobody blames me here . . . I'm tied to my regrets . . .

"I wish I'd stayed to work out my problems in more familiar surroundings . . . but I have masses of people around me and hands lifting me up, as it were."

Eventually, he reports he is "beginning to feel somewhat more and home—more at peace." His need for communication with this dimension seems to have lessened, suggesting the son has "moved on," the bishop says.

In the latest session, in June, 1968, the youth purportedly says he is regaining a "sense of belonging again. They lead you so gently, so kindly . . . You see, we have to be selfless. This creates freedom . . . Yes, and also by not possessing, one possesses . . . You see, so many things seem to be in a paradoxical way. I am learning . . . I'm trying very hard."

Special Course Set For Adult Members

On an experimental basis, an "adult option" is offered each week between the 9:15 and 11 a.m. Sunday services at First Methodist Church in San Rafael.

These 10-10:30 a.m. programs are supplements to the continuing adult study and discussion groups, which are followed weekly by the regular 10:30 a.m. coffee hours.

Tomorrow the film, "Marijuana" will be presented. The discussion on drug abuse will be led by Harold Rodell and Mrs. G. Albert Howenstein program chairmen.

On Thanksgiving Sunday, Nov. 24, Dr. Philip Whitmer, pastor, will lead a discussion on God's grace and human gratitude.

On Dec. 1, a mission film on southeast Asia, "From Ox Cart to the Moon," will be shown.

A sermon "talk-through" on the advent theme is planned for Dec. 8. The "talk-through" will be led by a layman, with the minister not present, so those attending will feel more free to discuss the sermon just heard.

On Dec. 8, the Christian Social Concerns Committee will sponsor a program on the scope of the church's mission. The Dec. 22 session will be a discussion on the Bibles Christmas scriptures, led by Dr. Whitmer.

The programs were worked out by the church's education commission. Taking a major role was Mrs. Robert Winters, superintendent of the adult department.

Enrollment At Seminary Shows Hike

Enrollment for the fall semester at Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary at Strawberry is 22.7 per cent higher than last year, according to figures released this week.

When late registration closed, 295 students had registered for credit courses, the largest number of students to be registered since the seminary moved to its present location in 1959.

Of the total, new students number 129, a 42.6 per cent increase over new students in the fall of 1967 when 74 new students registered for classes.

There are 226 students working on a theological degree or diploma; 52 on a religious education degree or diploma; 10 special students; and seven students working on a degree in music.

New student interest has resulted from two experimental courses added this year to the Golden Gate Seminary program — Missions 103, a dialogue-oriented experimental course in the challenge of the racially changing community and pastoral care and New Testament interpretation, part of the seminary's "Continuing Theological Education."

School Crisis Plea Is Made

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI)—Bishops, religious superiors, school superintendents and parents must cooperate in solving the problems facing the nation's Catholic schools, Msgr. William M. Roche of the National Catholic Educational Association (NCEA) said here recently.

Reverend Roche, president of the NCEA's Department of School Superintendents, told a meeting of superintendents that to provide a complete education within a Christian atmosphere there is "a more positive need for Catholic schools today than the reasons which brought them into existence 100 years ago."

Catholic Church Facing Crisis Of Obedience Within Structure

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—The Roman Catholic Church is going through its deepest crisis in modern times—a crisis of obedience.

The all-powerful position of the Pope has been seriously weakened, with millions of Catholics defying Paul VI's pronouncement against birth control.

Age-old doctrines are being challenged or given new interpretations by theologians.

Laymen have divided into mutually hostile conservative vs. liberal factions.

Throughout the nominally 600-million-member church, there is turmoil and confusion and, in the case of Paul himself, evident bitterness and worry.

Debate, experimentation and innovation—much of it opposed by the Pope—are now rife in the church. Millions of Catholics have placed individual conscience or judgment above obedience to the Pope on birth control and other questions.

But the birth control controversy was not the start of the crisis of obedience. It began during the Ecumenical Council, called by the late Pope John XXIII and carried to completion, although with some misgivings, by Pope Paul.

Before the council, most Catholics had accepted without serious question the teachings of the church.

But the council brought to light the fact many of these teachings were being challenged or reinterpreted by some of the most brilliant minds of the church—theologians, cardinals and bishops.

Bitter wrangles took place among council fathers, and suddenly discussion and debate became fashionable at all levels of the church.

The reforms enacted by the council only fed what appeared to be a widespread, dormant desire for even more change.

While some may argue the church could not have survived 20 centuries except for its authoritarian nature, others argue just as strongly that it cannot remain authoritarian and survive in the changed circumstances of the modern world.

Some Vatican observers have suggested the Pope is being driven back to a hard-line, counter-reformation policy to try to salvage his authority and compel obedience.

But the counter-reformation—the Catholic reaction to the rise of Protestantism—occurred 400 years ago and both the world and the Catholic church have changed so radically since that a return to such a policy hardly seems conceivable.

Other observers believe it more likely that dissent on a wide scale will become a more or less permanent feature of Catholic life. This presumably would involve a decline in papal authority—and some Protestant leaders look on this as a hopeful possibility since the all-powerful position of the Pope has been the greatest obstacle to reunion of Protestants with the Catholic church.

I-J NEEDING THANKSGIVING DAY SERVICES

Special coverage will be given Thanksgiving Day church services again this year on the Independent-Journal church page.

To assure publication, plans for special services should be submitted to the I-J church page editor as soon as possible.

Latest day for acceptance will be Wednesday.

Annual Prayer Is Scheduled

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (UPI)—More than 50,000 persons throughout the world will join tomorrow in the annual prayer meeting organized by "Revivaltime," official international broadcast service of the Assemblies of God.

The "anchor" prayer service will be conducted in the Assemblies of God District Auditorium in Oklahoma City. Hundreds of additional groups in the United States and several foreign countries representing thousands of individuals indicated their intention to participate. "Revivaltime" is currently aired over 530 stations in the United States and abroad.

Huckleberry Founder To Give Talks

Rev. Larry Beggs, founder and director of Huckleberry House in San Francisco, will be the guest preacher tomorrow at the Community Congregational Church of Belvedere-Tiburon.

Beggs will speak on the "Politics of Being a Person" at the 9:30 and 11 a.m. services.

At 10:15 a.m., he will act as the resource person for the continuing series, "Polarization Between Youth and Adults," sponsored by the church's commission on missions. The 45-minute interlogue will be led by Judy Roeder.

An ordained minister in the United Church of Christ, Beggs has held pastorates in Lewiston and San Mateo before becoming involved in the Huckleberry project in San Francisco's Haight-Ashbuty District.

'Listen To Youth' Being Urged By Lutheran Pastor

TURKU, Finland (UPI)—Lutheran Archbishop Martti Simojoki of the Church of Finland has urged Lutherans to "pay attention to the expectations of the young."

Archbishop Simojoki, addressing a church Synod, said "young people's points of view may surprise us who are older."

"The young people of today," he said, "do often express their ideas in a new way, different from what we have been used to in the meetings of the Synod, but let none of us doubt their sincerity and honest desire to serve the church, so dear to all of us, and to aim only at its good."

Ensemble To Perform At Church

The Marin Chamber Ensemble, directed by Dr. S. Drummond Wolff, will present a program of baroque music at 4 p.m. tomorrow at the Church of the Redeemer (Episcopal), 121 Knight Drive in San Rafael.

The program, which will benefit the church's choral program, will also feature the Camarata Players, an eight-member chamber music group in its first year assisting the ensemble, and a choir of 16 vocalists, the majority of whom are students at College of Marin or San Francisco State College.

Program will include Concerto for Oboe and Strings by Albioni; selections from Handel's "Samson," and Fugue in E Flat by Bach.

Dr. Wolff is director of organ and choir music at the College of Marin as well as organist and choir director at Holy Innocents Episcopal Parish in Corte Madera.

Actors To Give Play Tomorrow At Marin Church

An in-the-round worship service will be presented at the 11 a.m. tomorrow at the United Methodist Church of Mill Valley.

The service, "Christ in the Concrete City," will be presented by Methodist Actors Serving in the Church (MASC). It is a drama on the "passion of Christ" and its meaning for the urban church, according to Rev. George P. Carter, church pastor.

The MASC is a theatrical group formed by laymen. The cast for tomorrow' play will include members of the organization from Oakland.

Seminary Choir To Give Excerpts From 'Messiah'

The Oratorio Choir of Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary will present excerpts from "The Messiah" by George F. Handel at 8 p.m., Dec. 6 in Broadus Chapel in Broadus Hall on the Strawberry campus.

Dr. Carlyle D. Bennett, head of the department of church music at the seminary, will direct the musical composition which was written in 1741.

Mrs. George Suffern of the music faculty at Golden Gate Seminary will accompany the choir on the organ. Mrs. James C. Bradley, wife of seminary religious education professor James C. Bradley, will accompany the choral presentation on the piano.

Hostesses For Church Rites?

HEMEL HEMPSTEAD, England (UPI) — A vicar thinks churches should take a cue from night clubs and airlines and have hostesses greet newcomers to the parish flock.

Rev. Christopher Newton, writing in a local church magazine, said the women should replace the soberly dressed and sometimes foreboding men who usually greet newcomers.

"The accomplishment of unity between the colored and white races will be an assurance of the world's peace."

The College of Marin Tars grabbed at least a tie for the inaugural Camino Norte Conference football crown by coming from behind to beat old rival Santa Rosa Junior College, 17-14, before 650 Homecoming fans in Kentfield last night.

Both coaches had predicted that rain was a great equalizer and that breaks would decide the contest. They were right.

Three times, Santa Rosa punts hit inside the Marin three-yard line and stopped dead in the mud, two of them setting up safeties for the Bearcubs. But the last break was a smashing tackle by Bill Hickerson that forced a fumble, pounced on by the opportunistic Karl Stein, to give Marin another chance after their last hope seemed gone.

The win gave Marin a title tie, but the Conference representative will be decided by tonight's West Valley-DeAnza game in Los Gatos. If West Valley wins, the Vikings of Los Gatos will go to the State Junior College Large College Division Playoffs. If DeAnza of Cupertino wins, the Tars are it.

Despite a field that resembled the Great Dismal Swamp, and hampered by miscues and the absence of star halfback Tim Garvin and starting safety Rod Powell, ineligible due to grades, the Tars fought back from their own errors to eke out the win. For Santa Rosa, it was close, but no cigar.

Marin's Dick Read put it this way: "Santa Rosa was deserving, they played real well — but we deserved it too, and these boys deserved a championship."

EARLY LEAD

Marin took an early lead at the end of the first quarter after a bad snap from center went over Bearcub quarterback Ray Borowicz's head on a punt attempt. Rick Smith, a 165-pound giant at defensive end all night, smeared Borowicz for a loss of 26 yards to the Santa Rosa 27. On third down at the 13, quarterback Val Sabuco hit Gary Dinkel for 12 yards and scored on a sneak over Doug Guillon's block on the next play. Bill Hickerson kicked the point after.

A nicely angled punt by Borowicz dropped in a mudhole at the Marin one midway through the second quarter, and the Cub's swarmed over Keith Stirling for a safety on first down. Five pass completions, the last a nine-yarder from Borowicz to end Dan Lester, gave Santa Rosa a touchdown in the last seconds of the half, and a 9-7 lead.

Marin took the second-half kickoff and promptly fumbled the ball away. The defense held, but another drowned punt died at the two. Mike Fowler and Gary Dinkel scrambled for the ball in the end zone on first down, Dinkel falling on it to avert a Bearcub touchdown. The safety gave SRJC an 11-7 lead, which was cut to 11-10 moments later as Sabuco hit Dinkel at the sideline for 28 yards to set up a 31-yard goal by Hickerson.

FINAL SCORE

A 38-yard return of the ensuing kickoff by Ray Allena and a 15-yard face mask penalty set up Santa Rosa's final score with four minutes left in the third period, Bill Glover booting a 23-yard field goal to put the Tars out of victory range via Hickerson's toe.

The fourth quarter was a series of near misses. First a clipping penalty stalled Santa Rosa, then Marin gained a yard on three plays, forcing a punt and, when the kick was returned to the Tar 30, seemingly setting up perfect field position for the Cubs. But Hickerson's powerful hit (which dislocated his oft-injured shoulder again) forced Borowicz to loose the ball, and Stein fell on it eagerly.

Two incomplete passes left Marin with three minutes left and a fourth and four situation. Sabuco came through, hitting Bob Bahlman, who made a leaping catch to keep the Tars alive. On the next play, the sideline pass to Dinkel worked again, for 26 yards to the SRJC 29. Jim Finnegan, running a stubbornly as ever, took it over on two power sweeps, the last a 16-yard bulling, twisting, tip-toeing jaunt down the left sideline. Hickerson's PAT was good, despite a sneak punch by a rushing Cub.

DESPERATE PASS

Two plays later, Billy Poole intercepted a desperate Borowicz pass to ice the win, as Marin ran out the clock.

Sabuco hit on eight of thirteen passes for 120 yards, five to Dinkel for 90, while Finnegan was the rushing leader with 19 yards in 15 carries.

"They came to play" said Read about Santa Rosa "and we didn't play well at all, early in the game. We had poor field position, and the only time we had good position, we petered out and settled for three points. But the kids deserved it, they've made an awful lot of progress. I'm grateful to win, it's good to be the champion at least." Read admitted he would probably head for Los Gatos tomorrow night, rather than wait for the score. "Better to make the trip than go crazy waiting at home."

REDWOOD HARRIERS WIN AGAIN

Redwood High School of Larkspur is becoming a cross-county mecca.

The Giants raced to victories in both the varsity and frosh-soph divisions of the North Coast Division III meet at Foley Park in Vallejo yesterday to remain unbeaten and advance to the section meets next week along with three other schools in each division.

It was tough in the varsity, with Redwood prevailing, 43-45 over Piner High School of Santa Rosa. Santa Rosa was third at 96 points, followed by Tamalpais in fourth. Phil Russel and Dave Neuhaus were the top Redwood finishers in fourth and eighth.

Redwood won easily in the frosh-soph meet, 44-87 over runner-up Novato. San Rafael was fourth. Lee Hotchkin of Redwood won it in 10:52 over a two-mile course.

RUN FOR YOUR LIFE — Santa Rosa quarterback Ray Borowicz (17) bootlegs around left end for nine yards and a first down in last night's College of Marin-Santa Rosa JC "Little Big Game." The Tars won 17-14. Marin pursuer is Dennis Quinn (86).

San Rafael Goes Down Tough

The St. Ignatius of San Francisco footballers must have wondered where the sacrificial lamb had disappeared to last night.

The West Catholic Athletic League powerhouse got a tremendous battle from San Rafael High School last night before it finally pulled together for a 20-point fourth quarter and a 27-7 non-league victory at San Rafael.

St. Ignatius didn't act like a WCAL power for three quarters last night. The Wildcats almost looked human, losing the ball on fumbles twice, able to move only sporadically in the mud against an inspired San Rafael defense.

Conversely, the Bulldogs didn't act like a team with a 1-7 record, the doormats of the Marin County Athletic League. For three periods, they nagged, stacked up and kept pecking away at the Wildcats, getting close to a second touchdown twice in the third period before the roof caved in.

St. Ignatius rolled to its first touchdown with powerful ease, punching away behind fullback Dennis Ward, an incredible workhorse who finished the night with 198 yards rushing on 37 carries.

Ward climaxed a six-play drive with a one-yard plunge for the touchdown and a 7-0 lead.

But San Rafael got a big break on a fumble recovery inside the 20-yard line and scored when spunky quarterback Lowell Widmer, under a big rush, hit Tom O'Donnell with a fading scoring pass from five yards out. Tim Ecke's kick tied it a 7-7 and that's where it stood for three grim quarters.

But the Wildcats came alive in the final quarter, acting like the potential champs they are. Ward climaxed a 60-yard drive, taking it all in himself from two yards out und a 14-7 lead. A San Rafael fumble inside the 30 set up another touchdown, an seven-yard scoring pass thrown by ex-Marin Catholic quarterback Dan Fouts.

Drake, Novato Meet In Key Game

Tonight's Marin County Athletic League windup game between Novato High School and Drake High of San Anselmo at College of Marin Stadium in Kentfield could be a championship game or it could be a lower-pitched game for second place.

It all depends on this afternoon's news.

That's the outcome of the Terra Linda-Redwood of Larkspur game on the same field this afternoon. If Redwood upsets Terra Linda, Novato and Drake will battle for a piece of the title and it would mean that the title would be shared for the third straight year. If the Terra Linda Trojans prevail, they'll have an unbeaten season and the title all to themselves.

Drake and Novato are both 6-2 won-lost on the season and 3-1 in league play. Both have lost to Terra Linda. Drake by 20-0, Novato by 7-6.

Neither coach Bob Franceschini of Drake or Al Scott of Novato prefers to talk too much of each other's team. But, naturally enough, they are full of praise for Redwood. And wishing.

Scott pointed out a key factor in regards to Drake, and a traditional one.

The Drake Pirates have a fair passing attack with quarterback Ed Harrington, who doesn't throw all that much, but is accurate. His standout receivers are Mike Davlin and Dave Alvarado. The running attack centers around fullback Bob Sutherland and quickie halfbacks Mark Silverman and Jamison.

Scott's Novato Hornets are extremely versatile, behind the throwing of quarterback Russ Dillon, a smooth lefty who can go for the long bomb.

The Pirates, obviously will try to get to Dillon, who holds the key to the Novato offense. That little bit of extra Pirate pressure helped eventually to derail two fine quarterbacks in earlier Drake victories — Jim Peters of Redwood and Don Mackin of Tamalpais.

But, if the afternoon is good for both teams, that won't be the only kind of pressure in this game scheduled to start at 8 o'clock.

Mood Of Subdued Pride After Tars Win Title

The atmosphere in the College of Marin dressing room last night was one of fairly subdued pride, rather than jubilation. The players were happy and proud, but realized that they had had a close call. But the closeness of the game, and the fact that Santa Rosa led most of the way, only sharpened their pride at coming back with the chips down. A few quotes on the game and the season:

Dick Read, Head Coach — "We've had a real good bunch this year, with good leadership from our captains, who've done a fine job (Bill Hickerson and Doug Guillon) ever since the West Valley game, when we had our backs to the wall. After that one I told the kids that we had to win our four remaining games to win it, and they came running. We should have done the job ourselves on West Valley (Marin lost its conference opener to WVC 26-21 after leading 21-7) and its hard to wait for DeAnza now. But 7-2 is a good year, and I'm pleased with the progress we've made. I think we've improved 100% every game since West Valley. Over the season, I'd have to single out Tim Garvin as our key player. He's a fierce competitor, and having him there to make the big play gives us confidence. We missed that tonight, I think Dinkel and Finnegan tried to do it, Dinkel in particular did it pretty well, I thought this was easily his best game. I'm happy with the year and the championship, whether we go on or not. If DeAnza wins, we'll probably play Thanksgiving Day in Fresno against Fresno City College, the Valley Conference champion. There's a small chance we might make the playoffs even if West Valley wins. There's a bye provided for one team in the setup right now, and if the Camino Norte is the only tied league, both teams might go. I'd like to thank my coaches, Pete Limm and Ed Grimm, for a real great job all year."

Pete Limm, line coach — "We didn't play at all well tonight, but the boys pulled together, gave 110%, and didn't give up — what more can you ask of anybody?"

Len Pieri, end, Redwood of Larkspur — "We were outplayed, but won, which is what counts. We weren't as close this year as last, because we had more freshmen, fewer transfer from four-year schools, although guys like Charley Keppel and Doug Guillon fit in well with the kind of spirit we had last year."

Sam Crowell, end, San Rafael High — "We won the early games on individual effort, but these last four on team effort. After we beat Yuba on a wet field, we came together. West Valley was a total letdown in the second half, but after that Guillon and Mr. Limm kind of got us together and we really did it against Contra Costa last week, we did it as a unit."

Doug Guillon, guard and offensive captain, George Washington High of San Francisco — "Yuba was the turning point. We came together when we were supposed to, and when it counted, like tonight."

Bill Hickerson, Drake of San Anselmo, linebacker-placekicker, defensive captain — "We weren't as close as last year, but when the chips were down, we play as a unit."

Bullets Take Over In East

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

A Tale of Four Cities—or A Gruelling Way to Drop out of First Place. That's the latest chapter of the Cincinnati Royals' episodes in the National Basketball Association.

In first place in the NBA's Eastern Division with an 8-2 record, the Royals opened a four-straight-day, four-city tour with a 126-115 victory over the Bullets at Baltimore.

They finished it last night in third place with a 10-4 mark after losing 116-105 to the Celtics in Boston.

Meanwhile Baltimore, 12-4, is in first place, ahead of Boston, 9-3, after pounding the Milwaukee Bucks 129-102 last night.

In other action, Philadelphia nipped Atlanta 116-115, Los Angeles stopped San Diego 127-119, San Francisco turned back Detroit and Seattle edged Phoenix 128-124 in two overtimes.

Minnesota took Indiana 105-95 and Miami topped New Orleans 102-91 in the American Basketball Association.

Player-coach Bill Russell sent Cincinnati out of first place when he sparked a 10-point Boston surge that broke an 80-80 tie by turning in a three-point play in the third period.

Bailey Howell scored 27 points for the Celtics, who had seven players in double figures. Oscar Robertson had 28 and Jerry Lucas 21 for Cincinnati.

Baltimore outscored Milwaukee 39-19 to increase an 82-80 lead to a commanding 121-90 bulge with just over three minutes left in the game.

MISSED SHOTS

Two missed foul shots and a pair of good ones spelled the difference in the Philadelphia-Atlanta game. With Atlanta leading 115-114 and seven second left, Walt Hazzard missed two free throws that would have clinched it for the Hawks. Bill Cunningham then made two with two second remaining to win it for Philadelphia.

Cunningham finished with 27 points, high for the game, and Luke Jackson contributed 23 for the 76ers. Lou Hudson scored 26 and Hazzard 21 for Atlanta, whose coach, Richie Guerin, reactivated himself for the game but did not play.

34 FOR WEST

Jerry West and Elgin Baylor teamed to guide Los Angeles' Western Division leaders to their sixth straight. West drilled in 34 points and Baylor scored 28, offsetting a 38-point performance by rookie Elvin Hayes.

Lenny Wilken's six points in the second overtime enabled Seattle to slip past the Suns.

LAKERS, WARRIORS IN LOCAL NBA WARFARE

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The rampaging Los Angeles Lakers, who have won six straight and nine of 10, test their high-powered offense against the San Francisco Warriors tonight in a battle between the NBA's two top western teams.

The Lakers, who spot a 10-4 record and first place, reeled off their sixth straight win last night with a 127-119 decision over San Diego in Los Angeles.

Meanwhile, the Warriors rolled up a whopping 73 points in the first half and romped to an easy 133-105 home triumph over Detroit. The Warriors' season mark is 7-7 and they trail the Lakers by three games.

Elvis Hayes followed his 54-point performance of Wednesday night with a 38-point effort to pace the Rocket scorers.

In San Francisco, Rudy LaRusso and Jeff Mullins each scored 16 points in the first half as the Warriors coasted to a comfortable 73-49 midway margin. The reserves took over and finished out the final quarter.

Mullins' 22 points was tops for the game with rookie Fritz Williams adding 21 and Nate Thurmond 19 with 23 rebounds.

IN PLACE OF SAYERS

Piccolo Tries The Grid Impossible

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Brian Piccolo gets a long-awaited chance as Chicago's starting running back in the Bears' National Football League game against Atlanta tomorrow. It should be a moment of great joy for him but it isn't.

That's because Piccolo is replacing Gale Sayers and while a player can occupy Sayers' spot on the field, it's quite another thing to replace him. Sayers, of course, is out for the season with torn ligaments and cartilage in his right knee.

"This isn't the way I wanted it," says Piccolo. "Gale should be out there."

Piccolo knows there are things Sayers can do which will be impossible for him to duplicate. "The change of pace and direction without losing speed or a step, the instinct that tells Gale which way to go, and all the other intangibles he possesses—they belong to Sayers alone. Nobody can do what Gale Sayers does," Piccolo admits. But he'll try anyway.

FOUR STRAIGHT

Piccolo picked up 67 yards in 18 carries after replacing Sayers last Sunday. Gale had 32 yards in 11 carries and 856 for the season—second best in the league—before the accident.

The Bears have won four straight with rookie Virgil Carter at quarterback and share the NFL's Central Division lead with Minnesota.

The Vikings, sky-high after dropping Green Bay last Sunday, hope for as strong a defensive show against Detroit this week as they had against the Packers. They dumped Bart Starr five times, blocked a field goal and jarred the Packers into two costly fourth period fumbles.

The Lions ended a 14-quarter draught with their first TD scored by the offense since Oct. 20, but still lost to Baltimore last week.

HOT CARDS

The Colts, sharing the Coastal Division lead with Los Angeles, run up against the hot Cardinals, who have not lost in five weeks. Jim Hart passed for 353 yards last Sunday as the Cardinals wiped out a three-touchdown Pittsburgh lead and battled the Steelers to a 28-28 tie.

Earl Morrall continues to pilot the Colts and together with a devastating defense which has permitted just two touchdowns in the last three weeks, he has kept Baltimore neck and neck with the Rams.

Los Angeles, too, has been doing it with defense. The Rams have allowed 111 points—only three more than league-leading Baltimore. They beat Atlanta by a touchdown last week with some clutch running from Tommy Mason and Willie Ellison.

John Brodie passed for 199 yards and two TDs but suffered four interceptions against Chicago as the 49ers lost their fifth game last week.

Green Bay tries to climb back into the Central Division picture against New Orleans. The world champion Packers have lost four and tied one in five division games this year. Over-all, they're 3-5-1 and 1½ games back of both Detroit and Minnesota.

TOP RUSHER

Cleveland, clinging to a one-half game edge in the Century Division, has won four straight and five in the last six weeks. The Browns have the NFL's leading rusher in Leroy Kelly, who has gained 890 yards in 144 carries. Pittsburgh, after dropping six straight, has not lost in three weeks.

New York closed to within one game of Dallas in the Capitol Division race by knocking off the Cowboys last Sunday. The Giants could tie for the lead by beating winless Philadelphia and getting some help from Washington, which hosts Dallas.

Jets, Namath Attempt To Decide AFL Western Title In Oakland

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The New York Jets, already a cinch winner in the Eastern Division, launch phase one of their role tomorrow to help determine the team they will face in the American Football League's championship showdown.

The Jets, owners of a bulging 3½-game lead in their division, step into the thick of the Western Division chase—tightest in AFL history—for a two-game West Coast swing.

They take on Oakland Sunday, then meet San Diego the following week—the two teams currently locked in second place with 7-2 records, just one half game behind Kansas City, 8-2.

A pair of Jet victories would not only assure them of their first Eastern title ever, but also could help set up Kansas City as the Jets' foe for the right to move on to the Sugar Bowl.

New York's magic number is only two for clinching the title—any combination of Jet victories and Boston or Houston losses totaling two gives the Jets the crown.

The Jets, who turned back Kansas City and San Diego earlier this season, are winging along on a four-game victory streak although Joe Namath hasn't thrown a touchdown pass in six games.

But Namath hasn't been needed with Joe Turner's foot around. Turner booted four or five field goal attempts in a 26-7 coast past Houston last week to take over the league's scoring leadership.

BLANDA AT HELM

The Raiders may have to combat New York with the oldest player in the league—40-year-old George Blanda—handling the quarterback duties again.

A decision on whether injured Daryle Lamonica would start was not expected to be made until game time. Blanda filled in last week and rifled four touchdown passes in a 43-7 blasting of Denver—the Raiders third straight since a loss to Kansas City.

The Chiefs and the Chargers, meanwhile, aren't expected to have much difficulty winning. Kansas City plays host to Boston, 3-6, while San Diego goes to Buffalo, 1-8-1. Denver, 4-5, is at Houston and Cincinnati, 2-8, at Miami, 3-5-1, in other league games.

Boston's big chore in trying to stop a three-game losing streak will be to contain the Chiefs' rookie Robert Holmes, who carried 21 times for 158 yards and caught all five of Kansas City's completions for 62 yards in a 16-9 victory over Cincinnati last week. The Pats gave San Diego a rugged battle most of the way last week before finally losing, 27-17.

Buffalo faces a murderous task in attempting to stop the Chargers' John Hadl led attack, the most potent in the league. And, the Bills have to do it with a lineup riddled with injuries. Even rookie quarterback Dan Darragh, who is subbing for a sub, is injured and may not be able to play.

Madison Square Garden Gets Brawling Baptism

NEW YORK (AP) — The new Madison Square Garden got its baptism of whiskey and wine bottles and stray chairs last night in a wild demonstration after the main event of a fight show.

When Ismael Laguna of Panama, former lightweight champion, was given a majority decision over Roman Blanco of Venezuela by way of Puerto Rico, the trouble started.

Ringside spectators scattered for the exits and reporters and the referee crawled under the ring while pieces of glass bounced off chairs and showered the fugitives.

Several seats were ripped with knives. One small fire was reported to have started. The hockey press box was torn up and a small refrigerator was torn from its moorings.

OLD SCENE

It was a scene reminiscent of riots in the old Garden in recent years. Trouble started after the Flash Elorde-Frank Narvaez match March 10, 1967 and the Dick Tiger-Jose Torres bout May 16, 1967.

Three spectators were reported to have been slightly injured. One complained of a shoulder injury suffered in a fall. Another had superficial cuts. Both were examined by Dr. Kazuo Yanigasawa, the Garden physician.

This spectator can report that the thump, thump of hard objects overhead in the ring and the shower of splintering glass were real enough to make a man want to take his boxing on television.

FANCY

Laguna, 136, is a fancy dancer type with quick hands and agile moves. Blanco, 136, called in Wednesday as a sub for the ailing Bunny Grant of Jamaica, is a sturdy little man who gave away height and reach but almost made up for it in punching power.

He wobbled Laguna two or three times but the Panamanian always escaped and came back strong, his jab spinning his opponent with those quick hands.

Referee Jimmy Devlin and Judge Tony Rossi each scored it 7-3 for Laguna. Judge Johnny Dran had it even at 5-5 in rounds and 6-6 in points. The AP had Laguna a 6-4 winner.

A crowd of 8,500 fans paying $40,000 saw the show that also featured two other 10-rounders.

Luis Rodriguez, 153½, a Cuban who lives in Miami and a former world welter champ, won a unanimous decision over Joe Shaw, 148, New York in one ten.

Another Powerhouse For 49ers

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— They say life for a rookie coach isn't easy. For San Francisco's Dick Nolan it's ridiculous.

For the seventh straight week, Nolan's task has been to prime his Forty Niners for a battle against a National Football League powerhouse. tomorrow the Los Angeles Rams, currently tied with Baltimore for the Coastal Division lead, will furnish the opposition on the Kezar Stadium gridiron.

The Rams started it all seven weeks ago by taking the Forty Niners, 24-10. Since then, Nolan's forces have met Baltimore, New York, Detroit, Cleveland and Chicago, all title contenders.

As it turned out, the Forty Niners won two—over the Giants and Lions—and dropped the others. For the season, San Francisco is 4-5 while the defensively rugged Rams are 8-1.

If—and it's a big if—the Forty Niners can carry over their second half performance against Chicago, Bay Area fans may be in for some cheering. After being down 24-0 at the half last Sunday, San Francisco stormed back to outscore the Bears 19-3 in the final two quarters.

Again, the Forty Niners attack will revolve around the passing combination of John Brodie to Cliff McNeil but the Rams won't be able to concentrate solely on the ex-Cleveland pass catcher.

Massive Kevin Hardy will take over Clark Miller's spot on the defensive line and, in the only other change, Mel Phillips was named to start in place of John Fuller.

Boros Finds Putter

ROME (AP) — Now that Julius "The Moose" Boros has recovered his putting form, the chances look better than ever for the United States to take the undisputable lead today in the World Golf Cup Championship.

The 48-year-old Boros of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., fashioned a 70—much of it on the greens—in yesterday's second round.

Nationalist China was at the same level. Both nations were five shots ahead of the field.

"Yes, I found the putter," said Boros.

That's all this lazy swinger needs to outstrip the field.

FINE STYLE

Trevino of Dallas has shown fine style around the greens ever since the contest started Thursday and yesterday's rain and chill failed to dampen his spirits.

The next challenger was Ireland with veteran Christy O'Connor and Jimmy Kinsella.

They were even par at 288 and Kinsella thanked a strange kind of driver for it. He shot a four under-par-68 yesterday and said:

"My driving is pretty good, I have one now that's an inch longer than standard and two ounces heavier. It has two shafts, you see, one down inside the other. I had to do that to mend it because I broke it when I was riding my bicycle.

STIFF DRIVER

The 6,850-yard par 72 Olgiata course has been a good deal tougher than expected.

Roberto De Vicenzo, of Argentina, former British Open champ, said, "I don't understand it but I play it not very good and I can't putt."

Lu Liang-Huan of Nationalist China shot another 69 for the individual lead at 138.

SAYERS IN DRYDOCK — Gale Sayers, superlative halfback of the Chicago Bears, sits with his wife Linda in a Chicago hospital after undergoing surgery on his right knee, severely injured last week against the San Francisco 49ers. Proud Sayers Walks Out Of Hospital

CHICAGO (AP) — Gale Sayers, the Chicago Bears' injured superstar, walked out of Illinois Masonic Hospital yesterday with the same pride and dominance he employes on the football field.

Sayers, who last Sunday night underwent knee surgery for torn ligaments, amazed the medical world by walking out of the hospital less than a week after his operation.

Refusing crutches and keeping the cast on his right leg out of sight under his blue slacks, the player called the most exciting runner in the National Football League vowed he'd be back next season without any mental blocks.

Sayers suffered the injury early in the second quarter of last Sunday's triumph over the San Francisco 49ers when he was hit by defensive back Kermit Alexander, one of Sayers' closest friends in football. Minutes later Dr. Theodore Fox announced Sayers would undergo surgery that night and would be lost for the season.

FANTASTIC

Dr. Fox, who performed the operation, said yesterday "his recovery so far is fantastic. I tried to give Gale crutches Tuesday but the refused them. He's a week ahead of anybody I know who had a similar injury. Gale will be back next year as good as ever, you have my word for it."

Sayers, in his first interview since the mishap, said "it's the breaks of the game. You always think about it, a knee injury, I mean. I never worried about it, but I did think about it—carrying the ball as much as I do. So I was prepared mentally."

Asked if he can overcome the haunting fear that comes to many runners following such injries, Sayers said, "I'm not going to let that worry me. There will not be a mental block. I'll be able to overcome this. Other players have had the same thing and come back."

Petaluma Loses Ninth Game, 13-7

The long season has ended for Petaluma High School's football team.

Petaluma led briefly in the first half, 7-6, but Cardinal Newman went ahead for a 13-7 halftime lead that stood up.

Petaluma wound up the year winless. The Trojans were at the Cardinal Newman half-yard line in the third quarter but fumbled the ball.

Strike Vs. Girl Jockey?

LOUISVILLE, Ky (AP) — Pretty Penny Ann Early prepared to take the track aboard Bo Tree at Churchill Downs today, amid unconfirmed reports that male jockeys might boycott the race.

Miss Early, 25, received her first assignment yesterday afternoon when the owner of Bo Tree authorized the blonde jockey to ride the 2-year-old colt in the first race.

Florine Stelzig, the owner, said "Penny and I have been friends a long time. I have every faith in her."

REFUSE TO RIDE

Later, there were unconfirmed reports that male jockeys would refuse to ride in the first race and possibly boycott the entire card if Miss Early is permitted to race.

If she does, the petitie rider would become the first woman in modern history to compete as a professional jockey.

When asked whether she had heard about the possible rebellion, Miss Early replied, "Yeah, I heard about that strikearoo but I don't know anything except what some newsmen told me the jockeys said."

Lyyn Stone, vice president and general manager of Churchill Downs, said he had not heard of a boycott, either.

Although the majority of the jockeys belong to the Jockey's Guild, it is a benevolent organization and one person normally does speak for its members. Jockeys sign contracts individually with the horses' owners.

NERVOUS

Miss Early was granted a temporary license by the Kentucky State Racing Commission Thursday. The license permits her to ride two horses, after which a final decision will be made by the commission.

Last night, Miss Early said, "Sure, I'm nervous. Everybody's nervous in their first race. I just hope he runs good."

Miss Stelzig said Bo Tree would put Penny out front early "because he's a speedball." She added, however, that the horse "is going to lose a lot of races" unless his early speed can be controlled. Thus far, that speed has gone uncontrolled and Bo Tree has yet to win a race.

The first race is a six furlong test of 2-year-olds.

Miss Early, a divorcee and mother of an 8-year-old daughter, is the second woman in the United States to be licensed as a jockey. The first, Kathy Kusner of Maryland, has a broken leg and has not ridden.

French Money In Trouble; German Mark Riding High

LONDON (AP) — Anxiety about the French franc rubbed off on the U.S. dollar and the British pound today as the world's top bankers assembled in Basel, Switzerland, to discuss a growing monetary crisis.

Speculators rushed to get rid of francs, dollars and pounds, switching to gold, commodities and the German mark, currently rated the safest of all paper money.

Financial commentators here said the market activity was the most fevered since the pound sterling was devalued exactly a year ago, despite official assurances that the franc will not be devalued.

The meeting in Basel was to be a routine monthly session of central European bankers. But there have been persistent rumors that the West German mark will be revalued upward from its present level of about 25 American cents, and France is expected to seek massive international support for the franc.

Swiss bankers reported they were inundated with orders for German marks. The authoritative London Financial Times reported the French money market was showing signs of panic, with private banks cleared out of marks and Swiss francs.

One factor acting against the franc was fear that France may bring back exchange control, causing the rush to switch to other freely convertible currencies or commodities. The French Finance Ministry denied it was even considering exchange control.

Another factor was the rise in the French cost of living, now running at 5 per cent a year. This inevitably made the franc's purchasing power suspect.

In London, the free market price of gold—always an indicator in times of currency trouble—reached $40 an ounce for the first time since September. The official price is $35.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, Nov. 16 the 321st day of 1968 with 45 to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase. The morning stars are Mars and Jupiter. The evening stars are Saturn and Venus.

On this day in history:

In 1908 conductor Arturo Toscanini made his American debut.

In 1933 the United States and Russia established diplomatic relations.

In 1966 Dr. Sam Sheppard was acquitted of the 1954 slaying of his wife after the jury deliberated 9 hours.

Also in 1966 President Johnson underwent surgery for removal of a benign throat polyp and repair of a hernia.

A thought for the day: Scottish novelist Robert Lewis Stevenson wrote: "Mankind was never so happily inspired as when it made a cathedral."

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Will South Give Us Something To Cheer Or Bring On Tears?

Since everybody has enough strength to bear the other fellow's misfortunes, my readers should not suffer unduly over South's defeat in today's hand. But suppose you were South: would you give the rest of us something to cheer about or would we have to shed tears for you, too?

RUFFS HEARTS

The actual declarer ruffed the third round of hearts and led a club to dummy's king. East took the ace of clubs and returned a club, forcing South to ruff.

South led out the ace and king of spades and tried a finesse with the queen of diamonds. When this held, he led a few more trumps and then hopefully led the ace of diamonds. The king didn't drop, and South was down one.

Now decide how you would play the hand before you read on. You can be the hero instead of the fall guy.

CAREFUL RUFFING

To begin with, you must ruff the third heart with the nine of spades and the second club with the 10 of spades. Now, after five routine tricks you need two entries to dummy so that you can take two diamond finesses.

Lead the deuce of spades. When West plays low, try a finesse with dummy's seven of spades. When this "unnecessary" finesse works you can take a diamond finesse at once, returning to dummy with the king of spades to repeat the finesse.

DRAW LAST TRUMP

You then draw the missing trump and bow to the applause.

If you ruffed the heart or the club with the deuce of trumps and later led the three of trumps toward dummy, West could play the eight of trumps and thus limit you to one entry to dummy. West would have to be a genius to make this play, but why leave anything to chance?

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes. You hold:

♣ Q 10 9

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two hearts. This borderline decision is justified by your strong heart support. If partner had opened with one spade, you would have passed.

Philippine Courts Increase Payments

MANILA (UPI)—The Philippine Supreme Court has doubled to 12,000 pesos ($3,000) the award of compensatory damages for death caused by crime.

The court said in a ruling the raise was necessary because of the lower purchasing power of the Philippine peso after World War II.

"Now, make me a newspaper by tonight"

Tall order . . . since a complete newspaper such as the Independent-Journal is at once the most complex yet lowest-priced product that can be made in one day.

Every day a new "model" . . . delivered by nightfall. To do this job against the clock—

- our 18 reporters comb the county, observing, interviewing, phoning, writing, getting the facts for you.
- thousands of AP and UPI newsmen check the world for you, put its pulse on the wire.
- teletypes chatter some 120,000 words to us, from as close as Mill Valley, as far away as Capetown.
- rolls of paper, each 850 lbs., move in from Canada and the Northwest.
- electronic impulses turn into photographs on a machine—the world in black and white, caught in action.
- the managing editor watches for the big stories, gauging the importance of each, overseeing the editorial "construction" of the paper, from content to design.
- pressmen feed the giant press with ink and paper—a taste of what's to come.
- "Circulation" readies for the job of distributing the paper, via 700 newspaperboys, to two out of three homes in the county.
- experts set type for news, for ads—enough in one day to fill a good-sized book.
- the retail advertising staff, 10 strong, contacts almost every business in the county . . . planning campaigns, offering merchants professional service in copywriting, layout and merchandising.
- the city editor "feels" for the news on a hundred fronts, hands out assignments, shaping the news force to the shape of events.
- engravers work their chemical magic, placing print and picture on metal.
- the women's editor and staff of 5 molds food and fashions, social doings, meetings, school events, into a women's world.
- syndicates send in both national and world-wide features—columns, comics, cartoons.
- specialists "make up" the paper, designing every page of news and ads.
- the art department creates illustrations, layouts, designs, cartoons.
- photographers race the news throughout the county, clicking the visual happenings of Marin today.
- ink for the press arrives not in bottles but tank trucks.
- color plates and color inks are being readied for ads, special editions, covers—all to brighten your reading eye.
- sports "jump" in the typewriters of the sports department and Willie Mays leaps up into a headline.
- "Classified" is setting up the county's daily market place, and the phone rings with "wanted" and "for sale."
- headlines are being written against deadlines—and the tight confines of space.
- vital statistics are being compiled; weather and stock reports are coming in.
- the mechancial superintendent moves the copy through a maze of linotypes, electronic typesetters and the precise hands of men who literally know type up-side down.
- the library is digging up background data for stories, filing photos, micro-filming each edition of the newspaper.
- legal ads get eagle-eyed checking for accuracy.
- orders are coming in from the nation's advertising agencies with mats for advertisements—everything from autos to ant spray.
- issues become the tissue of editorials—the reasoned interpretation of events.
- proofreaders scan every line of news and advertising trying to hold errors to a minimum against the pressure of time.
- letters to the editor are being read for possible publication.
- the dispatch office is moving ads into production—checking size, type, mats, insertion dates, art, photos—a hundred elements.
- our national representatives are meeting with ad agencies and advertisers in New York, Detroit, Chicago—a dozen cities—telling them about Marin County and its newspaper.
- special contributors' columns on fishing, baseball and many others are being processed.
- Marin Magazine is being dummied; stories developed for the Saturday edition—picturing life in Marin.
- the business office moves against a mountain of financial and administrative detail.
- stereotypers cast the weighty cylinders for the big press—the final imprint of the news on metal.
- last minute news comes through and the front page changes under the expert fingers of typographers and the eye of the editor.

Live Storage Held Hope For Organs

Another heart transplant recipient walked out of his hospital room on the way to a new life yesterday—and a pioneering transplant surgeon suggested a new method for maintaining potential transplant hearts before surgery.

Stanford University heart surgeon Dr. Norman E. Shumway said in Los Angeles it may be possible for one person to serve as a "host" for an organ to be transplanted later. (See also story on donors, page 19.)

Shumway, who has performed seven heart transplants, said a heart has been maintained in the neck of a dog for four days, although the experiment has never been attempted on a human.

He said the host would suffer no ill effects, though the parasitic organ might suffer some damage during the transitionary period.

In Houston, the world's 27th heart recipient, Henry W. Jurgens, 57, was released yesterday from St. Luke's Hospital to take up apartment living.

The Beatrice, Neb., man, who received the heart of a 16-year-old auto accident victim July 23, was in good condition and has "much color in his cheeks," a hospital spokesman said.

Jurgens was Dr. Denton A. Cooley's seventh heart transplant patient and the fifth patient to be released from a Houston hospital. He will live with his wife three blocks from the hospital, returning daily for checkups and medication.

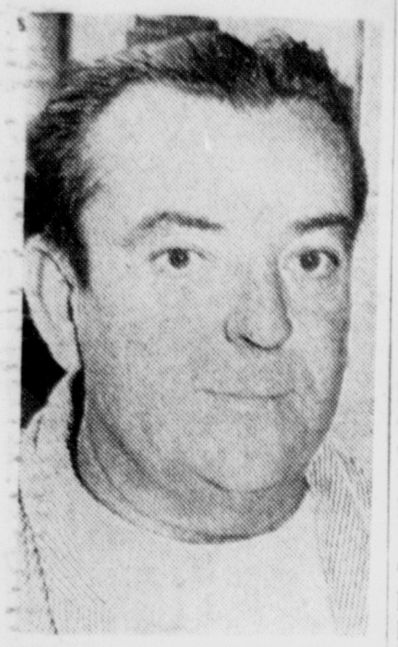
Fred Christian Everman, 58, of Arlington, Va., whose transplant operation at St. Luke's preceded that of Jurgens by three days, yesterday was up and about again—with the help of a protective corset. He fractured a vertebrae in a hospital fall in October.

One of the more recent transplant recipients, Andrew S. Perhace, 55, of Hempstead, N.Y., practiced his putting game in his St. Luke's Hospital room yesterday. Perhace, who received the heart of a 27-year-old New Jersey housewife last Saturday, now is on a regular diet and receives his family for visits regularly.

In his Los Angeles speech, Shumway also commented on the current status of heart transplant technique around the world. He said there is a 50 per cent survival rate.

A total of 80 heart transplant operations have been performed on every continent. There are 41 survivors.

"I am not dissatisfied with the progress of this year, but I am certainly not proud of it," Shumway said. "It is what you might expect at the outset."



WANTS TO SELL SELF — Ex-Marine Charles P. Gannon of Portland, Ore., seeks to sell off his heart, liver, eyes and other potentially transplantable organs while still alive, in order to pay off debts for himself and his hospitalized wife. "It's the only honest way I know of to pay off my debts and get right with the world," says the former member of Carlson's Raiders in World War II. (AP Wirephoto)

Auto Owners Warned On Smog Control

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Owners of motor vehicles will be denied registration if their vehicles do not contain operative smog control devices.

The warning was issued yesterday by the Department of Motor Vehicles, Highway Patrol and Air Resources Board at a joint news conference called to explain the administration of the antismog legislation which became law this week.

Verne Orr, director of motor vehicles, said his department will not change smog codes that are a part of the registration form for 1967 and older vehicles without approval of the Highway Patrol or a certificate of inspection from a licensed garage or service station.

Orr and R. A. Kridler, deputy commissioner of the Highway Patrol, said smog control devices on the crankcase or exhaust are frequently altered or made ineffective by engine modifications.

Kridler said the CHP "will cite" persons when the required smog control devices are found to be missing or inoperative in random roadside inspections the patrol conducts on about 150,000 vehicles each month.

Sausalito Profanity Ban Struck Down On Appeal

Three Marin Superior Court judges, sitting in appellate court, have struck down a Sausalito city ordinance which made it illegal to use rude or profane language.

Their action came in the case of George Michael Barnes, 38, of Marin City, accused of swearing at Sausalito policeman Gary Gee when stopped for speeding on Bridgeway Aug. 18, 1967.

Judge Hadden W. Roth of Municipal Court found him guilty of the offense and turned back a constitutional challenge to the ordinance March 7.

Lawyer Theodore C. Lachelt, representing Barnes for the American Civil Liberties Union, appealed the case on grounds that state laws pre-empted the field of the Sausalito ordinance on the grounds of free speech.

The appellate court, composed of Judges Thomas F. Keating, Joseph G. Wilson and Samuel W. Gardiner, reversed Judge Roth's decision Wednesday without comment.

The ordinance was passed by the Sausalito City Council Nov. 9, 1966. City Atty. Leland Jordan defended the ordinance before the tribunal.

The decision of the judges leaves the ordinance without any force, said Lachelt, who termed the decision a victory for freedom of speech.

Hamilton Announces Award Of Contracts

Contracts totaling $67,946 were announced yesterday by the base procurement office at Hamilton Air Force Base.

Markos Painting Co. of Novato was given a $64,750 contract to paint Lanham and Wherry housing; L. H. Leonardi Electric Construction Co. of San Rafael, a $1,216 contract to repair the approach lighting, both at Hamilton, and Hobart Co. of Dublin, a $1,980 contract to replace condensation tanks in the heating plant at the Mill Valley Air Force Station.

Chimp Liver Used In Try To Aid Girl

ATLANTA (UPI)—A 3-year-old girl, whose veins were linked to those of a chimpanzee for nearly six hours yesterday in a last-ditch effort to save her life, was reported in "slightly improved" condition today.

Dr. Joseph Patterson, organizer of the team of physicians which performed the delicate operation believed to be the first with a human and a chimpanzee, said the unidentified child was still comatose after the linkup.

But he said the girl, who was fighting a losing battle against hepatitis, a virus infection attacking the liver, was able to maintain the function of her own system after the link was severed.

The object of the operation, he said, was to allow the chimp's liver to work for the girl, giving her own liver time to recover and fight against the infection.

Patterson said chances were "overwhelmingly against" the child's recovery.

Yesterday's operation at Egleston Hospital in the Emory Medical School complex was the first performed with a chimpanzee. Similar operations, using baboons, have been performed at the Medical College of Virginia and by Dr. Christiaan Barnard, the pioneer heart transplant specialist. Only Dr. Barnard's 29-year-old woman patient recovered.

The 68-pound chimpanzee, named Cassandra, was supplied for the operation by the Yerkes regional primate center. She was chosen because she had the same type-O positive blood as the patient.

'THE ORIGINAL REBEL'

Trevor Howard Is Mellowing— But He's Still Far From Square

By PATRICIA E. DAVIS

NEW YORK (UPI)—Actor Trevor Howard, who has been called a "hellraiser" and a "gentleman rogue," says that at the age of 53 he is mellowing—but not intentionally.

"It is necessary at my age to mellow," he noted, "but I can't say I'm mellowing intentionally. I'm still doing pretty well, but I find it harder to stay up late at night."

Howard has appeared in over 50 films in a 28-year acting career and is currently starring in "The Charge of the Light Brigade" for United Artists release. "I love acting," he said in an interview, "but I'm perfectly willing to declare my innings closed and never work again."

HOWARD, WHO lives outside London with his wife, actress Helen Cherry, insists he's "a very simple man.

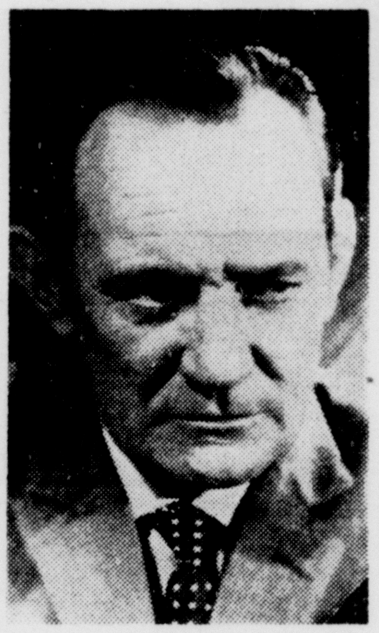
"I like nice people—isn't that a terrible cliche? I won't tolerate rudeness, bad behavior or any kind of discourtesy. If it comes up I just disappear—the world and I can live without that."

"I do hope I'm not sounding pompous about this," he added. "Don't make me sound like an old square."

HOWARD, NOTED for his portrayal of Captain Bligh in "Mutiny on the Bounty," says he was at his "hell-raising best" in the mid-1950s.

"I was really wild in those days. I'd hit all the clubs. I used to spend a lot of time at Eddie Condon's (a now-defunct jazz club in Greenwich Village).

"You know," he continued, "Eddie called me the other day after he saw me on TV. I think that's a great compliment—I thought he was dead and told him so.



TREVOR HOWARD
Hell-raiser in 1950s

"MOST OF my old musician friends—my darling friends from Harlem and the Metropole—are dead and gone now, dammit, dammit.

"I used to love New York—I still do—but it's all changed now. The places I was really wild in don't exist any more. Those were great days and now they're gone. I don't know where to go for a drink these days."

Howard terms himself "the original rebel . . . 30 years ago—rebelled against everything . . . now I leave most of the rebelling to the younger set . . . they have the control."

BESIDE HAVING "control" Howard noted, the younger set has an innovation of which the actor approved . . mini-skirts.

"They drive me insane . . . they're too provocative for me. Maybe they should be longer. But it's nice when you're my age to still get a kick out of girls in mini-skirts."

HOWARD, A slight, ruddy-faced man who has played British army officers galore in American war films ("I always seem to be in uniform") feels that American productions tend to "kill" British actors.

"They decry us . . . they tried to make me look like a nothing man in 'Bounty' and 'Von Ryan's Express." I don't mind looking like a nothing man, but I don't want to let my country down."

Born in England, Howard was raised in Ceylon, Los Angeles and Canada. His father, who was in the shipping business, hoped Howard would be a career army officer, but instead he entered the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art. After playing in several dramas, Howard switched to motion pictures.

HE HAS appeared in "The Third Man," "The Roots of Heaven" ("my favorite role, but it was a lousy film. It wasn't my fault, anyway."), "Around the World in 80 Days," and "Operation Crossbow."

Although he started on the stage, Howard has no desire to return. "I hate saying the same thing night after night. I can't bear at my time of life to be a gramophone record."

DICK CAVETT delivers his quick-witted commentaries on ABC-TV's "The Dick Cavett Show," seen Monday through Friday at 10:30 a.m. on Channels 7 and 11.

THE PRISON DOC

Recalls Early San Quentin's Warden Hoyle

JOHN E. HOYLE, warden at San Quentin for nearly seven years shortly after the turn of the century, was an affable man who introduced a number of prison reforms and improvements.

(Editor's Note: This is another in a series of articles written by Dr. Leo L. Stanley, long-time surgeon at San Quentin Prison, on his recollections of events and persons during his service at the prison.)

By DR. LEO. L. STANLEY

During the 38-year period between 1913 to 1951 that I was in prison work, except for four years with the Navy in World War II, I knew seven different wardens as my bosses.

Without exception, they were fine men who became my personal friends.

The first of these, but one of the best remembered, was John E. Hoyle, appointed San Quentin warden in 1907 when John C. Edgar resigned because of ill health. Hoyle was then secretary of the State Board of Prison Directors and had achieved a reputation as a clear thinker and a progressive student of prison affairs. Previously he had been a newspaper editor. It was his espousal of the cause of the proper political party that earned him his prison appointment, since the warden post was then considered a political "plum."

JOHN E. HOYLE was a large, friendly man, with a warm countenance. I know he must have wondered if he was acting wisely when he named me assistant resident physician in his huge institution. I had no political pull, and at 26 was just out of medical school.

Nevertheless, within six months after my coming to the prison, he had the courage to make me head of the medical department. I know he was criticized for not appointing an older man with some political weight. But he was steadfast in his decision.

Certainly the medical department was in need of some new blood and some improvements. The services and facilities had been allowed to deteriorate sadly, and a revitalization was a necessity without delay.

THE MEDICAL OFFICER was then on call 24 hours a day, with one day off a month, and even for this he needed the warden's permission and was required to keep the prison informed as to his whereabouts. In some ways, he was little better off than the convicts.

But I set to work upon a program for improving the health of the inmates, and establishing a useful, serviceable hospital.

One big step forward came when the warden approved Dr. Francis Stolle, recent medical school graduate, as my assistant. Being unfamiliar with protocol, I made the announcement to the press. It was innocently done, but the next day Warden Hoyle called me to his office.

"DOCTOR," HE SAID rather sternly, "you are new at this prison. If newspapers ring you up and ask for information in the future, refer them to me. Good day!"

It was a lesson I never forgot.

I remember that I got myself in "wrong" with the usually amiable warden on one other occasion.

He developed "cold sores" on his lips, and asked me to prescribe something for him. I sent him a small vial of weak silver nitrate with directions that it be applied lightly to the affected areas. But he applied the medicine overgenerously. The result: Lips dyed a deep black. It was several days before the coloration wore off. The cold sores were cured, but whether by time or my treatment, I do not know.

HOYLE HAD TAKEN office hailed as a reform warden who would change the system overnight, as newcomers invariably were. If he did not live up to those expectations, he nevertheless had some good ideas on penology.

He proceeded with caution and sometimes acted slowly in firing officials incompetent or in disfavor. But he worked consistently for better conditions, gradually reducing the worst forms of abuse of prisoners. And he was generally regarded at the time as the most efficient warden San Quentin had known.

Many predicted that given 10 years or more he would earn a reputation as the best warden in the country. But he was to have not quite seven years as prison chief. Our association was all too brief before he left the prison, going to San Francisco where he engaged in the hotel business successfully for a number of years.

HE BEQUEATHED TO his successors a number of enlightened practices, some of which were felt particularly during the holiday season. He initiated a Christmas amnesty by which lost privileges were restored, punishment slates washed clean and prisoners enabled to start the new year fresh.

He favored early in his administration permitting prisoners to receive Christmas gift packages from the outside, but was dissuaded because of the ingenuity with which narcotics and other contraband were so often hidden in such parcels.

It was a measure of Hoyle's success and the respect he earned from the inmates when a New Year's Eve arrived and passed without the usual clamor and disturbances from the imprisoned men. Traditionally, the convicts looked upon New Year's Eve as a time to let off steam—to make all the noise possible, yelling and shouting obscenities and hatred, beating against the barred doors with their washbasins, striking steel partitions with stools, creating bedlam. Their repressions and despair poured out in torrents.

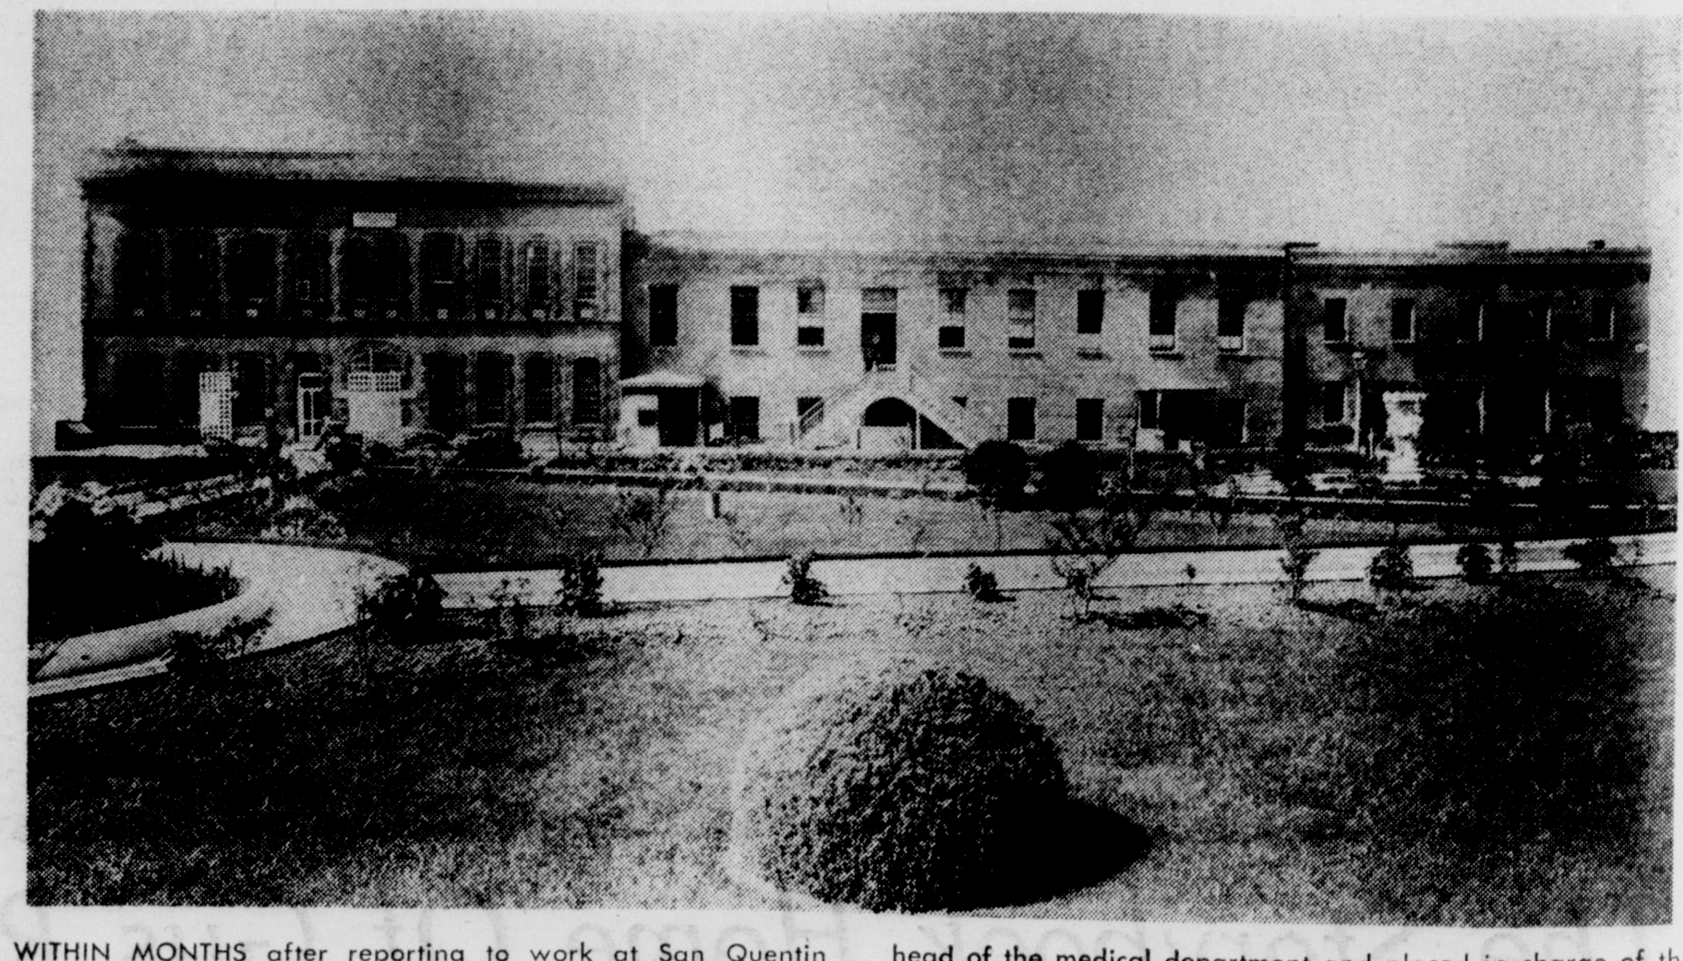
But this year, a week before New Year's Eve, Warden Hoyle had toured the cell blocks. Greeting him were a number of empty stockings protruding from the wickets of nearly every cell. It was the inmates' ironical way of calling his attention to Christmas Eve.

They had intended it as a joke. But Warden Hoyle took the hint. He sent an officer to San Quentin Point with instructions to purchase all the confections and fruit that could be found in the village. Then the prison staff was put to work stuffing these treats into the Christmas stockings.

NEXT MORNING when the prisoners awoke, they found that Santa Claus had indeed visited San Quentin Prison.

These hardened men were deeply touched. And out of appreciation for a warden who had shown both a humane spirit and a sense of humor, there was no New Year's Eve demonstration that year.



WITHIN MONTHS after reporting to work at San Quentin Prison, Dr. Leo L. Stanley, a young recent medical school graduate, had been promoted by Warden John E. Hoyle to head of the medical department and placed in charge of the hospital building that appears at left. Dr. Stanley promptly initiated an improvement program for the hospital that had been built in 1886 and had fallen into sad neglect.

Built Of Packed Earth With Loving Care

By C. B. GEARHART

On one of the shelves of a terraced slope in the beautiful tree-covered ridge area near Inverness known as Silver Hills sits what must be one of Marin County's most unusual homes.

It is the dwelling of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Rohmann. And it is unusual in several respects.

It is unusual in that it was built by the residents, themselves.

It is unusual in its principal material — pounded earth.

And it is unusual in its appearance.

From the outside it looks very much like a quaint and beautiful "Hansel and Gretel" storybook gingerbread house.

Inside, it has many equally distinctive features.

IN AN AREA of holly groves and stately giant Siamese pine trees, the Rohmanns began building their house in 1950. It was substantially, though not finally, completed several years later.

"Actually," says Rohmann, "we are still working on it from time to time."

For their building material, the Rohmanns looked to the decomposed granite that surrounded their construction site.

Landscaping and interior decorating have also commanded the attention of the Rohmanns.

THE ENTRANCE gate sets the artistic tone for the entire place with its floral decoration. There is a large decorative sculpture at the entry to the garden. There are flowers and shrubs, growing lushly, thanks to the plastic pipe irrigation system. The outside patio is moss covered, and large sweeps of discarded marble have been worked into beautiful designs. The house is embellished by carefully carved gingerbread trim.

Inside the house, the kitchen rates as a focal point with its large windows that virtually bring the outdoors inside. There's a large wood-burning oven as well as a gas range. And there's an old-fashioned harvest table.

The living room, too, has a huge window that opens up the vistas of trees and hills.

THE FRONT DOOR is beautifully carved from oak.

But perhaps the most eye-catching facet of the interior is the decorated ceiling, done by the artistically talented Mrs. Rohmann, a beautician by profession. Mrs. Rohmann achieved her unusual effect by the

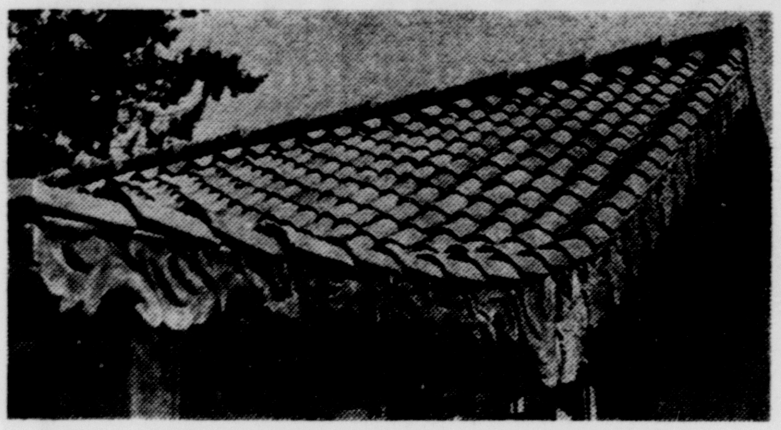
THE INTRICATELY carved oaken door leading into the Gus Rohmann home catches the eye of the visitor immediately and sets the tone for the further evidence of the creativity, ingenuity and industry of the occupants that he will encounter inside.



THE GINGERBREAD trim along the roofline of the Rohmann house is further evidence of the artistic tastes and talents of the owner-builders. Mrs. Rohmann did the carving which contributes to the Hansel and Gretel cottage effect that the Rohmanns have created in their home.

scumbling technique, painting the ceiling first silver, then blue, then removing some of the blue so that silver shows through.

Finishing metalwork in the home, including that for the fireplace, is copper.

THE HOME throughout reflects the creative tastes of the Rohmanns as well as their ingenuity. It is a home that functions in perfect harmony with its spacious, natural surroundings — cozily warm in winter, pleasantly cool in summer, always bright and cheerful.

Rohmann, now retired, is an expert in plastic extrusion processes, and a skilled tool and die maker. For many years he commuted between West Marin and his work in the East Bay.

Now handicapped by arthritis, he was once an expert alpinist and an ardent hiker.

With the finding of Silver Hills, Rohmann says, his urge for roaming and for outside adventure faded.

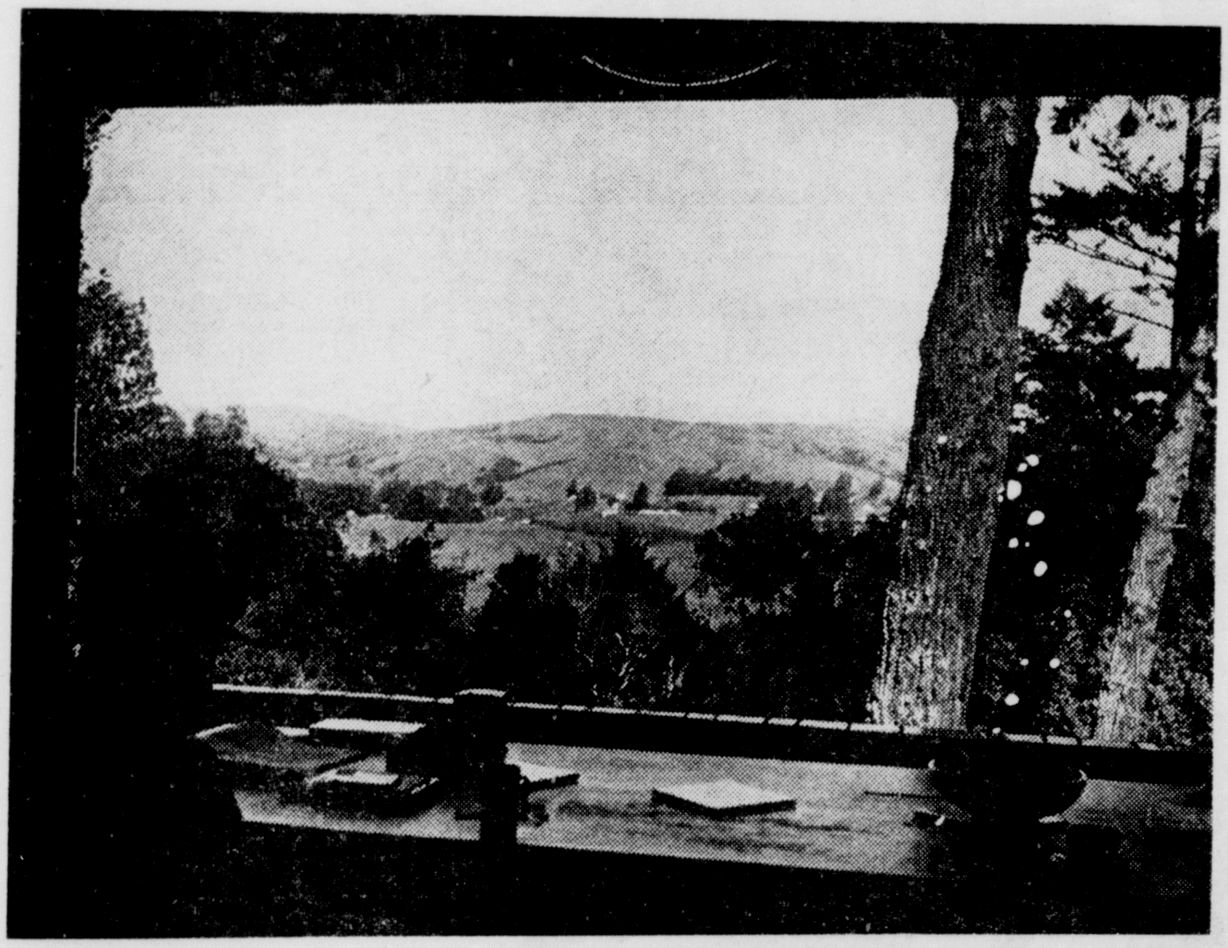
He and Mrs. Rohmann, he believes, have built with their own hands something that will endure. It brings them joy and comfort. And it brings pleasure, too, to visitors and passers-by who invariably are enchanted by the fairytale cottage of Silver Hills.

ARTHRITIS HASN'T made Gus Rohmann inactive. For instance, he cuts huge quantities of wood. And he stacks the sticks in the fashion of his native Germany, in a circular pattern that when completed will be more than head high, with the center filled in.



THROUGH THE LARGE window of the kitchen of his Silver Hills home, Gus Rohmann can look out upon a pleasing countryside vista that extends for miles. He is seated at the harvest table, enjoying a few quiet moments of contemplation.

"What Can I Do About A Plastic Stain on My Dress?"

The increased use of plastic bags is making this stain more common that it used to be. Plastic, as you know, melts when it touches hot surfaces. Even in a closed automobile in the hot sun, plastic has been known to fuse onto a garment. Hot radiators in the home or closet also melt plastic bags.

Don't become disheartened when you find a plastic bag has melted onto one of your garments. Take it to your drycleaner. He should be able to help. Then, in the future, be careful not to permit the plastic bag to come in contact with heat, especially when it covers a garment.

Speaking of plastic bags, remember, too, that they should be kept away from babies and children. Do not use them in cribs, carriages or play pens. The tragedies which have resulted from suffocation could have been prevented if plastic bags, like household poisons, had been kept out of reach of children and babies.

THE PENCIL sketches of Marin and Bay Area scenes by Tiburon artist Willard Roswell Cox are much in demand as mailing cards, matted and framed originals, and blown-up murals. They are part of an effort by Cox to capture the original, virgin flavor of an area that is fast being changed by development. At top is his depiction of an herring-netting scene on the Sausalito shoreline. At right is his drawing of a serene Muir Beach. Altogether, Cox has produced some 30 such drawings of familiar Marin scenes.

Pencil Has Power In The Hands Of Artist

By GIL PEARSON

A century ago in his play, "Richelieu," Edward Bulwer Lytton wrote: "The pen is mightier than the sword."

Today the Marin scenes sketched by Tiburon's Willard Roswell Cox seem to call for an extension of the remark — that the pencil can be greater than the pen, or for that matter, the brush.

For, while Cox is gifted with pen and brush, it is his delicate touch with the simple pencil which is netting him the sound recognition implied in a rash of purchases of his blacklead scenographic renderings. People are buying these works in the form of cards for mailing, matted and framed in original size (16 inches by 20 inches), and as enormously blown-up murals.

AS A MARINITE for the past 28 years, this artist became increasingly disturbed by the encroachment of civilization upon the county's hills, dales and waterways. There grew in him an urge to capture for posterity the virgin quality of the local countryside by recording on paper the way it still sometimes is these fleeting days — before the bulldozers churn too much of it away.

Over the past three years he has turned out 30 Marin scenes.

However, Cox is more artist than businessman. His efforts in reproducing these exquisite pencilings for the market are scant. His quantities available for mailing, for framing and for murals fall far short of production sufficient to meet the demands of tourists, new homeowners and furnishers of commercial buildings.

"I need an organized distribution," he admits. And he would like to produce his work in book form. For this he needs a writer and a publisher.

ON HIS OWN, Cox has distributed his cards for mailing and his matted full-size sketches for public buying at the Fairmont and St. Francis hotels, the San Francisco Maritime Museum, the Decor Art Gallery, the Village Fair, Varney's in Mill Valley, the Tiburon Lodge, La Botique and a few other places.

He has pencil murals in the Lobster Trap at Foster City and at the Moulin Studios in San Francisco.

His Marin subjects include Mount Tamalpais as seen from Sausalito. He selected late afternoon for this work so as to catch the deep shadows and at the same time allow for good lighting for the terraced homes.

Golden Gate was drawn from the Presidio above old Fort Winfield Scott.

His San Francisco skyline was drafted up from Fort Baker at the northern end of the Golden Gate Bridge. Because of the rapid building construction going on in the city, Cox had to change the skyline several times before completing his drawing.

In this effort Cox contrasts city frenzy with Marin's uncluttered rural beauty. It is dramatic.

His Plaza Del Mar, Sausalito city park, landmark scene punches up the ferryboat in the center background. "One of the last of the old ferries from the much happier commuter days," he remarks with unabashed nostalgia.

HIS OTHER scenes include Tiburon Vintners as a hangover of architecture of the 1880s; the San Rafael mission, one of the last of the chain of Franciscan missions; the Corinthian Yacht Harbor with Angel Island in the background as seen from the waterfront restaurants; the Point Bonita Lighthouse perched on the northern headlands entrance to the Golden Gate.

And there are many others.

Willard Cox and his wife, Gladys, live on a Tiburon slope with a view toward San Francisco. Their home is hidden among trees which provide shade over their two patios which are obviously magnificently appointed for outdoor doings.

"Yes," Cox concedes, "there have been a few parties here."

IF THIS ARTIST needs help in promoting markets for his Marin-promoting sketches — and he does — it is because he has always been an artist, with little time to get involved with distribution business.

Most of his life has been spent in the advertising illustration field. He has handled oil, watercolor and black and white media on accounts for Standard Oil and Olympia Brewing among many others. He exhibits his fine arts at the Bohemian Club each year.

On eight occasions Cox made the list for the best hundred posters, as judged by a selection of major national advertising agencies. He has taken a first prize in watercolor at the Museum of Fine Arts in Seattle, and he has exhibited works in various media in galleries on a wide front.

"My word for aspiring artists," Willard Roswell Cox says, "is to attend art schools to learn the basics." He himself studied at the California School of Fine Arts and the Frank Van Sloun School in San Francisco.

WHILE IT IS true that this artist made it his career policy to accept all the challenges the competitive field of commercial art taunts creative people with, still there were at least two occasions in his youth when Cox ran away from terrifying adversity.

He quit San Francisco's Polytechnic High School in his third year because of a stern admonition he got for not having an ROTC uniform.

Later on, after he had taken a few art lessons and a couple of little art shop jobs, he and a friend boldly decided to tackle the tremendous art opportunities in Hollywood. They called on one art director after another and on each occasion built themselves up as skilled artisans of the brush. Finally one director said, "OK, show up tomorrow for scheduled paintings of our stars. You'll have one hour with each."

But when Cox and his friend saw the list of stars they wilted.

"They were people like Rudolph Valentino, Wally Beery, Marie Dressler and Mary Pickford," Cox recalls.

And adds, "We chickened out that very night and ran away to Seattle."

ON SARDINIA, even the new hotels try to look antique to please the newly promoted tourist trade. Hotel Cervo is located on one of the Mediterreans's finest harbors.

Like the postman on a bike, a travel agent often spends his holidays taking trips — to check out new or revised travel facilities.

When 20 American Society of Travel Agents members were invited recently to visit little know Sardinia, Bert Talbot of Tiburon went along as the agent from Marin.

Following the standard procedure for their clients, the agents gathered before takeoff for a get-acquainted cocktail party at the Golden Door Restaurant, at New York's Kennedy Airport.

"After counting noses and exchanging notes on other trips, we boarded an Alitalia flight to Milan," Talbot recalls. "A variety of wines and a delicious steak dinner helped make the trip a pleasant one. Although, because of the five-hour change in time, we barely squeezed in three hours of sleep before arrival."

IN MILAN, they visited Duomo Square and the cathedral before continuing on to Genoa. In Italian style, they enjoyed there a typical seven-course lunch at a charming waterfront restaurant called I Sette Nase (The Seven Noses). The hearty lunch included antipasto, soup, a paste course, entree, salad, dessert and/or cheese and fruit, and coffee.

"The restaurant was so named because its proprietor had a family of seven little noses at home," Talbot explained.

"Later than day we boarded a Tyrrenia steamship for the overnight voyage to Porto Torres. The 200-passenger ship is thoroughly modern and operates daily between the mainland and Sardinia."

"ON ARRIVAL at the host island, we observed the solemnity of the ritual-loving Sardinians toward their dead. Aboard ship were a hearse, flowers and the deceased. As the crane lifted the hearse in a huge sling to the wharf, the mourners formed a procession. Sailors and dockhands stopped work to stand at attention, hats in hand, until the funeral celebrants passed by."

An hour's limousine ride took them through the country to Algehro, third largest city in Sardinia.

"Built around the site of an ancient Catalan fortress, the city offers visitors a great deal of history. We toured its narrow streets, fortressed dating back 500 years to the Spanish occupation, its old section and its historic churches."

"AT THE FISH market, we learned that sardines are also past history. They have been fished out or disappeared, as was the case of the sardines we formerly had on the Pacific Coast."

A major industry in modern Sardinia is wine-making. More than 200 varieties of wine are produced from grape orchards all over the island. Sardinia started opening its shores to tourists only within the last 10 years.

On the itinerary was the Bay of Caccia (Capo Caccia) with its Grottoes of Neptune.

"Capo Caccia is a magnificent bay, surrounded by perpendicular cliffs from 200 to 300 feet high," according to Talbot. "Here the aqua blue Mediterranean is contrasted by the starkness of the rugged coast line, with alternating beaches of pure white sand.

"NESTLED IN the horseshoe-shaped shoreline of the bay are two hotels, Capa Cacci and El Faro, both modern in every respect but native in furnishings.

"Our next stop was the fabled Costa Emeralda, a beautiful stretch of coast owned by the Aga Khan and his associates. The area is as picturesque as the many stories told about it, with its wandering coastline and many inlets opening into miles of sandy beaches."

"It is an orderly development, with no sign of the small, underfinanced tourist shops that can become shoddy. In the planned development of the Emeral Coast, the emphasis is on preservation of natural beauty. It is a credit to the Aga Khan's corporation, or consorium to use the European term."

FIVE HOTELS have been completed on the Emeral Coast, two deluxe, two first class and one tourist class. The luxurious Cala di Volpe was originally built as a residence for the Aga Khan. Its rooms are decorated with handwoven Sardinian fabrics and antique furniture.

The group stayed at the Hotel Cervo, a sprawling 62-room Mediterranean structure that appeared to blend into the Sardinian village.

"Located on a magnificent harbor, reported to be one of the finest in the Mediterranean, it was constructed to appear antique but it represents the ultimate in luxury," Talbot said.

"Sardinian hotels are small in the number of their rooms," he added. "During July and August, European society gathers along the coast and then accommodations become difficult to get."

THE GROUP'S itinerary took it next to the island's capital, Cagliara, a busy, commercial city. "Our tour included a visit to a hunting lodge in the mountains east of the city where the villagers were holding a boar feast. In Sardinian costumes, a group of about 30 boys and girls played and sang native music and danced."

In the few days remaining, the agents visited the archeologically interesting city of Nora and the historic Nuraghic village of Marumini.

"We were impressed by the contrasts of Sardinia and its development," Talbot reflected. "We agreed that a visit to Sardinia with its natural beauty and history would be well worth the time and expense for American tourists. It's a lovely and unusual spot to 'get away from it all.' "

OLYMPIC CHAMPIONS by Carli Laklan; Funk & Wagnalls, 163 pages, $4.95.

HIGH ON THE WILD WITH HEMINGWAY by Lloyd R. Arnold; Caxton Printers, 343 pages, $9.95.

The Olympic Games unquestionably provide a showcase for the sports world at its finest.

Compared to the international amateur spectacle, the professional extravaganzas, the World Series, the Rose Bowl, the Wembley Cup, et al, seem almost grimy in their commercialism and hysteria.

The Olympics achieve this pinnacle despite a tendency by its bureaucratic officialdom to bumble, despite the jarring habit of some coaches to complain and carp, and despite the persistent efforts of the news media to inject jingoism where none belongs, and to inflate minor incidents into crisis proportions.

The reasons why the Olympics have survived these drawbacks and generally achieved their primary purpose of creating goodwill that transcends national boundaries can be found in the special qualities of the men and women who compete. They have truly been plucked from the flower of humanity.

This is borne out by Carli Laklan's new book, "Olympic Champions: Why They Win." It may well be a book intended principally for teen-agers, but it speaks to all ages.

In a time when youth, especially, is searching for meaning in life, we are told that many before them have found it in athletic endeavors. But they have found it in a special kind of sports, not so much concerned with defeating another person or with achieving personal glory or enriching their purses as with realizing that inner satisfaction that comes from knowing one has performed to his utmost capacity. They compete less against their fellow man than against their own personal limitations — and against time, distance and standards of perfection.

This challenge seems to bring out the very best in man and woman.

Miss Laklan recites case after case in which this has proven true. She tells of athletes like Wilma Rudolph, Al Oerter, Babe Didriksen, Glenn Cunningham, Jean-Claude Killy, Eugenio Monti, Bob Richards, Hal Connolly, Vladimir Kuts, Sonja Henie, who surmounted great handicaps through sheer grit, determination and application.

To the author's credit, she does not dwell solely upon Americans (many nationalities are included among her heroes and heroines) nor does she focus entirely upon gold medal winners. That rarity, a woman sportswriter, she writes very well. She could have used an assist from a veteran sports editor to eliminate such flubs as Tulare, Okla., as Californian Bob Mathias' hometown and an American team affiliation for Austrian Toni Sailer. But her stories read easily and hang together nicely.

WILMA RUDOLPH
Success despite adversity

There's a point that shines through for both parents and youngsters. Those who succeeded in the Olympics have been dedicated and inspired young people who have sacrificed hundreds of hours from the usual child and teen-age interests for their training. But, for them, it has all been a source of enjoyment. Without that spirit, it would have been a mistake for them to have set their sights upon Olympic medals. And it would have been a more grievous error for parents to have forced them into such a grueling program.

Like show business and the arts, sports have had too many parents who have attempted to make their own unrealized dreams come true at the expense of their off-spring's childhood. The urge to compete — and to prepare adequately — should spring naturally from the child himself. It was thus with the Olympic stars whose ordeals and triumphs have been recorded by Miss Laklan.

IN 1939 Ernest Hemingway came for a stay at the Lodge in Sun Valley, Idaho, to work at writing "For Whom the Bell Tolls," and to enjoy the rugged outdoors of the primitive country around.

There he began a relationship with Lloyd (Pappy) Arnold, Sun Valley public relations man and photographer, that was to ripen into friendship and to continue through the years.

In the course of that comraderie, sometimes in his professional capacity, sometimes as a friend, Arnold was to snap hundreds of pictures of the famed writer.

Now, in "High on the Wild With Hemingway," published appropriately by the small but energetic Caldwell, Idaho, firm of Caxton Printers Ltd., Arnold shares with other Hemingway admirers 160 of his pictures — of the Idaho country, of its people, but mostly of Hemingway. Too often, the photographs lack the real candid quality that might best reflect the character of their subject. We find the targets obviously posed and staring at the camera lens. But there are exceptions. And a Hemingway picture remains a Hemingway picture, whatever its faults, charged with the dynamism and the complexity of the man. So we have Hemingway hunting, partying, working, relaxing, exploring. And showing up quite frequently with Hemingway is actor Gary Cooper, whom the novelist first met at Sun Valley and with whom a close friendship developed.

Arnold has accompanied his photos with a text recalling the Sun Valley of that time and his association with Hemingway. It is a frankly admiring, non-critical view of the writer that seems to miss some facets of the Hemingway character others have found both fascinating and bewildering. But perhaps, as Arnold insists, Hemingway among the Sawtooth and Pioneer mountains was a different man than Hemingway in Paris, in Spain, in New York, or elsewhere.

As John H. Hemingway puts it in a brief forward: "The author was a good and true friend of Papa's over a span of 22 years. He has remained my friend and my family's for that long and more. . . . This book is Lloyd's sympathetic and evocative testimony to an important facet of my father's life."

Hemingway fans will find the well-written, well-designed and well-printed book a thoroughly pleasurable experience — and an escape from the controversy and complexities that usually enter into any discussion of their favorite author.

AN ARABIAN view of the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy is offered by M. T. Mehdi in a $1.95 paperback, "Kennedy and Sirhan: Why?," published by New World Press of New York.

The writer, secretary-general of the Action Committee on American-Arab Relations and a bitter critic of Israel in earlier books, decries the slaying, but maintains Sirhan Sirhan was driven to murder by disillusionment with American politics and particularly the "pro-Zionist" positions of President Lyndon B. Johnson. Unable to reach Johnson, Mehdi says, Sirhan shot Kennedy instead.

Had the American people brought pressure upon the politicians to alter their pro-Israel course, he argues, the murder would never have occurred. Therefore they must shoulder major blame. And because of pro-Jewish, pro-Kennedy bias, he claims, Sirhan will be unable to receive a fair trial from Americans.

Like so much of the pro-Arab propaganda, the Mehdi argument is too shrilly and hysterically pitched, too obviously biased to be persuasive. His application of the "preventive war" theory to Sirhan's action is typically tasteless and ill-conceived.

A note from the publisher says the author is contributing profits from the book's sales "to prevent the sale of phantom jets to Israel so that Mr. Kennedy's death will not be a wasted tragedy.'

DOVER PUBLICATIONS has begun a project of reprinting in its distinctive quality paperback format "The Fairytale Collections of Joseph Jacobs."

The first three volumes are "English Fairy Tales," "More English Fairy Tales" and "Celtic Fairy Tales," priced at $1.75 each. Two more books to appear later will complete the series.

Jacobs was something of a Hans Christian Andersen, Australian-born, residing and studying in England and dying in the United States in 1916. He was a brilliant folklorist and storyteller with British culture as his specialty. The first three reprints include such all-time favorites as "Jack and the Beanstalk," "Dick Whittington and His Cat," "King O'Toole and His Goose," etc. Some youngsters will miss the elaborate color illustrations expected in today's reprints of such classics, but John D. Batten's original drawings have been included and have a charm of their own.

It is the kind of thing that may have as strong or stronger appeal for adult students of folklore as for children.

"THE AMERICAN Civil War" from Sir Winston Churchill's classic "History of the English-Speaking Peoples" has been reprinted as a $1.95 Apollo Editions paperback, complete with 64 historic photographs from the Library of Congress collection.

APOLLO EDITIONS has also issued as a $1.95 paperback, Joseph Wood Krutch's "Grand Canyon: Today and All Its Yesterdays,'' which in hardcover a decade ago caused James Ramsey Ullman to say: "Rarely have I found so beautiful a blend of book and subject. Reading Mr. Krutch's pages, one not only sees and feels the Grand Canyon — but understands it."

SWEDENBORG Foundation Inc. of New York has reprinted George Trobridge's "Swedenborg: Life and Teachings," as a $1 paperback or $1.95 clothbound book. It is a biography of the theologian, Emanuel Swedenborg.

Sleuths & Suspense

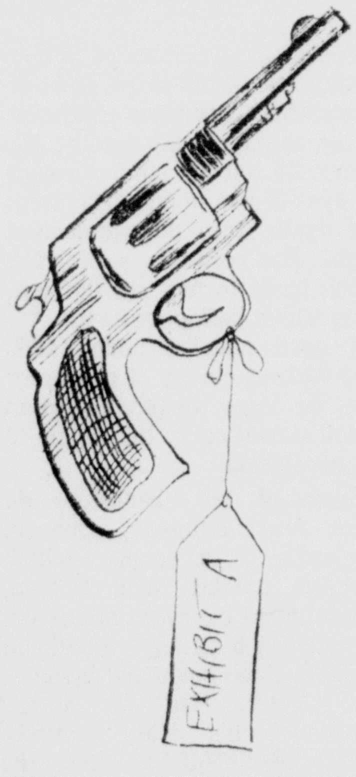
On a bright clear morning following several days of torrential rains, with pools of water dotting the English countryside, a farmer and his dog crossed the Ashmead road and discovered a skeleton where a mound of grass had washed away.

The gory find was announced by the CID to be the bodies of two unknown small children, aged about 7, buried many years before. The news was carried by even the London papers and read by John Morton, a successful architect and native of Ashmead. Morton felt that he should tell the police about his childhood memory of when, as a 7-year-old, he had climbed the forbidden wall around the Maulden estate, near the gravesite, and had secretly played with a boy and girl his age.

Frustrated by lack of clues and a non-cooperative silence on the part of the villagers, Chief Inspector Derwent prevailed upon Morton to come to Ashmead. The villagers, he felt, might talk to a native returning on a visit. So together they saw the investigation through to its surprise ending.



This is a superior Crime Club suspense story. The author, a Welshman, has both mysteries and science fiction novels to his credit, including "The Reluctant Medium."

Life's Mysteries And Death's Certainty

ANTI-MEMOIRS by Andre Malraux; Holt, Rinehart & Winston, 420 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by Laurel Shapiro.

With the appearance of these unique memoirs, an almost legendary hero-novelist has come back from history, so to speak.

Andre Malraux never wrote from the sidelines. He was persistently in the thick of great events: the Spanish Civil War, the Chinese Revolution, the French Resistance. Between wars he explored the exotic hinterlands of Asia and Africa. Rarely have the roles of political activist, adventurer and artist been so fused in one individual.

It is to his great credit that it is not only the memories of the glamorous soldier-explorer that hold us enthralled; the thoughts of the mature Malraux, De Gaulle's minister of culture, dominate the book.

Readers hoping for the story of his life will be disappointed. Even though his own past is his material, these are not, in the usual sense, memoirs of that past. On a long vacation cruise to the East he found that certain persisting memories of previous visits, of portions of his novels, juxtaposed with his present observations, compelled the book to be written and so titled because . . . "it answers questions which memories do not pose and does not answer those which they do."

In a prose often of Proustian majesty, spreading wider and wider nets of allusions, he develops from the intermingling of experiences, observations and fiction, a pattern that always circles back, sooner or later, to the great mysteries of life in relation to certain death, mysteries he has found repeated down the decades, in peace and in war, reverberating from one civilization to another. "I have always been fascinated by the human condition."

And: ". . . to reflect upon life, life in relation to death, is perhaps no more than to intensify one's questions." In a sense, the presence of death has permeated all of Malraux's serious writing. In this book he has intensified his questions.

He probes the meaning of imminent death as it has come to him; as a resistance officer in the hands of the Germans, in a hurricane-tossed airplane (returning from a search for the lost city of the Queen of Sheba), as a soldier caught in a German tank trap.

These tense sections, in contrast to the reflective passages, are written as stark reporting and are painfully vivid, probably unsurpassed in contemporary literature for bare, brute suspense.

But there is never enough evidence. Malraux has interviewed many others, men and women, who have also come back from the edge of death. For all the 25 years of horror stories that have dulled our nerves, he brings us up against the concentration camps as if for the first time.

ANDRE MALRAUX
In the thick of things

As a world figure himself, and as a minister of France, he has met with the great men of today, and it is the reader's great good luck that interviews with Nehru, Mao and De Gaulle are included here.

Malraux met with the Asians in his official capacity, and from this vantage point, with his astonishing knowledge of their cultures, and his novelist's intuition, we are shown these men in the round, as we have never seen them before. Only De Gaulle, to whom Malraux is intensely loyal, comes through flat, a remote (though theatrical) demigod.

Perhaps Malraux's answer in this monumental search for the meaning of life in relation to death, "the light out of darkness," is his assumption that "man is only fully alive when he is fully aware of death."

But this answer, if that is what it is, becomes insignificant lifted out of the vast pageantry woven as he asked it. It is the many-leveled pattern of his questions, not his conclusion, that make this a book that towers above the customary literary categories.

The University: For Education Or For Money-Making?

THE CLOSED CORPORATION by James Ridgeway; Random House, 220 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

"In all likelihood," begins this book, "most Americans believe . . . that universities are places where professors teach students. They are wrong. In fact, the university looks more like a center for industrial activity than a community of scholars."

This is the theme of "The Closed Corporation," by James Ridgeway, which is sub-titled (for obscure reasons) "American Universities in Crisis."

Far from being in crisis, according to Ridgeway, most of the universities are making money hand over fist in secret research, defense contracts, real estate speculation and sundry investments, besides enabling many members of their faculties to enrich themselves in various ways aside from their salaries. It would appear to be the students who are in crisis.

"The undergraduate students," writes Ridgeway, "lie in campus holding pens, while graduate apprentices read them stories. The stories are boring, and students turn to making their own 'free universities' or spend their time hatching political revolutions on the outside."

Ridgeway, an upstate New York native who cut his journalistic teeth on the Wall Street Journal, free-lanced in England and is now on the staff of the New Republic, presents no balanced appraisal of the non-academic and often-questionable activities of universities in his volume. He is a pamphleteer, in the old tradition. He aims to stir things up, and this book should do it.

The uses of universities as fronts and handmaidens for entrenched interests — and particularly for the Department of Defense — is quite thoroughly explored, with an appendix listing the 100 chief university beneficiaries of defense contracts.

The exposure pretty thoroughly peels away the pretense of disinterested public service behind which university administrators are fond of concealing their money-making manipulations. Some of the ways used by these institutions of higher learning and their "research institutes" would bring down conflict-of-interest prosecutions on anyone else on the public payroll. But then, as Ridgeway emphasizes, the universities' decisions are made in secret and their books never opened to the public.

Ridgeway has some solutions, foremost of which is this:

"Since educational institutions are generally regarded as serving a public function, and financed to a large extent by the general citizenry, they ought to be responsible to the public."

His book, one-sided though it is, presents rather convincing evidence that they are not.

THE DEPRESSED

Ex-Marinite Wesley Baker On Souring Of The Spirit

BELIEVER IN HELL by Rev. Wesley C. Baker; Westminster, 144 pages, $4.75. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Former Marin pastor Rev. Wesley C. Baker, now an executive with the Commission on Ecumenical Mission and Relations of the Presbyterian Church, has selected the depression that sometimes afflicts the human being and sours his spirit as his subject for his fourth book.

His commentary is based partially upon his Biblical background, partially upon his contacts as a counselor, and partially upon personal experience.

He begins with an exploration of depression and its destructive elements — the brooding, self-deception, defeat and insulation of the sufferer. He moves on then to a study of the Bible and the light it can provide for the depressed mind. Then he closes with a classic case history of a final triumph of inspiration over despair.

As always, Reverend Baker writes cogently and on a contemporary plane, his reports and observations always relative to the conditions and the problems of today. It is Biblically rooted counseling, yet more truly in tune with 1968 realities than all the flippant advice of the quick and easy decision Dear Abbys and Ann Landers.

The Professors As Just People

Intelligence and talent are quite different attributes in the human animal. They are not necessarily antithetical nor unrelated. They are just simply different.

A clear example of this can be seen in the novel, "The Horses of Instruction," by Hazard Adams, who is a professor and chairman of the department of English at the University of California's Irvine campus.

Adams tries to show his readers that college professors and their associates are just people, like everyone else. They have their hopes and disappointments, their governable and ungovernable emotions, their small successes and their monumental failures. He tells you these things in clear and expressive language — you can't quarrel with his syntax.

The trouble is that you can't remember who said what, and why.

This is because he ignores one of the basic principles of fiction writing, use of the single point of view, which prevents confusion in the mind of the reader. He prefers to tell his story through the eyes of two main characters, and again from the omniscient angle. The result is a blurring which tends to blot out the conflicts which define a story.

A good novelist understands that without clarity of character line, he loses the orchestration which should carry the theme to its conclusion.

Some of the characters do have real definition. One in particular is a young English teacher named Will Person, whose talent as a poet allows expression in a strongly emotional fashion which holds and involves the reader. Had the author presented his story entirely from this point of view, he might very well have produced a successful novel.

Even so, it will probably be appreciated by many college instructors who have felt the blows of academic in-fighting, and by many more who are spending their lives trying to teach the "unteachable subject."

HAZARD ADAMS
On academic in-fighting

The average reader will react in one of two ways — with indifference or revulsion toward these baffling intellectuals, whom he considers snobs and impractical visionaries. It is most unlikely that he will ever take the time to pursue their acquaintanceship.

SOME NEW BOOKS FOR THE JUNIORS

It's time to consider the Christmas books, always an enjoyable assignment, with the anthologies, of course, deserving first attention.

"The Christmas Book" (Dutton, $4.95) was compiled by James Reeves and illustrated by Raymond Briggs, both English, and has the special fine, warm feeling of the yule season in that country.

The selections include such perennials as Charles Dickens' description of Christmas at the Cratchits and Dylan Thomas' memories of a boyhood holiday in Wales. William Shakespeare, Thomas Hardy, Samuel Pepys, Eugene Field, Robert Herrick, Walter de la Mare, Kenneth Grahame and Alfred Tennyson are among the many others represented in the short stories, excerpts, essays, remembrances, poems and carols that make up the collection. Yes, "The Twelve Days of Christmas" and Clement Moore's "The Night Before Christmas" are there, as well.

"Happy Christmas" (Westminster, $5.95) is also the work of English anthologizers, William Kean Seymour and John Smith, and a British illustrator, Beryl Sanders. It is a larger book. Dickens, Thomas, Pepys, Hardy, Grahame and Herrick appear in it, too, along with the likes of J. B. Priestley, Dorothy Wordsworth, Winifred Holtby, Hilaire Belloc, Samuel Coleridge, Boris Pasternak, S. J. Perelman, William Carlos Williams, C. Day Lewis, John Aubrey, Ogden Nash, George Eliot, Louisa Mae Alcott, Joseph Conrad, Horace Walpole, Charles Lamb, Charlotte Bronte and William Makepeace Thackeray.

The prose pieces in this one tend to be somewhat shorter, and it has a more international flavor. Both books are nicely illustrated, "Happy Christmas" the more profusely. And either book is the kind that will bring the true holiday spirit into the home when read aloud around the family circle, perhaps a few stories, poems and pieces per evening as the November and December days tick off and Christiandom's most wondrous celebration draws near.

The Clement C. Moore classic, "A Visit From St. Nicholas" or "'Twas the Night Before Christmas," has been given a new printing by McGraw-Hill ($2.95), this time with illustrations by talented Paul Galdone. One hundred and sixty-five years after the poem was first published, it still retains its delightful charm. And Galdone's lively, merry color illustrations enhance that appeal.

Two new books deal with rural American Christmases where the observances are simpler, but all the more enjoyable and meaningful.

"A Long Ago Christmas" (Putnam, $3.50) by Patricia Miles Martin, with illustrations by Albert Orbaan, tells the story of a prairie farm family where young Darius awaits anxiously the arrival of Christmas, hoping for snow and sled. The non-commercial spirit of the holidays of that time is splendidly portrayed, and there is a warmly nostalgic quality to the story.

"Renfro's Christmas" (Viking, $3.50) is more contemporary, but its rural location also lends it a nostalgic quality. Renfroe is 8, and as he goes through the excitement of the pre-Christmas days, and finally the Christmas Eve community party at the schoolhouse, he learns a lesson on giving. Author Robert Burch has done an unusually good job of storytelling in this cheerful, humorous tale. Rocco Negri is the illustrator.

"First Carols" (Walck, $1.95) is an exquisite little book, jewel-like in size and design, assembling such beloved Christmas songs as "O Little Town of Bethlehem" and "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear," with delicate artwork by Brenda Meredith Seymour. The tiny book was lovingly printed in Holland.

"Oliver and His Friends" (Random House, $1.95) by Mary Hastings qualifies as a Christmas book because of its association with Charles Dickens who was Mr. Christmas to so many of us. The book is adapted from the screenplay which in turn was adapted from Lionel Bart's stage hit, "Oliver!" which in turn was adapted from Dickens' immortal "Oliver Twist." The illustrations are color and black and white photographs taken from the motion picture. It makes for a lively and entertaining package, full of life, zest, color and tradition.

Some other new books for the juniors:

Vinson Brown, a Healdsburg resident, is one of our most competent and most effective writers of nature books for youngsters at the upper primary - junior high school level. "How to Follow the Adventures of Insects" (Little, Brown, $4.50) is demonstrative of Brown's special ability. He begins with a discussion of just what insects are, and goes on to describe their habits and habitats, the scientist's approach to them, and such special subjects as collecting, preserving, mounting, studying, tracing and understanding them. There are drawings by Julia Iltis. It is an excellent guide for the child seriously interested in the fascinating "bug world."

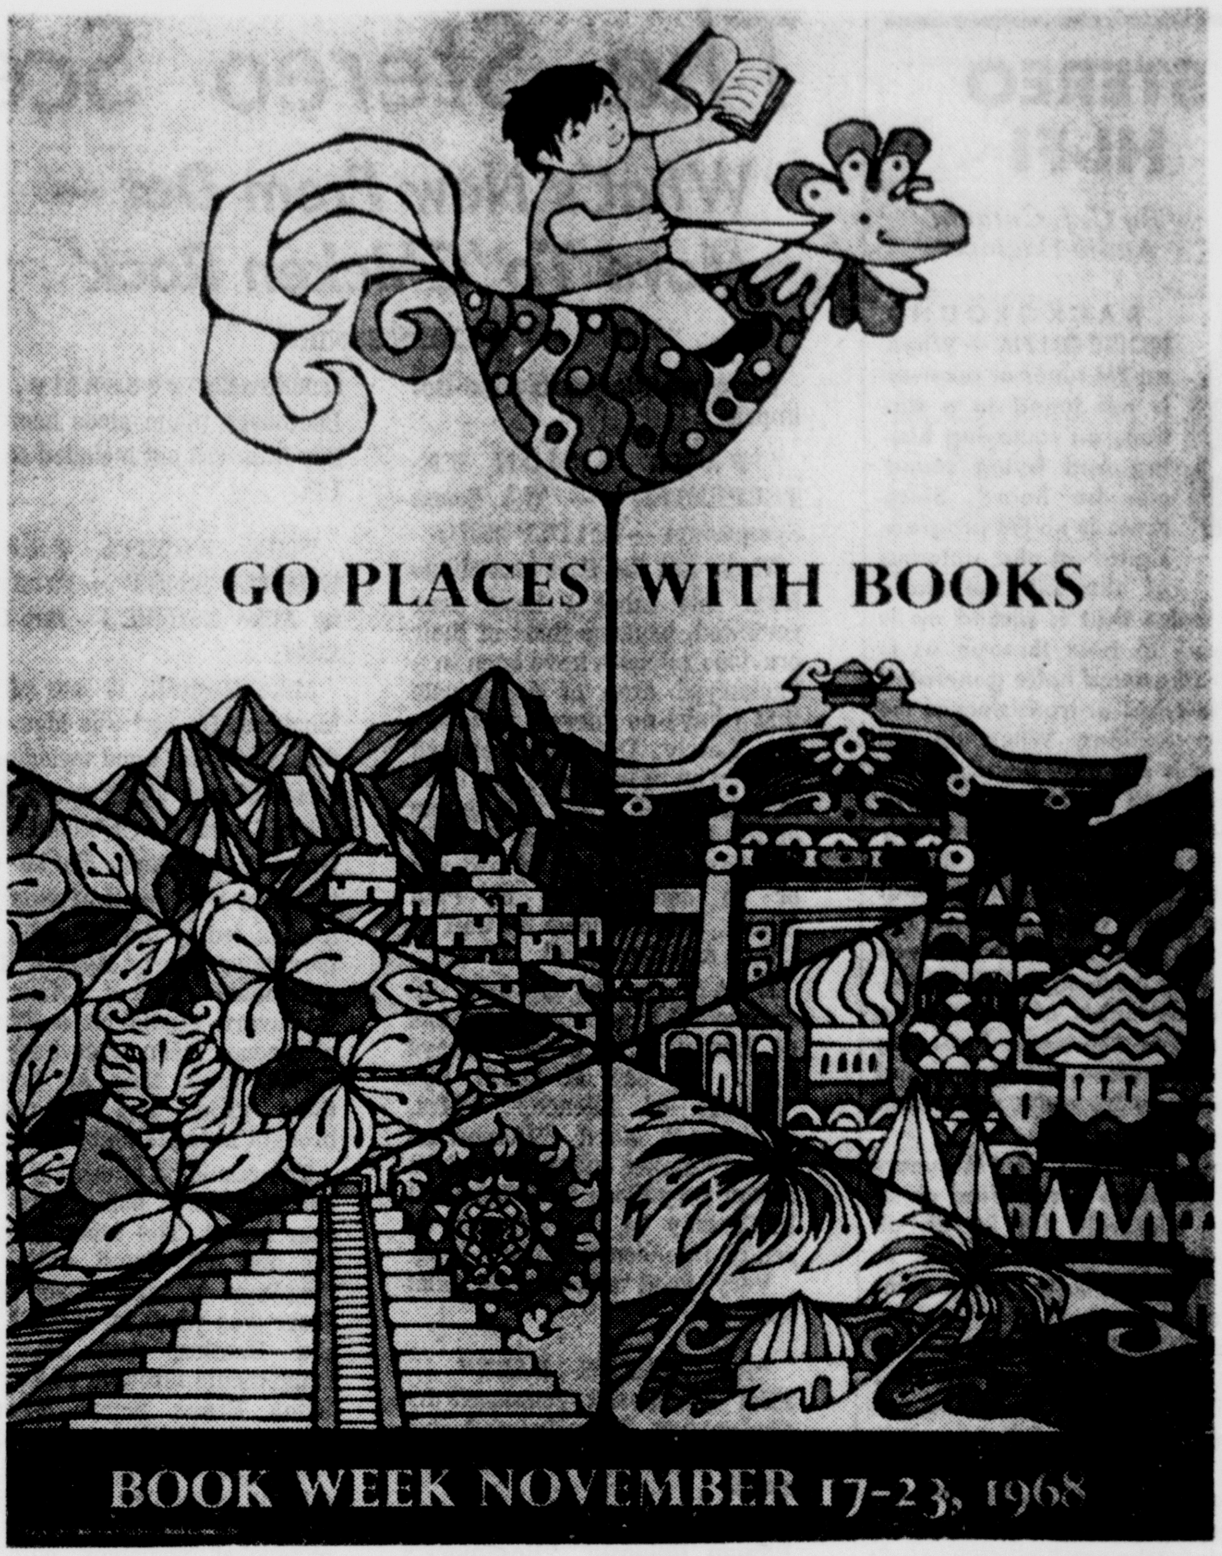
ABC books continue to rate high in popularity with the tykes. "The Alphabet Book" (Four Winds, $3.72) by Rodney Peppe assigns a familiar noun for each of the 26 letters, and uses it in a sentence. Accompanying each statement is a humor-filled illustration in color. And there is a tie-in between each pair of facing pages. It's a book with a catchy lilt and fun-appeal.

Women are sometimes overlooked in our listings of heroic Americans. Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, long on courage herself, and H. Paul Jeffers set out to remedy that oversight in "Gallant Women" (McGraw-Hill, $4.75). It tells for young readers the stories of such outstanding U.S. women as Dolly Madison, Harriet Tubman, Harriet Beecher Stowe, Clara Barton, Annie Sullivan, Amelia Earhart, Althea Gibson and Eleanor Roosevelt. Jeffers previously collaborated with Sen. Everett Dirksen on "Gallant Men."

Part of Random House's Landmark Giant series is "The Landmark History of the American People From Plymouth to Appomattox" ($3.95) by Daniel J. Boorstin. It is a generously illustrated and generally successful attempt to point out the impact upon American culture and character of the exciting events of our earlier, formative years. It is good history, and easy reading.

"What Do You Get?" (Random House, $1.95) is another of those entertaining pop-up books that have resulted in a new title in publishing — paper engineering. This time the credit goes to Tor Lokvig, while Jack Hanrahan and Phil Hahn are listed as the authors. It's a sort of riddle book for youngsters, with the answers jumping out from the pages in the animated pop-up format. For instance: "What do you get when you cross an alligator with a head of lettuce?" Answer: "A big green salad that eats you!" And the toothy three-dimensional illustration looks like it is capable of doing exactly that.

Young people can have a lot of fun and fool their friends while at the same time following scientific principles in "Fun and Tricks for Young Scientists," by George Barr, illustrated by Mildred Waltrip (McGraw-Hill, $4.50). There are many riddles, jokes and puzzles — how to dissolve coins in water etc. This is one of the Young Scientists series.



CHILDREN'S BOOK Week is being observed next week with the theme "Go Places With Books." The poster above was designed by Ellen Raskin for the Children's Book Council which sponsors the observance.

Lowly Legume Deserves Greater Consideration

THE SOYBEAN COOKBOOK by Dorothea Van Gundy Jones; Arco, 240 pages, paperback, $1.45. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

It is Americans' own loss that they have adopted an attitude of snobbish disinterest toward one of nature's most wholesome and most plentiful foods, the soybean.

Nutritionists have been attempting to counteract that foolish neglect by pointing out that the soybean, while low in calories, is wonderfully rich in essential nutrients and reasonable in cost. Their biggest obstacle seems to be convincing the public that this legume need not be tasteless, but can be transformed into appetizing dishes.

Books such as this (first published in 1963 and now reissued) and earlier ones by Mildred Lager have done much to combat American indifference toward the soybean.

"The Soybean Cookbook" contains some 350 recipes using the beans and bean products — soybean flour, soy milk — in creative ways that range from soups to desserts.

In an era of growing concern over the world food supply picture, the soybean offers one bright ray of hope. It deserves this kind of attention.

BACKGROUND NOISE ON FM — When an FM tuner or receiver is not tuned to a station, an annoying hissing and frying sound can be heard. Since there is no FM program signal at the antenna of the set, the static type noise that is picked up is allowed to pass through as is the background noise generated by the tubes or transistors of the tuning sections. When an FM station is properly tuned in, this background hissing and frying drops down in level. The stronger the signal from the station the lower will be the background noise level. Weak stations, FM stations that are not received with very much signal at the antenna terminals of the set, do not reduce the noise level very much; therefore, the hissing and frying may be quite noticeable in the background.

The sensitivity of FM tuners and receivers is specified as so many microvolts for 30 db of quieting — IHF standards. A typical specification for a component type receiver is 2 microvolts for 30 db, IHFM. This means that a signal level as low as 2 millionths of a volt at the antenna terminals of the receiver will reduce the noise hum and distortion to 30 decibels below the average program sound coming from the set. The db is a unit of level, and a reduction of 30 db in noise provides a satisfactory signal in accordance with the Institute of High Fidelity Manufacturers, IHFM standards. If more than 2 microvolts is present at the antenna terminals of the set, the noise level will be reduced more than 30 db and thus the program sound will be clearer. The specification states that any signal less than 2 microvolts will not provide enough noise reduction for good listening.

Most listeners that complain of hissing and frying noise on FM do not have a proper antenna. Except for some good signal locations, indoor FM antennas do not provide enough reception. The signal is weak and contains noise pickup from nearby power cords to lamps, lighting, etc. The indoor antenna is not very directive so it may be picking up additional signals that bounce from nearby hills. To insure that sufficient signal arrives at the antenna terminals of the receiver, an outside FM antenna should be used. This should be one with several elements to provide directional characteristics; thus allowing a strong signal to be received from the station. Visit us and ask about our Finco FM antennas.

What's New From Dot — Move To 'Chicken Rock'

By JOHN SUNIER

Some records bearing the Dot imprint:

"PAUL SIMON INTERPRETED" — The Sound Symposium — Dot DLP 25871:

These are the first recordings from this label I have ever reviewed, because most of their previous releases have been in a hackneyed area of pop music that I have no interest in covering. Lately, Dot has branched out into an area some refer to as "chicken rock," and this is one of the better examples: a light and tasteful concert of a dozen or so compositions of Paul Simon, better known as half of Simon and Garfunkel.

Hearing the straight instrumental treatments (with lots of harpsichord which always turns me on) of tunes like "Sounds of Silence," "Mrs. Robinson," and "Homeward Bound" makes one want to place Simon very close to Lennon and McCartney in the creation of really fine contemporary song.

Very good stereo and quiet surfaces.

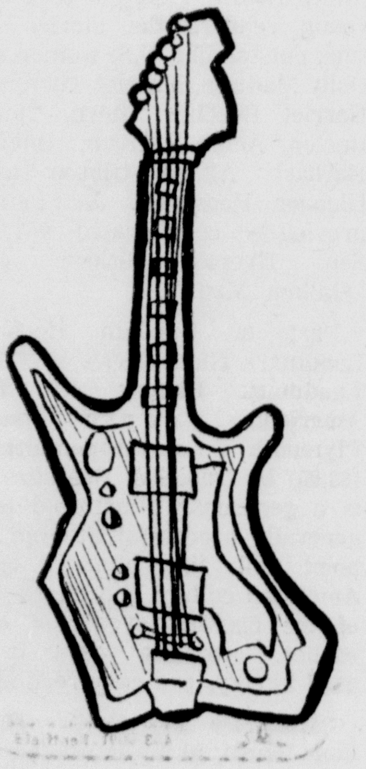
A chillingly well-done film by Roman Polanski, "Rosemary's Baby" has been as much a subject of heated debate among even casual movie-goers as the brilliant "2001: Space Odyssey."

While this score is very good with the film and for those who have seen the film, I doubt if it would stand up for the uninitiated. There are lots of electronic distortions of the basically conservative score, plus some interesting electronic harpsichord solos. The main theme sounds alone more like it belongs with a sad Italian film than a witch story in a New York setting.

Surprisingly, with all the classics (Mozart, Strauss, etc.) being popularized via film soundtracks recently, the Beethoven piano piece heard in this film was not included on the LP.



"THE WICHITA TRAIN WHISTLE SINGS" — Presented by Mike Nesmith — Dot DLP 25861:

Mike Nesmith is one of the Monkees. He had this idea, see, that a big, big band swinging in a sort of rock idiom and playing all his own tunes would be a Great New Sound. So he contacted a big bunch of musician friends, led by the erstwhile jazz trumpeter Shorty Rogers. They assembled in a Sunset Boulevard studio on a Sunday afternoon, when everybody got double time, they all brought their girls, and a caterer brought in booze and snacks.

The result? A smashing party, and the worst pop record I've ever heard. The tunes are corny and all sound alike, the drummer is worse than Ringo Starr was when he started with the Beatles, and the arrangements throw in bits of Tiajuana Brass, Sousa, Flatt & Scruggs, Stravinsky in such a disorganized fashion that it frequently sounds as though music from two different studios got channeled somehow onto the same final tape. After two complete breakdowns during the music, with general pandemonium in the studio demonstrating clearly that everybody is zonked out of their minds, someone yells a final "Let's Eat!"

"THE HANDWRITING ON THE WALL" — The Sounds of Graffiti, narrated by Jack Raymond and Haskell Barkin — Atlantic SD 8178:

A short, sweet and simple humor production based on the increasingly witty and sophisticated writings-on-the-wall which someone has collected around the country. Places such as ad agency restrooms, car bumpers and the Haight - Ashbury were scoured for this collection, arranged in categories such as Sex, Hippies, Advertising, Religion, etc. Example: "Support the War on Poverty — Kill a Pauper."

While these would be as funny to read as to hear, the LP is worth hearing at least once.

"HERE COMES THE BIRD" — Written and Performed by Kenny Somls and Gail Parent — Atlantic SD 8159:

This is a bit late to be reviewing a take-off on the Lynda Bird wedding, but I just received it. Besides the happy pair, the voices of Ladybird, LBJ, Luci and George Hamilton are heard. Some very funny bits, especially Lynda's "last phone call" to George.

THE FALLEN LEADER

The drums beat on like the march of years,
Pounding and never stopping —
The heartbeat of a nation's fears,
Like teardrops gently dropping.

The horse's saddle empty and bare,
He'll never ride again —
For though the leader once rode there
Our President was slain.

Beside his grave the lasting flame
Will burn forever on,
And like his ever spreading fame
Grows brighter with each dawn.

It's Tulip-Planting Time In Marin, So Get Out The Bulbs

Garden Page

Fortunate is he who has already purchased his tulip bulbs for fall planting.

Nurserymen in Marin report that they are now in very short supply. There has been an unprecedented demand for them this autumn.

Nevertheless, if you failed to buy them earlier, you might still find some, even though it may take a bit of hunting.

Acquired earlier or now, this is the time for planting tulip bulbs.

SOME TIPS FOR planting-time:

Too often gardeners make the mistake of planting their tulips in rows, like so many wooden soldiers, or too sparsely, so that the blooms do not really have an opportunity to show off their full glory. For the best effect, mass them heavily.

Because they are the very essence of formality, tulips are best given whole beds to themselves and not mixed with other flowers.

If it's not too late, select the large-size bulbs when you make your purchases. They give better results.

Many Californians are beginning to plant their tulip bulbs deeper than in former years — sometimes eight or nine inches deep. They claim this pays off with stouter root systems to support the tall-stemmed, heavily-bloomed beauties.

The bottom of the refrigerator (but not the freezer) makes an ideal storage place for tulip bulbs while awaiting planting.

Watering is very important for tulips. See that the bulbs get plenty of water from planting time through their blooming period.

THE BEST-KNOWN types are the Cottage and Darwin tulips. But a wide variety of forms is available.

The shaggy Parrot with its fringed petals and streaked coloration has zoomed in popularity in Marin County. Less frequently seen species all have their special attributes and attractions. As a result, the tulip grower has at his disposal an endless array of colors, sizes and forms. The two things they all have in common are dignity and beauty.

TULIPS LEND a special touch of formality and elegance to the garden. They are planted somewhat later in the fall than most other bulbs. But that time has arrived.

Be Prepared: Schedule Pre-Winter Work Day Soon In Your Yard

With mid-November showing on the calendar, a pre-winter work day might well be in order for Marinites this weekend.

Here are some of the chores that should be taken care of before the worst winter storms come roaring in off the Pacific:

FIRST LOOK AT the trees and shrubs that might suffer from high winds. Have they been properly staked? And are the stakes in good repair? Restraining wires might be advisable for some trees. But also check to make sure that trees are not being girdled and damaged by ties and wires applied in earlier years.

Long canes from climbing roses should be firmly anchored.

Look over the yard for drainage trouble spots. Nothing good will come of it if water stands in low spots on the lawn. Fill in these holes gradually with loam and peat moss, steer manure or other planter mix.

FLOWER BEDS that remain soggy can be improved by raising them. Simply build a brick or redwood border around the beds, then add new soil to old.

An over-seeding of Bermuda grass lawns with annual rye grass is a wise late autumn project if you want a green lawn through the winter. Also apply soil conditioners and lawn food.

Last but not least, now's the time for a general clean-up — removing faded annuals, lifting spent dahlias and gladioli, raking leaves from flower beds and lawn, picking up fallen twigs, etc.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

✓Azaleas are to be found in bloom in the nurseries now, and thus can be selected by the gardener in the exact color he desires.

✓Pay particular attention when you visit your nursery to the newly arrived "balled in burlap" field-grown stock from Oregon — conifers (including living Christmas trees), daphnes, dogwoods and other trees and shrubs — that are ready for planting.

✓You can continue to plant your pansies, violas and a number of other annuals.

✓Delphiniums should be cut back to within a few inches of the ground.

✓Chrysanthemums are in short supply in Marin this year. But if you can find them in full bloom, they make the perfect quick color addition, indoors or outdoors, for the Thanksgiving season.

✓Check the wooden supports for tree roses, young trees, chrysanthemums, etc., to make sure they are in good repair and capable of withstanding strong windstorms.

✓Spring-blooming bulbs are in short supply now in the nurseries. But if you have purchased some and stored them away, now is the time to get them out and plant them. By scrounging around, you may still be able to find some bulbs in the nurseries.

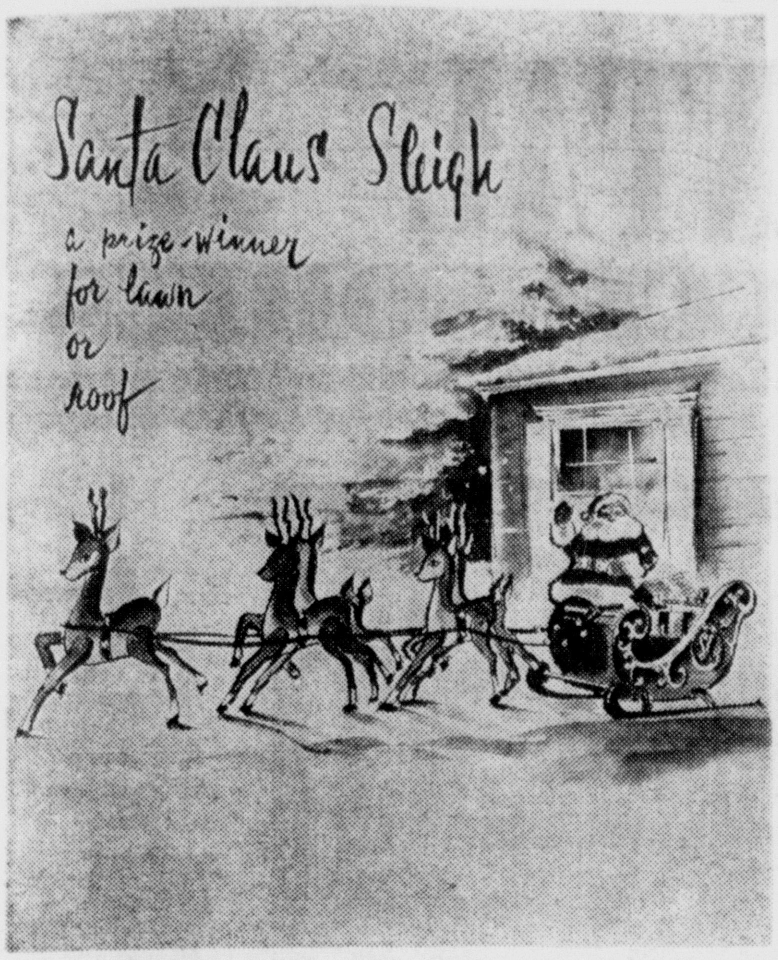
Handyman's Page



FOR A CHEERFUL Christmas touch, there's nothing like jolly old Santa himself. Add his reindeer and sleigh, and you have an outdoor decoration, for lawn or rooftop, that is sure to catch the eyes of passers-by throughout the holiday season. For the patterns—Santa Claus is No. 431, the sleigh is No. 434, and the reindeer No. 433—send 75 cents for each one you want to Independent-Journal, Post Office Box 215, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y., 10510, and include your zip code number. The projects are relatively simple ones, but do not delay too long if you want to have your decoration done and in place for the entire holiday season.

A Confusing World Of Clear Finishes

The newcomer who ventures into the intriguing world of clear wood finishing quickly discovers that the guidelines are flexible indeed.

Having already decided that he wishes to preserve and enhance the natural characteristics of wood, he finds that there not only is a wide variety of types of finishes, but a large number of choices within each group. Even more confusing are the seemingly countless techniques of application, with both experts and amateurs offering sure-fire procedures for successful results.

THE STATE OF bewilderment will dissolve quickly if he decides at the outset that every finish has something to recommend it and that it's all a matter of personal preference. The same goes, of course, for favorite mixtures of different products and methods of application.

What remains, then, is the matter of experimenting to discover which materials and procedures best suit the tyro's own needs and preferences. Before very long, he, too, will be strongly advocating certain kinds of finishes and application systems, thus inferentially placing himself into the expert category.

There are certain basic types of clear wood finishes, the best-known being varnish, shellac, lacquer and the penetrants, the latter having the characteristic of sinking into the wood rather than remaining on the surface. Included among the many other finishes are synthetics, each brand of which says that its own chemical formulations give it superior qualities, especially in the area of durability.

VARNISHES GENERALLY are resistant to water, heat, alcohol and most other liquids; are reasonably easy to use but must be applied in a nearly dust-free atmosphere; most are glossy but can be obtained in duller finishes, and are thinned with turpentine or mineral spirits.

Shellacs are very easy to apply; dry fast; can be touched up quickly; require waxing to prevent stains from liquids; must not be applied during a period of high humidity, and are thinned with denatured alcohol.

Lacquers produce a high gloss; are durable and resistant to liquids; dry even faster than shellacs; usually are sprayed on but can be applied with a brush, especially to small surfaces; and are thinned with a lacquer thinner.

PENETRATING finishes actually are sealers; usually must be waxed to provide protection against wear; are very easy to touch up without the appearance of patching, and require very little skill for application.

Oil finishes, such as linseed oil and/or turpentine, provide a mellow look but must be rubbed in thoroughly and at least once or twice a year.

All synthetic and special types of finishes must be used according to the directions on the containers.
